Air Strength Of 66 Groups Is Proposed By Forrestal

Congress Offered Compromise Plan Costing $5.6 Billion Less Than 70 Units

By John G. Norris
Post Reporter

Defense Secretary James Forrestal presented a compromise defense program to Congress yesterday, calling for the immediate expansion of the Air Force from 55 to 66 combat groups.

The new plan, he said, has been unanimously approved by the heads of the Army, Navy and Air Force, and bears the indorsement of President Truman.

In effect, the compromise would give the Air Force 11 of the 15 additional groups it says is necessary in first-line air strength, but not go beyond prior Administration proposals for new plane procurement to modernize them.

Adds $3.4 Billions to Budget

It would cost $3,481,000,000 more next year than the original 11-billion-dollar defense budget—481 millions above what the President proposed a month ago. The cost is estimated to amount to 15 billions in 1950 and 16.5 billions in 1951.

This compares with 20 billion dollars a year for the full 70-group air program with land and sea forces maintained in balance, Forrestal said.

Accompanied by the three military chiefs of the armed forces, Forrestal laid the revised preparedness program before a closed sesion of the Senate Armed Services Committee yesterday afternoon.

Gurney Explains Program

As explained afterwards by Chairman Chan Gurney and in a statement given by the defense chief, the plan would:

1. Bolster America's strategic air power by creating ten additional heavy bomber groups and one fighter group. Three hundred Boeing B-29's would be taken from storage and modernized to make up the new bomber groups.

2. Manpower for the armed services would be increased by 61,000 officers and men above the 1,724,000 total asked by Forrestal a month ago in the original three billion-dollar supplemental defense budget. Eight thousand of the extra men would go to the Army, the rest to the Air Force.

3. The additional 822 million dollars in contractual authority for new planes, voted by the House a week ago by an overwhelming margin, was not included in the revised Administration plan.

"Best Military Judgment"

Senator Gurney quoted Forrestal as saying the program:

"Puts the services in a state of relative readiness best able to help one another and based on the best military judgment of the Joint Chiefs of Staff."

"In my opinion," Gurney added, "it gives us—within the budget limits—the protective force we need right at the moment."

The Armed Services chairman said the Administration program still calls for the draft to provide the manpower for the additional forces and for universal military training to fill up the Reserves and National Guard.

Sentiment in Congress seems in favor of the draft but opposed to UMT. Gurney said yesterday, however, he still hoped for approval of the latter.

Recognize Other Factors

Forrestal told the Senate that the Joint Chiefs of Staff agreed a week ago that the Administration "solely on military considerations" should back a "balanced military establishment" consisting of a 70-group program for the Air Force, a 837,000-man Army and a Navy and Marine Corps of 668,000.

But the military chiefs also reported Forrestal said, that in putting such a program into effect other factors must be recognized.

These factors, said the Joint Chiefs, include "the capability of the aircraft industry to expand, the impact of the cost of the program on the national economy, and the calculated risk which can be ac-

Reuther Now Out of Danger; $117,800 Reward for Gunman

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

UNION LEADER IN HOSPITAL—Mrs. Mae Reuther consoles her husband, Walter P. Reuther, jr., who lies seriously wounded in a Detroit hospital. The UAW president was wounded in the arm and chest by a shotgun blast fired through a window of their home by an unknown assailant

Detroit, April 21 (U.P.).—Walter P. Reuther, scrappy chief of 900,000 CIO United Auto Workers, was declared out of danger today while rewards for the capture of the shotgun assailant who blasted him from ambush last night mounted to $117,800.

But doctors who operated on the 40-year-old president of the Nation's biggest industrial union at new Grace Hospital said he might lose the use of his right arm.

A reward of $100,000 was offered by the union's international executive board, which met in emergency session to discuss the assassination attempt. The Detroit City Council voted $10,000. Reuther's home local, No. 174, $1000, the Michigan Communist Party $500, and the Wayne County CIO Council $100. Dan Tobin's AFL Teamsters added $5000, the Michigan CIO Council $1000 and two unions locals $100 each.

Expects to Save Arm

Dr. Raymond A. Sokolov, who removed four shotgun pellets from Reuther's arm and operated on a less serious chest wound, said he was "virtually certain the arm will be saved, but we do not know yet if the radial nerve was damaged. If it was, he may never have the full use of his arm again."

Reuther, a militant foe of communism who swept left-wing factions from control of the union last November, was cut down in the kitchen of his neat, six-room bungalow last night while eating a late snack with his wife, Mae, 37.

Detroit Police Commissioner Harry S. Toy took personal command of the most intensive manhunt this city has ever seen. State police worked with sheriff's officers in questioning all known Reuther enemies.

Toy said he had received a telephone call from Senator Homer Ferguson (R., Mich.), who said he would ask J. Edgar Hoover to assign Federal Bureau of Investigation agents to the case.

Believe 3 Men Involved

The commissioner said police took impressions of footprints near the Reuther home, and believed three men may have been involved in the shooting, one the actual gunman, another acting as a lookout and a third who stayed in the car and kept the motor running.

Toy said police were questioning a Ford Motor Co. patent attorney who called headquarters with a "tip." He did not reveal the lawyer's name.

Witnesses saw the assailant speed away in a late model maroon Ford four-door sedan after sneaking to the rear of the Reuther home and shooting Reuther at a 10-foot range through a rear window.

All red sedans of the model of the getaway car were stopped and the occupants questioned. Police

DAR Hears Warnings of Possible Attack

Royall Says Army Not Big Enough to Keep War Out of U. S.

By Dorothea Andrews
Post Reporter

Secretary of the Army Kenneth C. Royall yesterday told Daughters of the American Revolution delegates that the United States Army is not now big enough to keep war out of America in event of attack.

His frank appraisal of the country's military position was followed by a sober warning from Maj. Gen. W. H. Arnold, Army budget chief, that "tomorrow may bring another Pearl Harbor, or a score of Pearl Harbors."

Bases Are Vital Factor

Both addressed the national defense session of the organization's fifty-seventh Continental Congress, in convention here this week. In a business session, delegates voted to add a $900,000 addition to the five-million-dollar national headquarters here.

A wide open race developed at a session last night for the six posts of vice president general. Two candidates filed in typical dark-horse style to even up to 12 the number of DAR members who seek the high positions.

Secretary Royall, pointing out that America's best insurance against war here, lies in denying attack bases "to any potential enemy," declared:

"The stark fact facing us today is that our Army is not big enough to carry out its part in defensive and offensive operation that would be necessary if war should come.

Never Certain

"If it were certain that there would be no war, we would need no Army. And under the circumstances today, if we did not provide for this war contingency (bases), I am afraid there would be no peace—certainly no peace of long duration."

"The best protection against an attack upon America in the event of future war would be to deny to any potential enemy bases on or near the American Continent, any bases from which sustained attack

De Gasperi Says Aims Will Be Met

Rome Crowd Cheers Christian Democrat Leader; Majority In Both Houses Sure

Rome, April 21 (AP).—Premier Alcide de Gasperi promised thousands of cheering Romans tonight his victorious Christian Democrat Party would carry out its pledges for Italian social reforms.

The Christian Democrats were within reach of an absolute majority in both houses of Parliament.

Their victory over the Communists produced an abrupt Communist turnabout on the Marshall Plan and foreshadowed a possible breakup of the Communist-led Popular Front.

Some violence occurred in Milan and near Foggia in southern Italy. Police said 28 front members Police under arrest in Milan for starting a brawl last night.

Communist Leader Palmiro Togliatti accused the United States of using threats of starvation and the atom bomb to influence the elections.

Although the elections were not free, Togliatti said, the Communists "have no intention of using force or violence."

Lelio Basso, secretary of the pro-Communist Socialists said they would formally protest the result of the election on grounds of illegal participation by the clergy.

Mario Scelba, Christian Democrat Minister of the Interior, claimed his party would get 307 out of the 574 seats in the Chamber of Deputies and 130 of the 237 seats in the Senate.

The official composition of the two houses awaited completion of the distribution of votes under the proportional representation system for the Chamber, and the equally complex system for the Senate. This may not be known until tomorrow or even later.

Scelba gave this as the probable distribution of seats in the Chamber of Deputies: Christian Democrats 307, Popular Front (Communist and Socialist) 182, Socialist Unity (pro-government) 33, National Bloc (Rightist) 18, Monarchists 14 Republicans (pro-government) 9, Italian Social Movement (MSI) 6, South Tyrol Party 3, Sardinian Action 1, Peasant Party 1.

For the Senate: Christian Democrats 130, Popular Front 74, Socialist Unity 12, National Bloc 9, Monarchists ., Republicans 3, Independents 3, Italian Social Move-

Italy Sending U. S. $5,000,000 Payment

Italy will reverse the recent order of things today by paying five million dollars to the United States.

A source close to the Italians explained, with mock solemnity, that this was not to be taken as an attempt to influence the American election.

The payment, to be made in Washington, represents an installment of the money due American nationals for losses in Italy during the war.

Battle Opens For Haifa as British Leave

Jewish Forces Seen Likely to Gain Control of Big Palestine Port

Haifa, Palestine, April 21 (AP).—About 25,000 Arabs have moved out of Haifa in the beginning of a Jewish-Arab fight for the big port city, a high British officer said today.

The battle for the northern city began in earnest with the crackling of gunfire today from Hadar Carmel, Jewish town half way up Mount Carmel, and in mixed Jewish-Arab areas just as soon as the British had withdrawn their forces from most of the city.

The British still held control over the port area with its oil installations, their headquarters on top of Mount Carmel and a strip linking the two areas. The port will be used for British evacuation until about August 1.

Battle Near Border

The sniping spread through most of the lower part of town.

"As it stands now," said a British official, "the Jews probably will be able to gain control."

A broadcast by Haganah, Jewish militia, confirmed by police sources, said an eight-hour battle was waged today near the Lebanese-Palestine border and that 21 Jews and 20 Arabs were killed.

The broadcast said the Arabs stormed over the border and attacked the setlement of Ramat Naftly.

Haganah informants said five Jews were killed and Arabs suffered 150 casualties in severe fighting in the Negeb in southern Palestine.

One private source estimated there are 2000 members of the Arab liberation army in Haifa, but that the Jews have reinforced their militia by 2000.

At Rosh Pina, near the Syrian frontier, Arabs reported the Jews lost about 50 of an attacking force of 500.

Geneva Convention Accepted

(In Jerusalem, Jacques de Reynier, a Swiss representative of the Red Cross, announced that two refugee camps were being established there to protect about 15,000 women and children. He said both Arabs and Jews had agreed to accept the Geneva Convention on Warfare.

(Lieut. Gen. Gordon MacMillan, British military commander, said martial law will prevail after May 15 in whatever areas the British still occupy at that time. He said the British Palestine government would have no authority over the Arab Legion of Trans-Jordan after May 15.)

Coal Strike Enjoined; Van Horn Brings Suit To Halt Pension Plan

19,000 Miners Trickle Back To Work; 300,000 Still Idle

Pittsburgh, April 21 (AP).—A trickle of miners—19,000 in six States—responded today to the urgent request of John L. Lewis that they return to work. This left the score at about 100,000 soft coal miners working and 300,000 idle.

However, district officers of the United Mine Workers generally predicted more men would resume work tomorrow and operations might be near normal by Monday. They explained Lewis' telegram arrived too late last night to halt the new wave of walkouts touched off by the $1,420,000 fines imposed yesterday on the union and its president.

It was obvious some individual miners were still angry over the outcome of their latest bout with the Government. Here's what one in the Cumberland, Md., area had to say: "To hell with 'em. Let them dig the coal."

And one UMW district official remained frosty. Although he relayed the return-to-work order, Adolph Pacifico, District 6 president in Ohio, said:

"It's pretty hard to swallow that miscarriage of justice."

On the other hand, a Bellaire, Ohio, miner said this:

"They better return to work."

In the Logan (W. Va.) field, where 12,000 were idle today, UMW officials foresaw 100 per cent production tomorrow as a result of appeals. In West Virginia as a whole, 92,000 were still idle and 28,000 working. The latter represented a net gain of 3000 since yesterday.

Other States where mines reopened were Colorado, Alabama, Illinois, Utah and Wyoming.

Even fewer miners were on the job today in western Maryland's two coal mining counties and the contiguous northeast corner of West Virginia.

No numerical check of the scattered mines was available but Western Maryland Railroad said it expected to move only 250 loaded cars today compared with 305 yesterday and 575 Monday.

Reports from Garrett County, Md., indicated fewer miners at work today than yesterday, with most mines closed. Very few of

Accord Reached By Lewis, Bridges Under Attack in District Court

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Once again forbidden to strike, John L. Lewis and his coal miners were confronted yesterday with a suit to deny them their newly won pension plan.

This was their new dose of double trouble:

1. At noon, Federal Justice T. Alan Goldsborough issued a preliminary injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act forbidding any strike, or its continuance, over the issue of miners' pensions. It replaces a temporary restraining order to the same effect.

2. An hour later, Ezra Van Horn, operators' trustee of the miners welfare fund, announced he had filed a suit in District Court to prevent putting into effect a pension plan agreed on April 12 by the other two trustees. They are Lewis and Senator Styles Bridges (R., N. H.).

Attack on Pension Plan

Van Horn asked the court to throw out the entire pension plan. The arguments in his petition were that the proposed plan:

1. Would pay pensions to miners who had never been employed by the operators who signed the wage contract with Lewis.

2. Is not actuarially sound, but was proposed "solely as a matter of expediency."

3. Would bankrupt the welfare fund and leave no money to pay other kinds of benefits besides pensions.

4. Was adopted without Van Horn's consent and over his objection.

All of those conditions, Van Horn said, are unlawful under the Taft-Hartley Act. He asked the court to order Lewis to negotiate an acceptable pension plan with him. In the meantime, he asked that Lewis and Bridges be held personally liable for any funds they paid out under the proposed plan.

The scheme to which he objected would pay $100 a month pension to any miner over 62 who retired from work after May 28, 1946.

It was proposed by Bridges and concurred in by Lewis as a "quickie" settlement plan to the month-long pension strike. House Speaker Joseph Martin had proposed Bridges as the third trustee on April 10.

Lewis and Van Horn agreed to his appointment. But, as yesterday's action showed, Van Horn most vehemently disagreed with the program he developed.

Court's Point Emphasized

In his petition, Van Horn argued that the law would even forbid Bridges, as the "neutral" trustee, to participate in the basic terms of a pension plan. Those, he said, were something that only he and Lewis could frame.

His action gave emphasis to the point Goldsborough made when he granted the preliminary injunction yesterday. He said, in effect, that he had no evidence that the dispute which led to the strike had ended.

Lewis' counsel, Welly K. Hopkins, argued that under the law, any restraining order had to be

Housing Bill Due for Quick Vote in Senate

Move to Eliminate U. S. Home Building Is Beaten 49-35

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

The Senate yesterday cleared the way for passage of the long-stalemated Taft-Wagner-Ellender housing bill by refusing to rip out its public housing core.

By a split party vote of 49 to 35, authority for construction of 500,000 low rental family units in five years was retained in a bill devoted otherwise to stepped up private building.

The test vote apparently assured Senate passage of the liberalized long range housing measure today or tomorrow, but in the House, which killed a similar bill last season, the outlook continued dim.

House Still May Vote

These House developments however raised the possibility that the House may still get a chance to vote on the original bill, including public housing features, or on an abbreviated House Banking Committee measure:

1. Representative Jacob J. Javits (R., N. Y.) announced bi-partisan proponents will launch a campaign of daily House speeches to shake the bill loose from the House committee as soon as it passes the Senate. Signatures on a petition to discharge the committee from consideration of Javits' own bill passed the 100 mark yesterday. More than twice that many signees (218) are needed to discharge.

2. House Banking Committee Chairman Jesse P. Wolcott (R., Mich.) declined any statement "until I see what the Senate bill looks like." Reports spread, however, that the committee will hold hearings later and probably report out a bill minus public housing features.

Would Welcome Hearings

Javits said he would "welcome" hearings by the House Banking Committee but in any event bipartisan proponents will go right ahead with their petition drive. If the bill is forced to the floor he said the will offer amendments to bring it into line with the Senate

Truman Names Harriman ECA Ambassador

BULLETIN

President Truman tonight asked Charles Sawyer, former Ambassador to Belgium, to accept appointment as Secretary of Commerce.

Sawyer is expected to make his decision shortly.

By Edward T. Folliard
Post Reporter

President Truman yesterday chose Secretary of Commerce W. Averell Harriman for the $25,000-a-year post of ambassador at large to the Marshall Plan countries of Europe.

It was the second time Mr. Truman had raided his Cabinet to fill an important post. The other occasion was when he took Fred M. Vinson away from the Treasury Department to make him Chief Justice of the United States.

Paul G. Hoffman, head of the Economic Cooperation Administration which is administering the Marshall program, wanted an ambassador at large, who was an experienced businessman, who knew Europe and who wouldn't be dazzled by Old World leaders.

Harriman was his No. 1 candidate, and he so informed the White House.

President Truman last Friday called Harriman at Bogota, Colombia, where he was attending the Inter-American Conference. He asked him to hurry back to Washington.

Ross Announces Appointment

Yesterday afternoon Mr. Truman and Harriman conferred for an hour, after which the announcement was made by White House Press Secretary Charles G. Ross.

"The President has asked him (Harriman) to take the post because of its transcendent importance," Ross said. "He sees him leaving the Cabinet with the deepest regret."

Ross said the nomination would go to Capitol Hill today and that Harriman will resign formally at the same time in a letter to the President. He is expected to remain at Commerce until the Senate confirms his nomination.

No difficulty is expected over confirmation. Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, has much respect for Harriman. He has repeatedly

Senators Making New Effort To Hold German Art for Time

A new effort to kep the controversial German-owned art masterprices in this country temporarily was made yesterday, while the Army went ahead with its plans to return the art.

Dr. Kuehnel

The Senate Armed Services Committee appointed a subcommittee headed by Senator Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.) to communicate this week with Secretary of the Army Royall and Gen. Lucius Clay, military governor of the American zone of Germany.

In addition to Senator Morse, the subcommittee consists of Senators Edward V. Robertson (R., Wyo.) and Burnet R. Maybank (D., S. C.).

Senator Morse last week headed a subcommittee which held hearings on the Fulbright bill to keep the paintings in this country for a time, sending them on a cross-country exhibit, with proceeds going to relief of German children.

Yesterday, the prewar curator of the 202 paintings now at the National Gallery of Art said a national exhibition would be "very dangerous for the paintings and "very disappointing" to the German people.

Brought to this country Saturday by the Army to supervise return of the paintings to Germany, Dr. Irene K. Kuehnel heartily agreed with the Army's view that the art should be promptly returned, as originally scheduled.

Under present plans, the special National Gallery exhibit, previously set for March 17 to April 18, then extended a week, will close Sunday night. Yesterday, 16,075 more persons viewed the paintings, a total of 857,077 to date.

Dr. Kuehnel, a tall, scholarly looking woman, was curator of the Kaiser Friederich Museum in Berlin from 1925 until the museum was almost levelled during the war. All but two of the paintings are from that museum. She supervised removal of the paintings to the salt mine at Merkers, where they were discovered by American troops in 1945.

She pronounced the present condition of the paintings "excellent," and expressed surprise at the tremendous attendance they have attracted here. The Army now plans to move the paintings to the Landes Museum at Wiesbaden, in the American zone.

"Everybody was very, very thankful," she said, when it was first announced the paintings would be returned to Germany. Then, when the proposal was made to keep the paintings in the United States temporarily, "Everybody was very, very disappointed . . . they talked about it in the shops and on the streets."

She said she was "astonished" that people so concerned about food could worry about paintings.

"A change of temperature is the most dangerous thing you can have for paintings," she said, declaring that climatic changes could cause them to blister or crack.

In Germany, she said, the paintings will be exhibited in Munich, Stuttgart and Wiesbaden.

Present Army plans, said Dr. Kuehnel, who is a consultant to the Office of Military Government, are to move the paintings to Germany in three or four weeks. They will require about two weeks for crating.

Vandenberg Runaway Winner In W. & L. Mock Convention

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

Lexington, Va., April 21.—By a landslide vote o nthe ninth ballot, Senator Arthur H. Vandenberg of Michigan was nominated as 1948 GOP stanad drbearer by the mock convention conducted here by Washington and Lee University.

Nomiantion of Vandenberg was made unanimous after the ninth ballot, which showed this count: Vandenberg, 977; Thomas E. Dewey, 100; Harold E. Stassen, 9; Joe Martin, 1; Gen. Douglas MacArthur, 1; Dwight Green, 6.

Victory for Vandenberg was obvious after the eighth ballot, when Pennsylanvia switched its 73 votes to the Michigan Senator, and Gov. Thomas E. Dewey of New York dropped from 420 to 413 votes.

Early on the ninth ballot Kentucky yielded to Texas. Ben Haden of Houston, Tex., Dewey's student campaign manager, stepped to the microphone and said he was pledged to cast the 33 votes of Texas for Vandenberg. Until, then, Texas had voted for Dewey. Haden released all pledges for Dewey.

After that, one State after another climbed on the bandwagon. Senator Robert A. Taft's solid Ohio block of 53 votes moved over to Vandenberg.

The action confirmed pre-balloting reports that Dewey and Taft would unite in a drive to stop Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota.

With the presidential nominating completed, the 1094 delegates, as tense as any at a real convention, began nominating speeches for the vice presidential candidate.

Governor Dewey showed a steady gain through the first seven ballots, then slipped slightly.

Atom Substitutes for Radium In Cancer Treatment Found

A cheap, plentiful and safer radium substitute for use in the treatment of cancer is being developed, Chairman David E. Lilienthal of the Atomic Energy Commission said yesterday.

Lilienthal told of the new weapon against the disease at the White House, where he also gave President Truman a preliminary report on the supersecret test of "an atomic weapon" at Eniwetok Island recently.

The new substitute, Lilienthal said, is radioactive cobalt. Cobalt, he explained, may be given lasting radioactivity by a relatively brief baking in the uranium pile at Oak Ridge Laboratory.

Lilienthal emphasized that the new substance is not a cure for cancer. "It will do as much as radium, but no more," he declared.

Radium is used primarily to stop the spread of the disease. Although it has aided definitely in stopping cancer in the early stages, doctors stress that it is not effective with all cancer, and does not cure any.

Three universities are doing research work on the new treatment. Commission officials, Lilienthal stated, are confident it will be as effective as radium.

Radium is very expensive, it was pointed out, with only about 26 ounces in the entire country. It costs about $25,000 a gram (28¼ grams to the ounce.

Lilienthal said that making cobalt radioactive is so inexpensive that the commisison is considering supplying it free to hospitals and doctors.

A month ago the commission announced that in its Nation-wide program for treatment of cancer it was planning to set up limited hospital facilities at four atomic energy plants, in addition to four hospitals.

Talking Check Is Developed to Squeal if Forged

Chicago, April 21 (U.P.).—An inventor who used to do legal counterfeiting for the Government revealed today that he has developed a talking check that will squeal if it is forged.

Burgess Smith, research director for the Todd Co. of Rochester, N. Y., said checks of the future may be printed on radioactive paper.

When the check is passed through a special machine, he said, it will identify itself verbally.

For example, Smith said, a good check will say "Smith's Meat Shop," or give some code name insuring that it is authentic. But if it has been tampered with it will scheech.

Smith formerly served as a special assistant in the United States Treasury's Bureau of Printing and Engraving.

Mountain-Climber De Gasperi Has Scaled Most Difficult Summit in New Victory

Italian Premier Alcide de Gasperi, whose hobby is mountain climbing, has just scaled his most difficult summit—the Italian election—where a slip might have been fatal to his ideals and to his country.

Typical of his quiet determination—manifest 13 years ago when at 54 he scaled the difficult Dolomite Heights—was the unflagging way he pursued his course as leader of the Cristian Democratic Party when the Western world feared a Communist victory.

He was unmoved by threats when in 1947 he ousted the Communist Party from participation in his government.

And in November of the same year, with Italy rocked by strikes and disturbances, unruffled, he continued talks with leaders of moderate leftist parties in a move to broaden the base of his government.

Violence and crises are not new to him. A crusading journalist and a member of the Italian Parliament when Mussolini came into power, De Gasperi quit the Parliament as a protest against the murder of the Socialist deputy, Matteotti. Fascism then suppressed his newspaper.

Once he was hauled off a train by Blackshirt toughs and ordered to sign an act of submission to Mussolini. De Gasperi laughed in their faces—with the result that he was jailed for several months.

Arrested again in 1926 he was sentenced to four years imprisonment. After 18 months, broken in health, he was released under police supervision.

Not strong enough to fight the Fascists physically, De Gasperi hammered at them with his pen in the underground press.

The Italian statesman came into power in 1945 as a result of a cabinet crisis brought about by the withdrawal of the three Rightist parties from the Parri cabinet in protest over Liberal Party demands. De Gasperi emerged as a mediator and formed a new coalition government.

The Premier's slender build belies a wiry body hardened by his mountain-climbing hobby. His face bears scars—memento of an attack by an enraged bird high in the Dolomites.

A devout Catholic, and father of a nun, he attends mass daily, in small churches to avoid attracting attention.

He announced figures for 41,643 out of 41,647 precincts which showed the Christian Democrats received 12,751,841 of the total of 26,163,967 votes cast for deputies. The total vote was estimated at just over 90 per cent of the 29,098,085 who registered.

His figures gave the Front 8,025,990, Independent Socialists 1,860,528, National Bloc 1,001,156, Monarchists 729,987, Republicans 650,413, and MSI 525,408.

Giuseppe di Vittorio, Communist head of the Italian General Labor Federation (CGIL), said he was going to ask the World Federation of Trade Unions to let labor in each WFTU country make up its own mind about the European Recovery Program.

Di Vittorio had campaigned vigorously against the Marshall Plan. This was the Communist Party line. Today he said: "When someone wants to help you, it is ridiculous to slap him in the face."

A Soviet delegation is due in Rome Sunday to attend executive meetings of the WFTU which will open April 30. Some observers said Di Vittorio would not have spoken unless he knew the Russians would be receptive.

Christian Democrats have indicated they want Enrico de Nicola to continue in office as President. The new Parliament will meet May 8 to elect its own officers and two days later to choose a President.

Truman Gratified Over Red Defeat

President Truman was reported yesterday to be immensely gratified by the Communist defeat in the Italian election.

His opinions were relayed to White House reporters by the Duke of Windsor, who paid a courtesy call on the President and chatted with him for 15 minutes.

House Speaker Joseph W. Martin issued a jubilant statement on the Italian result, saying that "the westward march of the Iron Curtain has been stalled." Part of the credit, he said, belong to Americans of Italian origin.

"They sent several millions of letters, cables and messages to their native land," the Speaker said. "These appeals were persuasive and effective.

"Now that the victory is complete, the efforts should not cease," he declared.

Acting Secretary of State Robert A. Lovett told his press conference yesterday that he had no statement to make on the election returns. He said any comment would come more appropriately from the Italians themselves.

U. S. May Get Italy's Hate, Says Wallace

Atlantic City, N. J., April 21 (AP). Henry A. Wallace declared today that America "managed to buy votes with our pressures" in the Italian election, "but we are fools if we believe that we bought friendship."

The third party presidential candidate added that unless the Italian government institutes reforms to benefit the people, America will find she has "purchased hatred."

Wallace, in a speech before the National Conference of Social Workers, also asserted that America's "present foreign policy is not stopping communism; it is promoting fascism, both here and abroad."

Wallace asserted that America has spent two billion dollars in Italy, "yet the problems of the Italian people are not solved nor are they on the road to solution. They need land distribution, monopoly controls, the nationalization of some industries, . . .

"To date the money spent by American taxpayers in Italy has only purchased new concessions for international cartels."

Churchill Sees Italy Saved 'Temporarily'

London, April 21 (AP).—Winston Churchill said today Italy is temporarily safe from communism but "there will never be a settled peace in Europe while Asiatic imperialism and Communist domination ruel over the whole of central and Eastern Europe."

The Conservative leader addressed a convention of women members of his party.

Repeating his frequent plea for European unity, Churchill said, "There can be no hope for the world unless the peoples of Europe unite . . . There can be no return to prosperity unless they help each other to the utmost."

Press Sees Marxism on Wane

He forecast that the recently formed western European union of Britain, France, the Netherlands, Belgium and Luxembourg "May soon become an organization for common defense in which the might and authority of the United States will be the decisive factor." usleader:. . . .

As he spoke British and diplomatic quarters reported that Italy may receive an early invitation to join the western European union. Representatives of the union meet Saturday.

Europe's press generally interpreted the Italian election as a sign Communism in Europe is on the wane, but Churchill warned "we must not delude ourselves" about communism's strength.

Credits U. S. Sweat for Aid

Discussing American financial aid, he said "all this money which comes to us has to be earned by a mass of ordinary people in America, who, by their free choice for the sake of world causes, voluntarily deny themselves many things they might otherwise consume."

He declared the present Commons "the most unrepresentative and irresponsible that ever sat." He said his party would try to repeal nationalization of the coal mines and fight public ownership of the steel industry.

"I do no tfeel we should take American money without an effort to free ourselves from the Socialist fallacies which have deprived us of the power to earn an independent living," he declared.

"I do not see how any Socialist could be proud of living on the charity of the greatest capitalist free enterpise state in the world."

Satellite Air Lanes Set in British Zone

Berlin, April 21 (NYHT).—The British have, "as a safety measure," established air corridors over their occupation zone through which planes of the eastern Europe satellite countries must fly, it was announced here.

The action followed the fatal collision here April 4 of a Soviet fighter and a British passenger plane.

The new British regulation also specifies that planes belonging to eastern European nations must get prior clearance for every flight.

The regulations do not apply to Dutch, British or American planes.

The official Soviet army newspaper complained about the restriction today, and accused the Americans of having set up similar "restricted areas." United States officials here denied this.

U. S. Charges Russians Kidnaped 45 Germans

Berlin, April 21 (AP).—The American Military Government published charges today that 45 Germans have disappeared from the western sectors of Berlin and that most of them were kidnapped or illegally arrested by the Russians.

The Russians took steps today to counteract in their zone the moral effect of the Marshall Plan. The Soviet radio in Berlin announced that eastern zone steel production would be raised. A proclamation also said denazification has been concluded in the Soviet zone.

'Dog's Life' Real Thing, Veterinarian Reports

Atlanta, April 21 (AP). — Sometimes, says Dr. L. C. Moss, veterinarian, of Fort Collins, Colo., dogs become mentally ill from associating with people.

What people call a dog's life has considerable foundation in fact, and even the dogs don't like it, he said.

Swedes Talk Defense Fund Of 54 Million

Stockholm, Sweden, April 21 (U.P.). Defense Minister Allan Vought asked Parliament today for 205 million kroner (about 54 million dollars) for military supplies. He said every Swede capable of bearing arms must be prepared to fight in event of war.

Vought's program, emphasizing Sweden's need for an adequate air force, called for a wing of night fighters and reinforcements for existing wings.

He asked for more modern weapons for the army, two new destroyers, three submarines and four torpedo boats for the navy.

"It is apparent that deterioration of the international situation makes it necessary for us to strengthen our defense," Vought said.

[The Associated Press reported that Sweden's military commander in chief, Gen. Helge Jung, expresser the belief today the Soviet Union may have better robot weapons than the Germans ever had, and better than the United States will have for several years.]

Fredericksburg, Va., April 21.—Representative Frances Payne Bolton, of Ohio, will be the principal speaker at Mother's Day exercises to be held May 9 by the Washington-Lewis chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution at the former home of Mary Washington. Mrs. Bolton is a member of the DAR in Lyndhurst, Ohio.

Communism Condemned at Bogota Parley

Bogota, Colombia, April 21 (AP).—The United States, Chile, Brazil and Peru proposed today that the Inter-American Conference condemn international communism as "an instrument of aggression used for imperialistic purposes."

The resolution would leave to the 21 American republics the task of dealing with communism, each in its own way. The plan would thus avoid proposals advanced by some of the delegations for a hemisphere-wide outlawing of communism.

Secretary of State Marshall told the conference the United States would not support any anticolonial resolution which "appears to prejudge the conflicting claims of friendly nations."

Marshall made his statement as the conference appointed a committee to draft a resolution on colonialism which would meet the approval of all delegations. It appeared that the conference might close on Friday, April 30.

The conference also ordered an investigation into whether Nicaraguan troops have invaded Costa Rican territory to intervene in the resolution in that country, where Communist-led militia are reported threatening to upset peace efforts.

Dead Put at 1500

Red Cross officials reported that 1500 persons died in Colombia during the uprising April 9.

The Red Cross estimated that 2500 were injured, though the exact number probably never will be known. Of the dead, the Red Cross said, 1200 were in Bogota.

The four-power resolution condemning communism was presented to the Steering Committee. It would pledge all Western Hemisphere nations to adopt all necessary measures "in accordance with their sovereign constitutional powers" to "impede and uproot activities directed, assisted or instigated by foreign governments, groups or individuals" which threaten to foment disorder or overthrow democratic institutions.

The resolution recommends that each Nation stimulate social and economic policies to raise the standard of living of their peoples as the best answer to communism.

Costa Rica Lists 2032 Casualties

Cartago, Costa Rica, April 21 (U.P.). Nearly 2000 government soldiers were killed in the five-week civil war won by right-wing revolutionists, rebel sources reported today. They placed their own dead at only 32.

The victorious troops under Gen. Jose Figueres are retaining their arms in this provisional capital of the "second republic" while they await the signal to move into San Jose, the capital.

Man Held on 3-Year-Old Warrant for Larceny

William A. Ryan, 60, was held in $2500 bond for grand jury action yesterday on a 3-year-old charge of grand larceny after trust, involving a $2000 diamond ring.

The dusty warrent served Tuesday when Ryan was located on information of the complainant, Harold Hoffman, a jeweler, formerly at 1007 Pennsylvania ave. nw.

United States Commissioner Needham C. Turnage rejected the argument of Ryan's attorney, H. Clifford Allder, that the charge was barred by expiration of the 3-year statute of limitations. Turnage held the statute runs from the time the crime is allegedly committed until date charges are filed—not from the date of charges to arraignment.

United States Calls for Urgent U. N. Action To Carry Out Truce Demand on Jews, Arabs

Lake Success, April 21 (AP).—The United States called tonight for urgent action to carry out a Security Council truce demand on Jews and Arabs in Palestine.

Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the United Nations, told the Council that recent events in Palesine required a decision now on the unheeded cease-fire order.

The Council made no objection, and Dr. Alfonso Lopez of Colombia, April president, called a meeting on the truce for Friday.

Austin spoke briefly after the United States had taken the lead on two other Palestine fronts.

The Jewish Agency for Palestine meanwhile attacked the United States plan for a trusteeship over Palestine as "flagrantly out of accord with the general principles and current realities of the Palestine situation."

As the British gave up most of Haifa today, Undersecretary of State Lovett indicated in Washington that the United States has been beseeching Britain to defer troop withdrawals from Palestine.

The British have announced their soldiers will be out of the Holy Land by August 1. They are yielding the Palestine mandate rule May 15.

London reports said the British cabinet is giving very serious consideration to the United States proposal for a U. N. trusteeship over Palestine.

Foreign Secretary Bevin delayed an answer in the Commons to a question as to Britain's position on the United States proposal that several nations should share the job of policing Palestine.

However, a British delegation spokesman here said his government will not accept any plan which would keep British soldiers in Palestine after August 1.

Prime developments here were:

1. The United States formally proposed that the 58-member political committee of the Assembly refer to the Assembly's trusteeship committee the United States trusteeship plan. The political committee adjourned until tomorrow morning without a vote. This would be the first Assembly test for the United States plan.

2. The U. N. Trusteeship Council approved a United States resolution tossing to the Assembly without a decision a plan for making Jerusalem an international city. The vote was 8 to 0. The trusteeship council then adjourned indefinitely to await Assembly action.

The Jewish Agency for Palestine disclosed it had told the British High Commission in Palestine on April 10, before the Security Council acted, that the agency would cease fire if the Arabs do likewise.

The American delegation here came under fire from Washington. Representative Lawrence S. Smith (R., Wis.) told the House that United States troops cannot be sent to Palestine without the consent of Congress. Smith referred to a statement yesterday by Warren R. Austin, United States delegate to the political committee of the special Palesine assembly, that the United States would send police forces if other nations would share the burden.

United States delegation members said Austin was talking about troops and insisted they could be sent to protect American lives and property without congressional action.

Plan Adopted To End Fight Over Kashmir

Lake Success, April 21 (AP).—The United Nations Security Council tonight adopted a formula for settling the bitter India-Pakistan dispute over Kashmir state.

The plan was approved by 31 separate votes on a paragraph-by-paragraph basis. Russia and the Soviet Ukraine abstained throughout.

The plan calls for:

1. A five-nation U. N. commission which would try to end the present fighting in Kashmir and help arrange a plebiscite to decide whether Princely Kashmir—largely Moslem—should affiliate permanently with Hindu-majority India or Moslem Pakistan.

2. A plebiscite administration to carry out the voting under U. N. supervision.

Provision also was made for withdrawal of tribesmen and Pakistan nationals who are not residents of Kashmir and for reducing Indian military occupation forces to a minimum.

Intra-Party Fight Denied by Stassen

Candidate Campaigning in Ohio Wants 'People to Vote on Issues,' He Says

Dayton, O., April 21 (AP).—Harold E. Stassen, competing for a share of Ohio's Republican convention delegates, declared today that "I am not making this an intra-party fight."

The former Minnesota governor explained that "I want the people to vote on the issues."

The presidential aspirant returned here for a speech tonight after a whirl-wind tour of the industrial Third Congressional District which incluuded speaking engagements at Hamilton and Middletown.

He will take off by plane tomorrow for Toledo on the second leg of a four-day tour in the home state of Senator Robert A. Taft, who has been pledged Ohio's 53 convention votes by the Republican state organization.

Stassen is seeking 23 of these delegate votes in the May 4 primary.

Arriving by plane this morning, Stassen held a pres conference here and then set out by automobile to Middletown and Hamilton.

He told listeners on his trip:

That the Communist party and its policies should be outlawed in the United States;

That the defeat of the Communists in the Italian election was the most significant event since the end of World War II; and

That this Nation must choose a path between policies of appeasement and a belief that a third world war is certain.

This middle course can be taken, he added, by making effective, understanding use of the Marshall Plan for European Recovery.

Stassen will campaign in Akron and Canton Friday and in Cleveland on Saturday.

Taft Calls Akron Outlook Favorable

Youngstown, Ohio, April 21 (AP).—Senator Robert A. Taft carried his primary campaign to this steel city tonight, admitting Youngstown appeared to be his weakest spot in Ohio.

His speech tonight was in Stambaugh Auditorium where six nights ago Herold E. Stassen, Taft's opponent in the May 4 voting for delegates to the National Republican Convention, also spoke.

It began with a party breakfast in Ashtabula, where Taft challenged Stassen's claims to liberalism.

Taft conceded he was weak in Youngstown in a talk with reporters while his bus was en route here. He did not give any reason for the weakness.

Prospects are favorable in Akron, he said. His wife, Martha, made a campaign appearance in Akron several days ago, and reported the situation "looked good" there, said the Senator.

While Taft was campaigning here, Stassen was busy in southwest Ohio.

Stassen will be in Toledo tomorrow and in the Akro narea Friday. The former Minnesota Governor invaded Taft's home State to contest for 23 of the 53 delegates Ohio will send to Philadelphia in June to nominate a presidential candidate.

"I've noticed my opponent going about the country claiming he is more liberal than I am," the Senator told his Ashtabula audience. "I'd like to know in what respect he's more liberal—more liberal in giving money to Europe, perhaps."

In Warren, he called for a revision of the U. N. charter and said there should be a law defining "what is aggression and what isn't." There also should be a tribunal to decide who has violated a law of agression, he said.

The present Administration gives the appearance of believing that war represents a successful foreign policy, Taft said, reiterating his stand that he was for "a government determined to keep the peace."

He asserted that Democratic administrations had always been apologizing for the American system of Government. The late Harry Hopkins, he said, "and Henry Wallace seemed to regard Communism as another form of democracy."

In his Warren talk, Taft also renewed his backing of a strong Air Force, and called universal training "regimentation."

THEY PICKED A WINNER—Supporters of Lou Eisenhauer Party candidate on Maryland University's campus yesterday are (from left) Shirley Peters and Buffy Shur, both of Baltimore, and "Boots" Howland of Fort Benning, Ga. Eisenhauer won the election

A coalition party of independents and Greeks, with Lewis C. Eisenhauer at its helm, swept off the three top posts in Student Government Association elections at the University of Maryland.

Eisenhauer, a Baltimore junior, defeated Henry C. Saylor, 6311 8th st. nw., by 54 votes for the presidency.

It was a major defeat for Saylor, who headed the powerful chairmanship of the SGA constitution and election committees.

Pre-election campaigning gave the campus the aspects of a carnival—complete with vote-luring clowns and pretty maidens. Candidates were hanged in effigy, loud speakers squawked voting admonitions, and signs turned the grounds into a students' political midway.

Marshall Powell, of Falls Church, Va., defeated Murray McColloch, 5746 Colorado ave. nw., for the vice presidency, 1666 to 1502. The secretaryship went to Eleanor M. Higgins of Greenwich, Conn., who defeated Sarah E. Banks of Baltimore 1841 to 1424.

Other results put Harry G. Dow, Garden City, Long Island, over James G. Lutz of Baltimore for the presidency of the Men's League, 1145 to 1134. For Men's League vice president, Wiley Gilstrap, 2020 37th st. nw., lost to Bob Roberts, Westernport, Md., 1379 to 862.

Mary Crapster, 466 9Homer ave. se., was unopposed for Women's League president; vice president is Jean Regus of Baltimore over Eleanor Hoppe of Harrisburg, Pa.; secretary is June Degler of Middle River, Md., over Doris Crewe of Baltimore; treasurer, Hatcher, 6140 31st pl. nw., over Jean Lindeman, 725 Underwood st. nw.

Swim Suits Too Scanty For Club's Emblem

Great Yarmouth, England, April 21 (AP).—Secretary Ronald Brett of the Great Yarmouth Swimming Club has informed members that girls' bathing suits have become so scanty there no longer is room for the club emblem—a herring.

What, he wanted to know, should he do.

Democratic Convention Plan Appealed

Decision of the Eighth District Democratic Committee not to hal' plans for a June 1 Arlington Convention yas appealed last nigh' by Arlington Democrat Arthur F Souther.

In a telegram to Mayor Horace Edwards of Richmond, State Democratic Chairman, Souther aske' for immediate review of the decision and annulment of convention plans.

He charged that the Arlingtor Democratic Committee violated State party regulations on six counts in setting up the convention, from which, according to the Civil Service Commission, Federal workers will be barred.

Souther said he had talked with Chairman Edwards by phone yesterday, that Edwards was "surprised" that Arlington Convention members were not being picked at precinct meetings and had promised to give the appeal "preferred treatment" for immediate hearing.

The Arlington convention issue will be reviewed by a special appeals committee made up of nine congressional District chairmen, Souther said.

Meantime, Eighth District Committee Chairman Garner Boothe announced that the deadline for filing for Congress will be May 4 throughout the District, with the Democratic Primary held August 3.

To file for Congress, he said, a candidate must (1) present a petition signed by 250 qualified district voters, and (2) pay a $250 filing fee, and (3) sign the party pledge that he will support the party's candidate in the election.

At the same time yesterday, Arlingto nCounty Republican Committee Chairma nEgadr Pumphrey said his committee will meet Friday night to set a date for a county GOP primary.

The move indicated the Republicans will break last fall's "hands off" attitude towards local elections, and put up a Republican candidate for the one vacant County Board seat—the ogly Arlington contest this fall.

N. Y. Gives Dewey 7 More Delegates

Albany, N. Y., April 21 (AP).—New York Republicans handed Governor Dewey seven more delegates today.

The Republican State committee elected seven pro-Dewey delegates-at-large and seven alternates to the GOP national convention.

Dewey leads all the Republican presidential aspirants in delegates pledged, semi-pledged or claimed without contest. Today's election brought his total to 122. His closest opponent, former Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, has 61.

The committee action completed New York's 97-member delegation. Ninety district delegates were elected April 6.

Warren Urges Nation to Elect GOP President

Sacramento, Calif., April 21 (U.P.).—Gov. Earl Warren tonight called for the election of a Republican President and Congress because "the present Administration has lost its capacity for leadership at a time when leadership is the Nation's most urgent need."

Warren, an avowed candidate for the Republican presidential nomination, said Americans want an administration which will have "no part of radicals or counterfeit liberals on the one hand, nor blind reactionaries on the other."

His remarks were made in a coast-to-coast (CBS) radio address, part of a network series offering presidential aspirants the chance to air their views. It was Warren's first Nation-wide campaign speech.

The billions America is sending to Europe and Asia, Warren said, is now on the basis of two-thirds for relief and one-third for construction. He added:

"We must reverse these proportions rapidly if we are to conserve ourselves and render a permanent, rather than a stopgap assistance. Even the United States cannot afford an international WPA."

Rep. Eaton Is Renominated In 3-Way New Jersey Race

Newark, N. J., April 21 (AP).—Representative Charles A. Eaton (R., N.J.), 80-year-old chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, won a three-way fight for renomination in New Jersey's Fifth Congresisonal District yesterday.

The final returns gave Eaton 27,102 votes to 17,125 for his prencipal opponent, Mayor John Roach of Dover. The third candidate, Attorney Paul Kemeny of Perth Amboy, had 2019 votes.

New Jersey Republicans also elected 35 delegates to the GOP National Convention pledged to Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll as a favorite son. Driscoll has denied presidential aspirations.

In the Tenth Congressional District, Republicans nominated Anthony Giuliano as candidate for the seat being vacated by Representative Fred A. Hartley, coauthor of the Taft-Hartley Labor Act.

State Treasurer Robert C. Hendrickson, 49-year-old attorney and veteran of both world wars, easily defeated Harry C. Harper, State labor commissioner and former big league pitcher, for the GOP nomination for United States Senate. Harper and Senator Albert W. Hawkes (R., N.J.), who declined reelection, made Driscoll's leadership the issue in the campaign.

413; Taft, 90; Stassen, 219; Vandenberg, 305; Speaker Joseph W. Martin, 66, and MacArthur, 1.

The score at the end of the seventh was Dewey, 420; Taft, 164; Stassen, 231; Vandenberg, 278; MacArthur, 1.

On the sixth ballot the votes were: Dewey, 419; Taft, 202; Stassen, 223; Vandenberg, 249; MacArthur, 1.

Score at the end of the fifth ballot was: Dewey, 419; Stassen, 253; Taft, 238; Senator Arthur Vandenberg, 118; House Speaker Joseph Martin, jr., of Massachusett, 65, and Gen. Douglas MacArthur, 1.

By that time most of the favorite sons had been dropped and their strength registered for one of the main contenders.

There were early scattered blocks of votes for Gov. Earl Warren of California, Governor Driscoll of New Jersey, Senator Raymond Baldwin of Connecticut, Gov. Dwight Green of Illinois, Senator Edward Martin of Pennsylvania and GOP National Chairman Carroll Reece.

On the fourth ballot, California switched its 53 votes from Warren to Stassen. Promptly a jubilant celebration was touched off, with Stassen delegates pounding drums, blowing horns and shouting, "We want Stassen!"

Immediately out stepped the Dewey forces under the leadership of Haden and tried to drown out the Stassen delegates with shouts of "We want Dewey!"

Illinois, which had been voting for Green, switched on the fourth ballot to split its vote 30 for Dewey and 20 for Taft. Six complimentary votes went to Green.

On the fifth ballot the stop Stassen move was snowballing up to strength, giving support to reports that the Dewey-Taft forces were determined at all costs to halt the Minnesota contender.

Illinois suddenly shifted all 58 of its votes to Dewey. The New York Governor's delegates went wild. They paraded across the convention hall, up around the balcony and back again, then shouted and sounded noisemakers for several minutes after they returned to their seats.

On the first ballot the score stood:

Dewey, 324; Taft, 169; Stassen, 162; Vandenberg, 78; MacArthur, 9; Warren, 81; Baiwwin, 19; Joe Martin, 48; Green, 70; Driscoll, 35 (unofficial); Edward Martin, 74, and Reece, 22.

On the second ballot:

Dewey, 331; Taft, 164; Stassen, 159; Vandenberg, 79; MacArthur, 14; Warren, 83; Baldwin, 19; Joe Martin, 43; Green, 74; Driscoll, 35; Ed Martin, 74, and Reece, 20.

The third:

Dewey, 327; Taft, 175; Stassen, 168; Vandenberg, 83; MacArthur, 5; Warren, 58; Baldwin, 19; Joe Martin, 43; Green, 98; Driscoll, 26; Ed Martin, 73; Reece, 18. One unofficial vote was cast for Herbert Hoover.

The fourth:

Dewey, 375; Taft, 262; Stassen, 246; Vandenberg, 94; MacArthur, 3; Joe Martin, 90; Green, 6, and Reece, 18.

Dewey forces were under instructions here to hold tight to their candidate through eight ballots.

In this mock convention, as can be expected in Philadelphia, the drive to shut out Stassen, who has carried every other mock college convention, is apparent. Stassen, it is reported here, was, before the convention began, the personal choice—if they were to vote GOP, which most of them won't—of the great majority of students.

But here the students are seriously trying to arrive at the candidate the Republicans will pick. In their mock convention the Washington and Lee students have succeeded in selecting the winner five times out of eight, and have had a couple of near misses.

The District of Columbia delegation here under the leadership of Omer Thomas Kaylor, jr., of Hagerstown, Md., in the early voting cast its three votes for Taft.

Negro Bishop Plans South-wide Opposition To Civil Disobedience Threat Against Draft

Little Rock, Ark., April 21 (AP).—A Negro church leader here announced today his group is undertaking a South-wide campaign in opposition to announced plans of civil disobedience against "any Jim Crow draft or universal military training law."

E. J. Cain, Bishop of the Negro Church of God district embracing Arkansas, Louisiana and Texas, said the purpose of his group's movement is to "educate the Negro against this type of propaganda."

He said he was referring to plans disclosed before a House committee in Washington by President A. Pihil Randolph of the Pullman Porters' Union and Grant Reynolds, New York.

Bishop Cain said the first of the series of meetings is planned for Beaumont, Port Arthur and Orange, Tex.

White Says Threat Reveals Bitterness

The threat of civil disobedience by Negroes unless racial segregation in the armed forces is abolished is a "barometer of the bitterness" over the issue of discrimination, a national Negro leader declared yesterday.

In a statement, Walter White, executive secretary of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, referred to the threat. It was made before the Senate Armed Services Committee on April 1 by A. Philip Randolph, president of the Brotherhood of Sleeping Car Porters.

White did not indorse Randolph's remarks, saying he did not have faith in the effectiveness of a civil disobedience campaign against military registration and draft.

But he defended Randolph and said that the "disproportion between the burdens and benefits to the Negro has too long endured."

Regular Status For Wacs and Waves Beaten

A proposal to make the Wacs, Waves and women Marines regular branches of the armed forces was rejected by the House yesterday after one male member protested that it would open West Point to co-eds.

The Senate already has passed legislation to make the ladies regulars, but the House voted that they be kept in the military service only as reservists.

The two chambers will have to argue it out in conference.

The plan to give the famale contingents regular, permanent military status was proposed by Representative Margaret Chase Smith (R., Me.), as an amendment to a military reserve bill.

Representative E. A. Mitchell (R., Ind.) said he was pretty sure West Point would become a coeducational school in short order if Mrs. Smith's proposal became law.

Chairman Walter G. Andrews (R., N. Y.) of the House Armed Services Committee said there weren't even enough Regular Army commissions available now to take care of the male reeserves who want to go on active duty.

Representative Noah M. Mason (R., Ill.) said he was against it, too, because it would "open the door to drafting women in the next war."

The proposal was beaten by a vote of 66 to 40.

66 Air Groups Are Proposed

cepted in the light of changing world politico-military situations."

In reducing the 70-group air force program, Gurney said two groups of light bombers and two groups of troop carrier airplanes were eliminated.

"But it still will give the air force equal striking power," Gurney said. "And it will give them the same number of men and officers as the 70-group program until the end of 1950."

In his prepared statement read to the Senate group, Forrestal said the Joint Chiefs of Staff had approved the full 70-group Air Force only on the basis of military considerations.

He said such an Air Force, with an Army and Navy in proportion, would cost nine billion dollars extra over and above the 11 billion President Truman officially asked for defense for the fiscal year. (The Administration later raised this recommendation to 14 billion dollars, and Forrestal's recommendations today increased it to $14,481,000,000.

Forrestal warned that to spend nine billion dollars extra might be such a shock to the economy as to necessitate rationing, price controls, allocations "and a host of other restrictions."

H stressed that if Congress and the President decided to go ahead anyway with a larger Air Force, then the other manpower totals must be boosted, too, to keep the necessary balance.

With a 70-group Air Force, the Army would need another 47,000 men, the Navy 116,000 men and the Air Force 49,000.

He said all three services agree that air power is likely to be the decisive element in our national strength, but that to be effective and decisive, it needs "strong ground and surface forces."

Chairman Walter G. Andrews (R., N. Y.) of the House committee, said Forrestal's new proposal "looks reasonable."

Senate Battle Looms Over Atomic Agency

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

President Truman's nomination of the five incumbent members of the Atomic Energy Commission ran headlong into a Senate battle yesterday.

Senator William F. Knowland (R., Calif.) of the Senate Atomic Energy Committee, served notice that he would fight confirmation until President Truman has acted on a pending bill to give Senators a look at Federal Bureau of Investigation reports on appointees.

Chairman Bourke B. Hickenlooper of the committee, late in the day took cognizance of the row stirred up by the nominations.

"I am interested solely in the national necessity for uninterrupted continuity in the management of atomic energy, and in keeping unfortunate frictions at a minimum in this connection," Hickenlooper said.

Hickenlooper Sees Truman

"With or without the President's cooperation, our committee will seek to handle this matter on this totally unpartisan basis."

Hickenlooper declined to enlarge upon his statement, "pending a series of committee meetings which will handle the issue in keeping with the best welfare of the country."

Hickenlooper reportedly was responsible for the White House withdrawing notice of the nominations Tuesday morning, only to forward them to the Senate in the afternoon.

In the meantime Hickenlooper visited with Mr. Truman. He is said to have urged the President to name David E. Lilienthal chairman of ATC for only one year instead of five as planned. The President declined.

The list as submitted by the President named Sumner T. Pike of Maine vice chairman for four years; Lewis L. Strauss of Virginia for three years; William W. Waymack of Iowa, for two years; and Robert F. Bacher of New York for one year.

McKellar Noncommittal

Not only did Mr. Truman refuse to shorten the term for Lilienthal, but by naming Waymack to one of the short terms further irked Hickenlooper. Waymack is a close friend of Hickenlooper of long standing. For years he was editor of the Des Moines Register and Tribune in Hickenlooper's State.

The Hickenlooper committee will have to pass upon the nominations before reporting them to the Senate.

Another hint of delay for the nomination came from Senator Kenneth McKellar (D., Tenn.), a long-time opponent of Lilienthal's operation of the Tennessee Valley Authority. McKellar delayed Lilienthal's original confirmation for months last year. Yesterday McKellar said about his present intentions: "I have not made any plans yet."

Political Factors Involved

Political considerations are involved besides the questions of personalities. Republicans, sensing winning the White House this fall, see a chance to make their own appointments next year.

Committee members were said to have desired that Mr. Truman not send the nominations to the Senate at present, since the current terms do not expire until August. They were reported to anticipate a Democratic attack if action on the nominations was delayed, with the Democrats charging that Republicans were endangering the atomic energy program at a critical moment in world affairs.

Had the nominations been held up by the President until shortly before the members' terms expire, the nominations could have been put over until the next Congress meets in January.

Knowland has insisted the present law should be amended to require commission members to meet the same FBI loyalty investigations other Government workers must undergo. He offered an amendment to that effect which would also give the Senate committee access to the FBI reports.

Harriman Named ERP Ambassador

paid tribute to the work done by the so-called Harriman committee of 19 business and professional leaders, which laid the groundwork for the European Recovery Plan last fall.

Mr. Truman, it was learned, has been giving thought to a successor to Harriman as Secretary of Commerce but has not yet reached a decision.

Undersecretary William C. Foster will serve as Acting Secretary if necessary, and it may be that he will be named as Harriman's successor.

The job for which Harriman was chosen yesterday was created by Congress in the Foreign Assistance Act signed by Mr. Truman April 13. It carries the title of "United States Special Representative in Europe."

Standing in the White House lobby, after emerging from the President's office, Harriman told reporters that he regretted leaving the Cabinet.

"The President has asked me to take the job," he said, "and I naturally do what he asks me to do."

He said he thought that the recovery of Europe was essential for America's own welfare.

"I'm satisfied," he continued, "that when the traditions of freedom and democracy are re-established they will roll back the iron curtain."

The effect of Secretary of State Marshall's speech at Harvard last June, he said, was to give Europe its first real surge of hope and to stiffen the democratic forces all over the continent. The outcome of the Italian election, he said, was a clear indication of this.

260 Million in Western Europe

"I think we have very much overemphasized Russia's strength and western Europe's weakness. The point is, there are 260 million people in western Europe who are hard-working and intelligent. If we get them back on their feet, the balance of power will be restored and we won't have the same fear of pressures from the east."

Talking about the bloody revolt in Bogota, Harriman said the outbreak was Communist-inspired. He said the Communists went into action with amazing speed, took over the radio stations, and began to urge people to get weapons and attack their exploiters. He said that the pattern differed from that in Europe in only one respect; the revolutionaries used the term "Yankee imperialists" instead of "American imperialists."

Leaving the White House, Harriman conferred with Administrator Hoffman and Secretary of the Treasury John W. Snyder.

Hoffman said he was "simply thrilled" by the appointment and that Harriman had been No. 1 man on his list.

"The success of this undertaking," he added, "depends upon the caliber of the man who is the roving ambassador. He has to be a man who knows the people and countries of Europe. Mr. Harriman is the best informed man in that direction."

Earlier yesterday Hoffman announced the appointment of Alex Henderson of the New York law firm of Cravath, Swain & Wood, to be acting general counsel of FCA. He will serve as a consultant as required, not on a regular salaried basis.

Henderson, 55, formerly was deputy director for industries of the War Production Board. In late 1942 he took an Army commission and, as a colonel, became deputy port commander at Naples and Marseilles.

Harriman Has Had Varied Jobs

Secretary Harriman has had an amazing number of jobs since he first came to Washington in the early New Deal days. A railroad man and financier, like his father before him, he left the Republican Party to vote for Al Smith, Democratic presidential nominee, in 1928. He came to Washington in 1934 to take an NRA post.

He attended all of the great war conferences, beginning with the Roosevelt-Churchill conference at sea in the summer of 1941 and extending through Casablanca, Tehran, Yalta and Potsdam. He served both as Ambassador to Soviet Russia and to Great Britain.

He was still at London when Mr. Truman brought him to Washington to take over the Commerce job after Henry A. Wallace had talked himself out of the Cabinet with his appease-Russia speech at Madison Square Garden in 1946.

In the job for which Mr. Truman has now chosen him, Harriman will be the eyes and ears of Hoffman in Europe—and a good deal more.

He will be Hoffman's ranking representative abroad and also the chief United States representative to the organization of the so-called Marshall Plan countries, formally set up in Paris last week.

Not Voting Member of Group

Although he will not be a voting member of the 16-nation group, the Europeans will be bound to turn to him constantly for advice about their plans, and he also will be able to speak for the American Government in its dealing with the new organization. His main post will be in Paris, since the 16 countires are expected to make their headquarters there.

The law directs him to keep Hoffman, Secretary Marshall, the regular American Ambassadors and the chiefs of special missions "currently informed" about his activities.

In some respects Harriman's new job will resemble his war-time job as head of the lend-leave mission in London. He then dealt with many governments-in-exile which had their headquarters in the British capital.

The nuew job, however, is infinitely more complex and will make Harriman a key figure in the economic reconstruction of 16 nations and western Germany.

Nathan Will Address Jewish Appeal Dinner

Robert Nathan, economist, and Carlos Israels, a New York corporation lawyer, will be guest speakers at a dinner of the lawyers division of the United Jewish Appeal, to be held today at 7 p. m. at the Mayflower Hotel.

Morton H. Wilner, chairman of the drive's lawyer division, announced yesterday that $1,215,000 of the campaign's $2,500,000 goal has been raised. The United Jewish Appeal's campaign opened on April 6. Wilner will preside at the dinner.

Career Man Named For Aeronautics Board

President Truman yesterday nominated a government career man—Russell B. Adams of West Virginia—for membership on the Civil Aeronautics Board.

A native of Wheeling, Adams, is 37 and has been in Government service since 1930. Since 1945 he has been director of the economics bureau of the CAB.

If the Senate approves the nomination Adams will succeed Harllee Branch, an original member of the board, who has resigned effective April 30.

General Tells Effect Of A-Bomb on D. C.

Blast Over White House Would Wipe Out Life in Downtown Washington, DAR Hears

If an atomic bomb exploded over the White House there would be almost total loss of life in downtown Washington.

This was the grim message delivered yesterday by Maj. Gen. W. H. Arnold, chief of the budget division, Department of the Army, before the national defense meeting of the Daughters of the American Revolution in Constitution Hall.

Arnold explained what would happen if an atomic bomb with the approximate power of 40,000 tons of TNT exploded over the White House at an altitude of from 2500 to 3000 feet.

He said there would be four zones of varying degrees of destruction. In the first zone the outer limits would include Dupont Circle, the National Art Gallery, Mount Vernon Square, the old Naval Hospital and the Tidal Basin.

In this zone loss of life would be almost 100 per cent. The only structures that would survive the blast, the general said, would be heavy steel and the reinforced concrete type of buildings.

The general said the outer boundaries of the second zone would be Meridian Hill Park, the Supreme Court Building, the Pentagon and Key Bridge.

In this zone those fully exposed to rays would die or suffer severe illness. Flying debris would be a serious hazard. Burns would range from severe to moderate. All glass would be broken. Heavier types of construction would be "materially damaged." Communications and other utilities would be either destroyed or damaged.

The shock would be less in the third zone which would include the Zoo, the Soldiers Home, the Navy Yard, National Airport and Fort Myer. Arnold said most of the damage in the third zone would be confined to the moderate effects of the initial blast.

The fourth zone would extend from 7 to 8 miles from the point of explosion and would include American University, Anacostia Park, St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Bolling Field and Clarendon, Va.

Chinese Ask For Return of Machinery

Nanking, China, April 21 (U.P.).—The National Assembly called upon the government today to request United Nations action against Russia unless all industry stripped from Manchuria is returned to China.

The assembly also called for formation of a Southeast Asia union against communism and it criticized the United States recovery program for Japan.

Th eresolutions were among 50 passed by the assembly. They are not binding on the government, since the assembly does not have legislative powers.

The resolution criticizing the U. S. contained 14 points, including a demand for a 50-year occupation and stringent control of Japanese economy.

The proposed Southeast Asia union would be similar to the western European union and would include India, the Philippines, Burma, Siam and Australia and New Zealand.

The Nationalists claimed victories in north central China but a government spokesman admitted Manchurian garrisons were girding for attacks next month.

The spokesman, Gen. Teng Wen-yi, said air reconnaissance showed eseven Communist armies totaling over 150,000 troops massed in northern Manchuria near Changchun.

Four other armies, he said, were between Mukden and Changchun.

Korea Patriots To Serve as Deputy Police

Seoul, Korea, April 21 (U.P.).—The American military governor today authorized Korean civil officials to deputize a virtually unlimited number of "local patriotic Koreans" to help police keep order.

The action followed a fresh outbreak of violence in southern Korea in which a mob of 150 persons beat two detectives to death.

Maj. Gen. William Dean, the United States military governor, fears Communists will attempt to disrupt elections May 10 in the American-occupied zone. Balloting will be for selection of a 200-member assembly for southern Korea.

[Two south Korean politicians were in the Soviet zone today to hear north Korean Communist plans for uniting the nation, the Associated Press said. They are liberal Kimm Kiu Sic and Rightist Kimm Koo.

[Newspapers quoted Kimm Koo as saying he would stand on the thirty-eighth parallel, which divides the United States and Soviet zones, and kill himself by cutting open his abdomen if the unity conference fails.]

Truck Driver Tests Stressed

Truck drivers should be hired in a scientific way.

This bit of advice came yesterday from Prof. Amos E. Neyhart, head of the institute of public safety at Pennsylvania State College.

He urged members of the District Trucking Association, at a luncheon meeting in Hotel Mayflower, to "take the guesswork" out of their employment technique by putting prospective drivers through an intensive 8-step testing session. This would cover more than 150 questions, including job analysis and a special interview procedure.

Does Stomach Gas and Bloat Make You Feel Miserable?

If so, here is how you may get blessed relief in freeing your stomach from this nervous distress. It works this way: Everytime food enters the stomach a vital gastric juice must flow normally to break-up certain food particles; else the food may ferment. Sour food, acid indigestion and gas frequently cause a morbid, touchy, fretful, peevish, nervous condition, loss of appetite, underweight, restless sleep, weakness.

To get real relief you must increase the flow of this vital gastric juice. Medical authorities, in independent laboratory tests on human stomachs, have by positive proof shown that SSS Tonic is amazingly effective in increasing this flow when it is too little or scanty due to a non-organic stomach disturbance. This is due to the SSS Tonic formula which contains special and potent activating ingredients.

Also, SSS Tonic helps build-up non-organic, weak, watery blood in nutritional anemia—so with a good flow of this gastric digestive juice, plus rich red-blood you should eat better, sleep better, feel better, work better, play better.

Avoid punishing yourself with overdoses of soda and other alkalizers to counteract gas and bloating when what you so dearly need is SSS Tonic to help you digest food for body strength and repair. Don't wait! Join the host of happy people SSS Tonic has helped. Millions of bottles sold. Get a bottle of SSS Tonic from your druggist today. SSS Tonic helps Build Sturdy Health.

Japan Gets Loan to Buy Cotton Here

The Government-owned Export-Import Bank said yesterday it will join three private banks in making a 60 million dollars loan to finance shipment of American cotton to Japan.

The Export-Import Bank will provide 29 million dollars of the credit. The remaining 31 million dollars is to be furnished by the Chase National and National City Banks of New York and the Bank of America at San Francisco. All three have branches in Japan.

Japanese mills are to make textiles from the cotton. Forty per cent of the cotton cloth produced will be consumed in Japan and the rest sold in Japan's pre-war export markets, the bank said.

"The credit, no doubt, will constitute an important step forward in restoring Japan to a self-sustaining basis," the bank's statement said.

Earlier, the bank gave a similar but smaller cotton credit to U. S.-occupied Germany.

Dry Groups Plead for Ban on Liquor Advertising

The "Man of Distinction" took a beating before a Senate Commerce Subcommittee yesterday.

This and other types of advertising by liquor companies were attacked by a group of drys, including the Women's Christian Temperance League of America (successor to the Anti-Saloon League) and others.

They appeared in support of three bills that would either restrict or abolish all liquor advertising.

In opening for the drys Methodist Bishop Wilbur E. Mammaker of Denver said an "overwhelming majority" of the public would not "favor outlawing liquor. They would favor outlawing liquor advertising. There is a difference."

19,000 Miners Trickle Back To Work, 300,000 Still Idle

Allegany County's 2000 miners were on the job.

Like West Virginia, Pennsylvania's production remained throttled by the new walkouts, with an estimated 85,000 idle and 15,000 working. In addition, 2300 of 80,000 anthracite miners in miners in Pennsylvania stayed home.

The list of idle in other States included: Colorado, 3000; Alabama, 18,000; Tennessee, 10,000; Illinois, 3500; Virginia, 14,600; Kentucky, 40,000; Oklahoma-Arkansas, 1000; Indiana, 7400; Wyoming, 700; Montana, 700; Ohio, 16,700; Maryland, 200.

Lewis sent this telegram to his district officials:

"I do hope you will convey to each member my wish that they immediately return to work."

Many locals were just receiving the word this afternoon. They immediately called meetings to vote on the work call.

UAW Aides Carry On...

Associated Press WIREPHOTO

IN REUTHER'S PLACE—The International Executive Board of the CIO United Automobile Workers has pledged its complete support to these three top officers. Directing the union in the absence of the wounded Walter P. Reuther, jr., are (from left) Richard Gosser, vice president; John W. Livingston, another vice president, and Emil Mazey, secretary-treasurer also checked all garages and service stations for clews to the car.

None of the witnesses got a good look at the gunman, who shot the union leader just 13 minutes after he returned home from a meeting of the UAW executive board.

Doctors said Reuther's excellent general health helped him withstand the shock. He will be in the hospital for several weeks. The fiery, slightly built red-head never lost consciousness after surviving the second attempt on his life in a decade.

Commissioner Toy said he thought the shooting "was a one-man job, motivated by personal hatred of Reuther." However, he did not eliminate the possibility the attempted assassination might have stemmed from group action.

Reuther, in a statement to Wayne County Prosecutor James N. McNally just before he underwent 2½ hours of surgery, suggested three general possibilities. He listed them as "management, the CP (Communist Party) or some screwball, but not in any particular order."

Court Bans Coal Strike

dismissed when the dispute involved in a labor case was settled. He demanded therefore, that the order be canceled and no new injunction be issued.

Goldsborough sniffed, "The court doesn't want to say that counsel for the defendants is a humorist. But he argues that though a strike continues, just because three men got together a week ago, it no longer exists."

Previously, attorneys for the Justice Department had presented a series of witnesses, mostly officials of coal operators' associations, giving figures on the number of men away from work. These indicated that as of Tuesday a vast proportion of the miners were on strike.

The preliminary injunction has no termination date, except that it cannot run longer than the 80 days permitted for a final injunction under the Taft-Hartley Act.

When the 80-day period starts is a matter for further legal argument, it seemed yesterday. Government attorneys will probably claim that it started as of yesterday. Union counsel can be expected to argue that it began on April 3, the date of the first temporary restraining order against the union.

The preliminary injunction will end either by being replaced by a final injunction or by being withdrawn entirely. This latter would be the case when and if the court concluded that the "dispute" was indeed terminated.

One purpose of issuing the preliminary injunction was to have a strike prohibition still on the books on Friday. The temporary restraining order would have expired on that day. Yet that is the time set for hailing Lewis into court once again to see whether he and the union should be fined for civil contempt.

Fines Total $1,420,000

On Tuesday, Goldsborough levied a penalty of $1,420,000 against the United Mine Workers and its president for criminal contempt. A further fine, for civil contempt, would be assessed on a day-to-day basis for future refusal to obey the court order to stop the strike.

That is, Goldsborough would, if he felt it necessary, set an amount to be paid for each future day the miners stayed away from work.

In court yesterday, Goldsborough said he thought his decision, on Monday, finding Lewis and the union guilty of civil and criminal contempt "answered any possible defense that could be made against the preliminary injunction."

"The court," he said, "if of the opinion that the testimony (in the contempt trial) clearly showed that a strike exists, that it clearly shows that the national peace and safety is imperilled by this strike.

"The court has no difficulty in saying it will issue a temporary injunction."

Amazing new way to relieve nausea of MOTION SICKNESS

Most people suffer from "motion sickness" in one form or another. When the motion of a boat nauseates you, it's called seasickness. On a bus or in an auto, it's known as carsickness. In an airplane, it's airsickness. Once accepted as hopeless . . . there's wonderful, good news coming out of the medical world today.

IT'S CALLED TRIP-EZE

It's an amazing new preparation. Army and Navy doctors put these ingredients together during the war to combat air and seasickness. Now it is sold commercially. You chew this medicated gum as an aid in preventing and relieving this ancient malady. It proved effective as a preventative in 95% of the cases reported.

Chew Trip-eze before boarding the plane, bus, train or boat. Over thirty airlines, American and foreign, accept Trip-eze to aid in preventing and relieving sickness.

Your druggist now has a new supply. Money back if Trip-eze doesn't help you.

William A. Richardson, legal assistant in the rent administration's public relations section, will succeed Mansfield as secretary-docket clerk, Cogswell said.

Richardson's place will be taken by a new appointee, E. N. Campbell, a native Washingtonian now engaged in private law pratice here, he said.

Clarke, 31, a native of Washington and a graduate of Georgetown University Law School, will set up a law office at Room 637, Woodward Building. He and his wife, Ruth Lee, live with their 3-year-old son, William H. jr., and 16-month-old daughter, Patricia Diane, at 4917 1st st. nw.

Rent Increase Recommended On 213 Units

Rent hikes ranging from 5.99 to 10.79 per cent for 213 units in three large Northwest area apartment houses were recommended yesterday by District Rent Control Examiner William H. Clarke.

Owners of three other large apartment buildings, containing a total of 362 units, filed petitions for increases yesterday, rent officials revealed.

Largest boost recommended by Clarke was 10.79 per cent for 83 units of Harvard Village apartment house, in the 1800 blocks of Summit pl and Harvard st. nw. Rents now ranging from $45 a month for 2½-room-and-bath units to $75 for 4½-room-and-bath apartments would go up to $49.85 and $83.10.

Average 7 per cent boosts were proposed for 59 units of the Melwood apartment house, 1803 Biltmore st. nw. Monthly rents which now range from $32.50 to $55 would go up to $34.78 and $58.85, Clarke said.

Hikes averaging 5.99 per cent were recommended for 71 units at the Chamberlain apartment house, 1425 Rhode Island ave. nw. The boost would raise apartment rents now ranging from $40 to $75 a month to $42.50 and $79.50, he revealed.

American Investment Properties, Inc., asked hikes for 162 units of Center Cathedral Mansions, 3000 Connecticut ave. nw., rent officials said. Present rents range from $31.50 to $100 a month. They would go up to $34.97 and $111 under the owners' proposal.

Increases for 101 units of an apartment house at 2900 Connecticut ave. nw., were sought by District National Securities, they said. Rents now range from $30 to $105, would go up to $33 and $117.25.

Boosts for 99 units of an apartment house at 2515 K st. nw., were sought by B. F. Saul, officials said. The proposed increase would boost $38-a-month apartments to $42.50 and $77.50-a-month units to $86.50.

2 teaspoons cornstarch
2 tablespoon ham fat
Soak raisins ½ hour in 1½ cups water, then cook for 15 minutes in same water. Add lemon and orange juice, and grated rind of orange. Mix salt and spices with sugar and cornstarch, and add a little cold water. Stir into the raisins and stir until thickened. Add fat. Serve hot.

Playing With Fire

If there is one agency of the United States Government that ought, above all others, to be set apart from politics, it is surely the Atomic Energy Commission. The original appointments to the commission were strictly on a merit basis. The chairman, David E. Lilienthal, was manifestly the best qualified person in the country to head the new undertaking; scientists, businessmen and newspapers of every political coloration joined in urging his selection upon the President. So far as the other commissioners are concerned, all are men of distinguished public service, and it happens that three of them are Republicans by party affiliation while the fourth apparently has no party ties at all. The Atomic Energy Act refrains carefully, of course, as indeed it should, from any stipulation as to the political persuasions of the commissioners.

If the Republican Policy Committee should choose now to inject partisanship into the selection of commission members, as Senator Taft intimated it might, by "slowing down" on confirmation until the November election determines who will control appointments next year, it will be answerable to the country for the most reckless sort of obstructionism. The commission needs continuity to carry on its work effectively. The tenure of its members has been no more than tentative until now. The brief term of their service, since they assumed office last October, has been, in a sense, probationary; it should have sufficed, however, to convince Congress, as it has convinced the country, that the men chosen by the President and confirmed by the Senate after so grueling an investigation have applied themselves to their monumental task with exemplary diligence, competence and integrity.

National security is peculiarly at stake here. This is so not only because knowledge of the atomic secrets should be confined as closely as possible but because the essence of security is the maintenance of American supremacy in atomic energy production. This is an exceedingly risky field in which to play politics. Only compelling considerations could warrant a change in the commission at this time. The Senate would be well advised to follow the President's wise lead in letting men of proved capacity continue what they have so successfully commenced.

Threat To ECA

The Economic Cooperation Act contemplates outlays of 5.3 billion dollars in the first year of operation. That is the cost estimate considered by Administration experts to be based on the rockbottom needs of participating countries. Those estimates were reached after prolonged study and were carefully scrutinized by the congressional committees that drafted the recovery legislation. And as Administrator Hoffman warned in testifying this week before a House Appropriations Subcommittee, even the 5.3-billion-dollar total "may prove insufficient to accomplish the degree of recovery we seek." Nevertheless Chairman Taber of the House Appropriations Committee intends to go over these estimates exhaustively with a view to reaching an independent determination of the needs of each participating country and the capacity of the United States to meet them. This is a large order since the Appropriations Committee lacks facilities for conducting an exhaustive investigation of this kind. It seems to us to presage trouble ahead for ECA if Mr. Taber runs true to form.

While it is the duty of the Appropriations Committee to scrutinize spending proposals with care, and cut out unnecessary outlays, the committee at the urging of its present chairman has on a good many occasions abused its power of control over funds to thwart the will of Congress and even to modify policies laid down by Congress. In the present instance the danger most to be feared is that conditions will be attached to the use and allocation of funds of such a character as seriously to hamper the effectiveness of the recovery program. Congress wisely vested in the administrator extensive discretionary powers to determine the requirements of participating countries and revise his estimates of those requirements to adapt them to changing conditions. For that reason the publicity given to Administrator Hoffman's highly tentative estimates of the allocation of recovery funds among participating countries seems to us most unfortunate. For it will not only invite criticism from abroad; it might result in action by the Appropriations Committee to limit or shift allotments in accordance with a predetermined plan of its own making. The mere fact that Mr. Taber was eager to obtain information on the proposed allocation of recovery funds is cause for misgiving.

Clio And Mr. Churchill

Not long ago in the House of Commons Mr. Churchill observed that he was getting a little tired of the recriminations that are being aired in both Great Britain and the United States concerning his own and Mr. Roosevelt's conduct at Tehran and Yalta. These, he asserted, were matters which might better await the judgment of history. At this point he paused, cleared his throat in his well-known manner, and added in a gruff aside: "And I am now writing the history."

Mr. Churchill was referring to the memoirs which are now appearing serially in the New York Times and in Life magazine, prior to book publication by the Houghton-Mifflin Co. The installments are still a long way from Tehran and Yalta; indeed as this is written they have taken us no further than the eve of Hitler's rise to power and the earliest gathering of the war clouds. However, a passage in Mr. Churchill's introduction may give us some notion of the principles which he considers should inform a just historical judgment.

> I have adhered [he writes] to my rule of never criticizing any measure of war or policy after the event, unless I had before expressed publicly or formally my opinion or warning about it. Indeed in the after-life I have softened many of the severities of contemporary controversy . . . Let no one look down upon the honorable and well-meaning men whose actions are chronicled in these pages without searching his own heart, reviewing his own discharge of public duty and applying the lessons of the past to future conduct.

That passage, incidentally, has the fine orotundity which characterizes Mr. Churchill's prose at its best and explains why, almost alone among the statesmen of our era, he has no need of ghost writers or editors. However, it seems to us scarcely applicable to the questions of Tehran and Yalta. It is impossible to criticize "publicly or formally," before the event or immediately after it, a decision of which one remains ignorant or a policy which has not yet become clear. At least some of those who now speak bitterly about the practical and moral concessions to Stalinism, and perceive a connection between them and the present explosive state of the world, knew at the time no more of what was agreed at Tehran and Yalta than was disclosed in the official communiques.

Nor does Mr. Churchill himself manage to remain even for the length of three installments at those altitudes of Christian benevolence that he recommends to his own critics. Consider, for example, his judgment upon the peacemakers of Versailles, and on the subsequent course of the statesmen of the immediate postwar period. The economic clauses of the treaty are described by Mr. Churchill as "malignant and silly," and the method adopted to enforce them as "insane." The dismemberment of the Austro-Hungarian Empire (which is to say the application of Mr. Wilson's principle of "self-determination") was a "cardinal tragedy," whose consequences have brought to the peoples of the former Habsburg provinces "tortures which ancient poets and theologians had reserved for the damned." The American prejudice against monarchies—"which Mr. Lloyd George made no attempt to counteract"—prevented the creation of a German government capable of retaining either "the loyalties or the imagination of the German people," and thereby creating a void into which presently strode "a maniac of ferocious genius, the repository and expression of the most virulent hatreds that have ever corroded the human breast."

With these historical judgments we have no quarrel; in fact, some of them have been expressed from time to time on this page. But it is no less reasonable and proper to judge the conferences of Tehran and Yalta by their historical sequel than the Conference of Versailles.

Carnival In Costa Rica

The fracas in Costa Rica seems to belie the contention that a high standard of living alone is sufficient to guard against Communist infiltration. For Costa Rica has generally been regarded as a model democracy, with an economic status considerably better than its neighbors. Yet the Communists, who claim a membership of only 8000, or 1 per cent of the population, capitalized on the sore spots and seem to have exerted considerable influence in aggravating the conditions that led to warfare.

In this instance the Communists were not allied with the rebel forces, but with the existing government, though, true to form, there were reports of Communist offers to change sides. The revolt itself was exploded by the action of the Costa Rican government March 12 in annulling the national election that had just been held, on the charge of fraud. In the election itself, the National Union candidate for President, Otilio Ulate, won by a margin of approximately 10,000 votes over the National Republican candidate, Dr. Rafael Calderon Guardia, who was supported by the incumbent Picado government. The Republican forces immediately cried fraud, claiming that 10,000 persons had not been permitted to vote. Subsequent evidence indicated this to be more the result of inefficiency in administering new election laws than deliberate fraud, and there is no reason to believe the additional votes would have voided the Ulate election.

In any event the annulment led to an immediate uprising of the Ulate faction, with military forces led by Col. Jose Figueres. At last reports before the truce, the Figueres forces held approximately one third of the country. Meanwhile the Communists became vigorous champions of the outvoted government and the rejected Calderon Guardia. The most interesting—and serious—development was the assistance to the Communist-supported government by the rightist Nicaraguan dictatorship of Gen. Anastasio Somoza. This intervention has been protested by the State Department, and has obvious implications for the whole community of American nations.

According to terms of the truce, a Vice President of the outgoing government, Santos Leon Herrera, has been chosen to head a provisional government until the previously set inauguration date of May 8. In the meantime, the Costa Rican Congress will meet on May 1 to decide on a legal successor. This may serve to put an end to the strife that has torn Costa Rica apart.

On Insubordination

Nothing can be so heart-warming to an enemy as the intraservice free-for-all now going on. The unification which is needed, and for which we believe Secretary Forrestal is sincerely striving, is not a unification of thinking. It is, rather, a unity of approach and an assurance that decisions, once arrived at by defense chiefs after considering the facts, will be respected and not sabotaged by fifth-column activity at cocktail parties. A unified policy in which all the services participate by conviction is infinitely to be preferred to one achieved by fiat, but the knowledge that sterner compulsions are available may be helpful to Secretary Forrestal in his present efforts.

One highly effective cure for insubordination is described by that wise old statesman, Henry L. Stimson, in his book, On Active Service. The situation which prevailed in the Army when Mr. Stimson became Secretary of War under President Taft was not unlike the present imbroglio. Maj. Gen. Leonard Wood, the new Chief of Staff, was attempting to implement the new concept of a general staff, a concept with which Mr. Stimson agreed. The chief foe of the move was the Army adjutant general, Maj. Gen. Fred C. Ainsworth. Early in 1912, the conflict came to a head with submission of a memorandum by Ainsworth "so grossly insubordinate that as soon as he read it Stimson realized that the time for drastic action had come."

Secretary Stimson brooked no foolishness. After consulting with Army legal authorities, he learned that there were two disciplinary means available: administrative punishment and court-martial. He chose the latter, for, as he says, "When I had to deal a blow, I believed in striking hard." The court-martial of a high-ranking general officer presented difficulties, for it was necessary that the board be composed of officers of similar rank. Mr. Stimson called upon a number of retired generals to serve on the court. This, however, proved unnecessary, for, confronted with the prospect of such decisive action, General Ainsworth backed down and requested retirement. In evaluating the result of the ouster, Secretary Stimson observes: ". . . it enabled the department to work as a harmonious team and it dealt a death blow to the idea that any one member of that team could run his office for his own personal advancement."

Attack On Reuther

Walter Reuther is one of those men who, while occupying private positions, are invested with important public responsibility. He has won immense popular confidence and respect not alone because he waged a doughty, successful fight to eject Communists from controlling positions in the United Automobile Workers but equally because he has conducted the affairs of that union with responsibility as well as vigor. The whole country therefore was shocked at the news that an attempt was made yesterday to assassinate him and correspondingly relieved at the current information that his condition is improving. The attempt was a foul and vicious one for which no American could have sympathy, in any case, regardless of its target.

The event seems one more symptom of a spirit of violence and lawlessness which has become far too prevalent. No one yet knows anything about the source or inspiration of the attack on Mr. Reuther. He has, naturally, made enemies—on the extreme right no less than on the extreme left. The UAW executive board deserves commendation for the restraint of its statement and the injunction of caution it has laid upon union members. Nothing could be more unfortunate than violent reprisals for this attack. Indeed, it is worth noting, perhaps, that there is a kinship between the attempt on Mr. Reuther's life and the recent mob action against a Communist in Akron, Ohio, in respect of which the leader of the Auto Workers urged President Truman to protest. In these critical times especially, temperance and respect for the law need to be our watchwords.

WIND-WAIL

A lean and loveless and lonesome cry
Is the wail of the wind when the wind blows by

Where the fields of stubble are stark and brown,
When crows fly over, when leaves are down.

That time of the year, that time of the day
When the sun slants west, when the west goes gray,

I pity the lonely lads who know,
By wintry ways that I used to go,

On hill, in hollow, by cold stone wall,
The slant and swirl of the first snow-fall.

I pity the lonely lads who hear
The wail of the wind that time of the year

When the wind cries over the corn-cut ground,

New Campaign Techniques

By Malvina Lindsay

Keeping Up With Voters

TWO DEVELOPMENTS in political campaigning recently practiced in Nebraska, now continued in Ohio in the presidential primary, throw a prophetic shadow over electioneering of the future. The husband and wife team of Senator and Mrs. Robert A. Taft and the town meeting shows of Harold E. Stassen are modernized forms of personal barnstorming of which we are likely to see more. Both are recognition of the new needs and attitudes of voters.

Mrs. Taft has carried wifely campaigning beyond accepting corsages, being photographed and presiding at teas. She is assuming that women are intelligently interested in issues, and is talking to them on such a plane. Both her husband and his opponent make the same assumption about audiences in general. They know that cheap political spellbinding doesn't turn the election trick as it once did.

Presidential primary candidates have also found out that radio hasn't enabled them to remain on their front porches or back balconies, as was once predicted. Personal contact with the electorate is still needed—at least until television becomes popular priced—though baby kissing may be out. Voters like to look over candidates—and their wives—and much of the attitude of the legendary voter who wouldn't vote for "nobody who don't ask me" still prevails. Now in addition voters are wanting to question candidates.

THE STASSEN method with audiences has done much to encourage this attitude, which was already being developed through the widespread vogue for public forums. One expression of the forum movement was the founding by Mr. Stassen a year ago of the Young Republican Open Forums. He has since severed his connection with them, but they have been continued, financed by individual subscriptions. These now number about 250, reach around 40,000 people in 36 States. They report a big pickup in interest in the last six months from young people, especially college students.

Although these forums have been most active in the East, their methods, used in the Stassen campaigns in Wisconsin and Nebraska, made a great hit with audiences. The candidate's habit was to speak from 20 to 30 minutes, then throw the meeting open to audience questions for possibly an hour or so. Young people did most of the questioning at first, then the older voters warmed up. Listeners in remote places and of obvious limited backgrounds often were surprisingly keen questioners. In Madison, Wis., Mr. Stassen took on his toughest audience when he stood before 5000 students and told them to open fire.

After the Wisconsin primary the question was widely asked: Was the Stassen victory due to the type of campaign or to party organization support? In Nebraska it looked as if the campaigning had done the job. For there the party machine was on the other side.

IN OHIO the Stassen technique is up against a variety of opposition, including the party organization. Also labor issues are dominant in the picture. But whatever the outcome there, grillings by voters are something for future candidates to be thinking about. Students—the voters of tomorrow—like the system, are accustomed to it, and expect it. And the general public is becoming educated to it through organization programs and through the radio.

Moreover, college students' interest in politics seems to be getting keener. Right now their attention is on the national party conventions. Many colleges are holding mock conventions and nominating candidates. Mr. Stassen began his Ohio campaign at such a convention at Hiram College.

All of this indicates that candidates of the future may expect to face audiences that are not so eager to listen to them as to question them. This will make political life more risky for those out in front, but should produce smarter voters.

Letters To The Editor

Communications must be addressed to the editor and must carry the complete name and street address of the writer, though pen names will be permitted at the editor's discretion. Letters of less than 200 words will be given preference, and all letters are subject to condensation. No communication can be returned.

Anglo-American Unity

Seeing that freedom is incomparably more important than even peace, and seeing that the backbone and sinews of the democratic world lies in the English-speaking peoples, we Americans should not make the same ghastly mistake for a third time—the unspeakable mistake of ignoring the fact that effective British-American unity means war-preventing unity.

Surely, our former isolationism, and our love of "twisting the British lion's tail," have proved the most tragic childishness indulged in by any people. British-American unity could certainly give freedom the peace it loves, and the chance it needs in order to develop and extend to all mankind.

But the idea that the United Nations (with Communist Russia very much on the inside) can preserve freedom and peace may linger, in spite of Czechoslovakia's fate, and keep us blind to the overwhelming strength which British-American unity would bring to the still-free world. Blind, we may, indeed, remain, until this continuing failure of the English-speaking world to unite invites, for a third time, such aggression as makes war at its worst inevitable.

DAR On Conscription

In looking over a program of the DAR convention this week at Constitution Hall, I was shocked to note that the speakers listed to handle an extremely controversial subject were all on one side of the question.

Are the leaders who made the program afraid to trust to the intelligence of their membership such a radical departure from the American way as conscription in times of peace? Or do they reason that this is a new age and demands new measures?

The only defense against the atomic bomb was laid down 2000 years ago by Jesus, who said "Love thy neighbor as thy self." Neither is UMT any answer to deadly bacteria, poison gas and polluted drinking water, because it affords us false security on which it is dangerous to rely.

In spite of all the saber rattling of the military men whom the DAR have scheduled to speak, just let the still small voice in every mother's heart answer the question: Do we want to prepare for a war of annihilation, or to strengthen our United Nations into a united world government permeated by the spirit of cooperation and love for all?

"School Tuition"

Your issue of April 17 carries an editorial saying that in 1946-47 nonresident pupils in the D. C. schools cost some half million dollars; you follow that up by saying you see no good reason why that should be. Your writer should know that Maryland and Virginia residents pay taxes to the D. C., some directly and some indirectly, in an amount that would probably exceed 15 million dollars.

The writer of this letter lived some 40-odd years in Washington, paying taxes sometimes unrepresented by any school children, and has lived in Maryland, a few hundred feet over the D. C. line, for about 25 years and during this period has paid substantial taxes to Maryland, but always four to five times as much to the D. C. as a real estate owner and business man.

Outside of direct taxes paid to the District, there are millions of taxes from the money spent by Maryland and Virginia residents in carfare, gasoline purchases, department store sales and all other moneys spent.

The ignoring of these facts is so evident that it seems fair to add that Maryland and Virginia residents pay many times the schooling expense in taxes to D. C.

Conscience And Treason

Senators Morse and Baldwin are reported to have told A. Phillip Randolph that refusal to enter a Jim Crow Army would invite charges of treason. Their statements must be challenged.

Mr. Randolph said to the Senate committee that ". . . passage now of a Jim Crow draft may only result in a mass civil disobedience movement . . ." and "I personally pledge myself to openly counsel, aid, and abet youth, both white and Negro, to quarantine any Jim Crow conscription . . ." This would be conscientious objection to serving under discriminatory policies. Conscientious objection has never been considered treason. Nor has it been treason to encourage others to violate a draft law.

Treason against the United States is defined in the Constitution (Article III, Section 3) "only in levying war against them, or in adhering to their enemies, giving aid and comfort to them." Conscientious objection to military service, whatever the motivation, cannot at any time be termed treason. When it is so labeled, one of the foundations of democracy will have been destroyed.

Remembered Geography

In reading your issue of April 14, I came across the outline map of the United States. I could locate all of the States by numbers and can give locations of all rivers and capitals of 48 States.

I have been a teacher in Prince William County for 46 years. I was taught in a one-room school in my first years in school, and we were taught geography and had to locate all States, rivers, principal cities and capitals. Perhaps that is the reason I have remembered these things, because we had such a thorough drill. We were taught the same things about South America and Europe. It would be rather difficult to give locations in Europe, as they are today, as there have been so many changes. I would like for Mr. Gallup to know that someone can pass this test.

ABC Plan For Peace

You start your April 20 editorial, "Security Within U. N.," by admitting with admirable restraint that "we have been criticized from a number of sources for our opposition to the plan of 16 Senators to amend the Charter of the United Nations with Russia's consent if possible or without it if necessary." Then you proceed to justify your opposition by what you call a "devastating" argument. Your argument is that "the moment this country pulled out of the United Nations and set up a rival world organization," Russia would possess the U. N. for her nefarious ends since she could not be expelled.

"Every member of the U. N.," you admonish, "would be faced with the awful decision of whether to secede from the U. N. to join the new American-sponsored association of nations." Therefore a number of frustrated nations will abandon the United States and even "the European Recovery Program would be jeopardized."

The devastating fallacy of your argument lies in the words "pulled out" and "secede." There is nothing, explicit or implicit, in the U. N. resolution of the 16 Senators to justify your rash assumption. On the contrary, the resolution states that in the event any permanent member-state (such as Russia) "should veto the proposals for revision, the United States shall join with other like-minded states in accordance with applicable provisions of the United Nations Charter or in any other manner acceptable to the majority of member-states, in establishing, on the basis of a revised United Nations Charter, a more effective international organization for mutual defense without the participation of the abstaining state or states."

This means among other things, that since Russia cannot be expelled legally, the United States need not secede illegally. One of the methods to effectuate the revision of the U. N. could well be the establishment of a new United Nations, as a parallel organization, while retaining the membership in the old U. N. In that event, the existing agencies of the old U. N. will be duplicated; and the old U. N. Charter will be retained except for the ABC revisions, specified in the resolution of 16 Senators, dealing with elimination of veto in matters of aggression, elimination of the atomic and armament race, and establishment of a powerful but tyranny-proof international police force. The old unrevised U. N. will die on the vine—vetoed to death.

Your second basic error lies in gratuitously assuming that the senatorial sponsors rejected the Article 51 of the U. N. Charter. The resolution specifies "in accordance with applicable provisions of the United Nations Charter." This clearly includes Article 51 or 109. In fact the Senators' cosponsors in the House resolution, while supporting the identical ABC plan, specifically mention Article 51. Incidentally, the plan is not, as you call it, "the Culbertson plan," but a result of collective wisdom of scores of distinguished Americans, and in the resolution it is properly called the ABC plan.

The only point of agreement I could discover with your editorial is when you say that "there is a vast difference in the approach" between you and "the Culbertson plan sponsored by the 16 Senators." Indeed there is! You advocate the use of Article 51 to set up against Russia what amounts to a system of military blocs based on power politics alliances "to include the United States, the countries of western Europe and any others that wish to join." At the same time you seek to preserve the present, impotent, veto-ridden United Nations and consort among its judges with the representatives of the very country against whom you are setting up the military blocs "within the U. N."!

This may be the scholastic logic of the Commission to Study the Organization of Peace, but it is certainly not the logic of the American people. The American people will reason, together with 30 sponsors of the congressional resolution, that if Article 51 is good enough for a military alliance that can only result in World War III, it is certainly infinitely better suited for the mutual defense pact of all the peaceful nations of the world, directed not against Russia, but against any aggressor; and managed not by power-politicians, but by a world judge and a world policeman, in the name of a world law against aggression.

Only in this manner can we, by firm action now, avert World War III later. And only on this issue could we have a showdown with Communist Russia—because only in this manner will the American people give their overwhelming support.

We, too, believe that the hope of the world lies in the United Nations. But we seek to preserve United Nations by reforming it. A toothless League of Nations inevitably brought in its wake Hitlers and Tojos. A paralyzed United Nations, whose solemn covenant is already riddled with bullets, is bringing forth Stalins and Titos who are setting the stage for World War III with chances of success against a divided world. This is the reality—not this or that interpretation of this or that article.

Are we and our children to perish from atomic blasts because of the legalistic scrupulosities and pride of authorship of the architects of the veto?

Promoting Opposition

Why do so many people pretend that a selfish course of action is altruistic? If the Republican Club of Arlington (or elsewhere) exists for the purpose of promoting two parties, would such efforts be more likely to succeed in Vermont, or New Hampshire where Democrats are as scarce as are Republicans in Virginia?

It is of course proper to promote whichever party one prefers, but it is an insult to the readers' intelligence to assert that the reason is to have two parties.

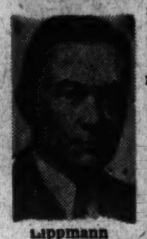
Today And Tomorrow

By Walter Lippmann

On The Italian Election



Lippmann

ALTHOUGH FIGURES and details are not yet available to prove it, it is highly probable that the Socialists have in considerable numbers already broken away from the Communists, and that its decisive defeat may mean the dissolution of the Popular Front. If that is correct, then in the next few weeks as the new government is formed, the crucial question will be whether De Gasperi and Sarragat can agree on measures of reform and reconstruction, and on a distribution of offices, which will reunite the Socialists and bring them into a coalition with the Christian Democrats.

NOTHING LESS than this can offer durable hope of a stable government in Italy. We must not overestimate the present results of the election. The Communists were decisively defeated in the voting; the Christian Democrats got a good plurality; with the Sarragat Socialists and some of the more dependable Splinter parties, there is a fairly big non-Communist majority. But a 60 to 70 per cent majority, when it is a coalition, is not really good enough to govern Italy well during the trying years ahead. It needs to be enlarged and strengthened by a divorce between the Socialists and the Communists not only in the Chamber of Deputies and the Senate but also in the labor unions and in local politics.

Only when the Communists are isolated, will their power to cause trouble be under effective control. To do this it is not only necessary to exclude them from the new government; it is necessary also to reunite and reorganize the Socialists so that they may be included in the government. This is, of course, primarily an Italian problem in which the statesmanship of De Gasperi and the views of the Vatican will be the determining factors.

BUT THE influence of the United States is great. The security and the sustenance of the Italian nation depend, unhappily, upon America, and therefore we shall be answerable for how wisely we exert our influence. We seem to have given the Italians the impression, as that admirable reporter Mr. Stewart Alsop has just said in a dispatch from Italy, that we are "a reactionary Santa Claus." The impression needs to be corrected. For unless the non-Communist coalition identifies itself with the reconstruction of Italy, not merely with antibolshevism and relief, the electoral victory we are celebrating today will gradually become rancid.

A WISE POLICY on our part depends upon a true appraisal of the political situation in western Europe.

The Italian election has confirmed the experience of 30 years: that the Communists, without the Red army, cannot get and hold the control of a European nation by elections, by propaganda, infiltration, or a coup d'etat. The Communist doctrine appeals only to a minority, less than 25 per cent. It is a minority which can cause trouble but against the army and the police it cannot seize power.

The more trouble it causes the more it arouses the resistance of the other elements of the nation. When the Red army cannot intervene, the national forces can always defeat the Communists in an election and they can and they will crush the Communists if it comes to an insurrection.

BUT—AND THIS is the critical proviso—if the non-Communists are not able to govern well, if the Communists make enough trouble to paralyze the government and the national life, then the beneficiaries of bad government and disorder will be a determined minority of fascists or fascist fellow-travelers. That is what happened after the First World War and it may happen again after the second.

It is likely to happen unless we, who exercise such influence, understand that in western Europe—outside the reach of the Red army—the real danger is not that the Communists will get the power. It is that constitutional governments, unable to govern well and to cure the discontent which the Communists exploit, will collapse as between the two wars they did in Italy and Germany, Poland, Hungary, and Romania, and be succeeded by warlike fascist dictatorships.

IF WE ARE to avoid grave misunderstanding of the political situation in Europe, we have, I contend, to realize the radical difference between communism within and communism beyond the orbit of the Red army. After the Italian election that is no longer a most probable hypothesis but the first postulate for a successful analysis and prognosis of European conditions.

The second postulate, which is not so conclusively confirmed but is nevertheless most probably true, is that outside the orbit of the Red army in Europe, the real danger is not that communism will win but that it will provoke fascism.

This is, I believe, the substantial meaning of Mr. Churchill's remark in his memoirs that "fascism was the shadow or ugly child of communism."

Washington Calling

By Marquis Childs

Uncoordinated Security

THE INQUIRY into the Central Intelligence Agency has thus far marked out only one small area of fact. As early as last January reports were prepared by the agency telling of internal conflict in Colombia and the presence of Communist operators. The red light was flashed well in advance.

Childs

Rear Admiral R. H. Hillenkoetter, head of CIA, took the unusual step of making public secret intelligence reports in order to establish this point. How much it means is something else again.

The truth is that intelligence reports, no matter how detailed and complete, are of little value if they are not properly analyzed and interpreted by top authority, with top decisions based on the ablest interpretation of what is taking shape. Obviously President Truman, judging from his offhand press conference remarks, knew nothing of the CIA reports on Colombia.

What this comes down to, as has been said in this space before, is coordination and an end to internal rivalries and suspicions in this all-important field. The lack of real coordination is a matter for serious concern. Here are two examples.

A foreigner who desires to visit America must apply for a visa at an American consulate in the country in which he lives. A visa may be refused for security reasons. Thus a consulate would refuse a visa to a known Communist organizer.

BUT THE names of doubtful applicants are never, or only rarely, referred to the Federal Bureau of Investigation, responsible under law for this country's internal security. Nor is there any evidence that immigration officials, who take over at the port of entry under the Department of Justice, are consulted in advance about doubtful applicants.

Clearly this is inefficient. It must inevitably leave loopholes through which agents may enter the country. But also it works on occasion to make America look ridiculous.

Thus Madame Irene Joliot-Curie, the French physicist whose husband, Dr. Frederic Joliot-Curie, is a member of the French Communist Party, was given a visa to visit the United States. When she landed in this country, she was held by immigration officials at Ellis Island for 24 hours before being finally admitted.

The result was sensational headlines. And Madame Joliot-Curie and her friends in this country, including Albert Einstein, felt she had been insulted. If this famous scientist's political beliefs should have barred her from the United States, which I do not believe to be the case, then she should have been denied a visa at the outset.

EXAMPLE No. 2 involves a more far-reaching issue. Nearly two years ago, before our relations with the Soviet Union had deteriorated to their present low point, the State Department approved a request from Moscow for a group of Soviet engineers to tour the United States.

Their announced objective was to study the water systems of United States cities so they could return and help direct the construction of modern systems in Russia. One of the agencies concerned with national security protested strongly against permitting the visit.

This protest was ruled out. The Russian engineers inspected the complicated engineering works by which pure water is brought great distances to such cities as New York and Los Angeles. They returned home with drawings and blueprints of what they had seen.

With sabotage an accepted technique of world communism, this episode requires no interpretation. The existence of vast cities, dependent on complicated and costly mechanisms for the essentials of life, is one of the chief reasons this country is so vulnerable to direct and indirect attack.

Here plainly was an issue to be resolved by top authority capable of appraising all the factors—both the concern of agencies responsible for security and the problem of building a constructive foreign policy. It means a degree of political understanding—using the word political in its broadest sense—very rare in Washington.

Even more important, it means the creation, in Congress and the country, of a confidence that decisions are being taken in the over-all interests of American security. Naturally this will involve great risks in a time such as we are living through. Even in a police state, such as Russia is today, absolute security is a phantom that destroys while it deceives.

16% of Area Veterans Have Housing Problem, Aide Says

Waldron E. Leonard, director of the Veterans Service Center, 1400 Pennsylvania ave. nw., yesterday estimated that 16% of the 125,000 veterans in the Greater Washington area have a serious housing problem.

Leonard said a preliminary report that 47% of Maryland's veterans are in great need of living accommodations sounded "very high," compared with District shortages.

About 20,000 units, mostly one or two bedroom apartments or houses, are needed for District area veterans, Leonard said.

Some 300 returns from a survey he is making indicate most veterans here can afford an average of $37.50 to $60 for monthly rent.

In the meantime the Maryland Veterans' Housing Commission said early returns from a survey it is making show 47 per cent of the State's former GIs are in dire need of a good place to live.

The estimate was based on returns from Allegany County.

Some 1950 filed answers and 924 of them said their need was urgent. About 550 living in Cumberland replies showed 209 want to rent homes, 194 want to build, 94 want to buy, and 66 said they didn't care how they got them just so they got a place.

Only one of the 194 wanting to build said he could pay up to $15,000. Ten said they could pay $6000to $8000 and all the others said it would have to be less than $6000.

50% of Hagerstown's Veterans Dissatisfied

Hagerstown, Md., April 21 (AP).—Fifty Per cent of Hagerstown's veterans are dissatisfied with their present housing, the Washington County Veterans Housing Committee reports.

The committee based its estimate on early returns from a county survey.

Senate Housing Vote Due Soon

Banking Committee's "modernized" measure.

House Republican leaders, who never have called up the measure in the GOP steering committee, said merely that the whole housing problem is up to Wolcott's House Banking group.

Senator Harry P. Cain (R., Wash.) led the unsuccessful Senate fight to strike out the public housing section, and a bitter two-day row developed. Had the move succeeded, public housing features of the bill would have been out of the picture, at least for this session.

Proponents of a "balanced" housing program took heart with the vote, but they still faced a rocky House road.

Twenty-five Senate Republicans joined with 24 Democrats to hold the disputed section in the bill. Eighteen Republicans voting with 17 conservative Democrats failed in their effort to strike it out.

Taft Absent at Test

Senator Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio), who Tuesday took the floor in defense of the public housing section, was absent when the test came. He took time out to campaign against Harold E. Stassen's bid for 23 Ohio delegates. But his opposition to Cain's amendment was recorded through a "live pair" with Seantor John J. Williams (R., Del.), a public housing opponent.

In Taft's absence, Senate banking chairman Charles W. Tobey (R., N. H.), assisted by subcommittee chairman Ralph E. Flanders, led the floor attack on the Cain move.

Tobey charged two real estate groups are trying to "hamstring and cut the heart" out of the bill, and accused them of "doing their dirty work in the lobbies and committee rooms of this Congress for the last four years."

Tobey said he meant the National Association of Real Estate Boards and the United States Savings and Loan League.

"If the housing bill is defeated," he said, "it will be because of two of the most powerful lobbies ever to descend on Congress."

He reminded Republican colleagues that this is an election year and advised them to pass the measure if they want to "appeal to the votes of the rank and file common people of this country."

Cain replied that public housing should be considered in a separate bill. He argued it was a "misleading" part of the measure under consideration, since none of the proposed low rental dwellings would be started before 1950.

Senator James P. Kem (R., Mo.) attacked the public housing section as "an experiment in socialism" and said housing projects should be handled by State and local governments. Tobey asked Kem if he felt the same way about flood control, and Kem said that was different.

Senator John J. Sparkman (D., Ala.), who has been home campaigning in a sharp primary race for renomination returned to the Senate to appeal for rentention of the public housing features. Senate Democratic Leader Alben W. Barkley (Ky.) congratulated Sparkman. Barkley said he agreed the low rent housing feature "is the only provision of the bill which does anything at all for the lowest brackets."

Senator John W. Bricker, Ohio colleague of Senator Taft, voted to strike out the public housing section. Senators Joseph H. Ball and Edward J. Thye (R., Minn.), both from Stassen's home State, voted to hold public housing in the bill.

But Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.), another leading Stassen supporter, lined up with Cain to strike out the section.

Tobey told McCarthy he was "too good a man" to oppose public housing.

The dinner is being held in honor of Lucien L. Renuart of Miami, Fla., president of Optimist International.

Better Tires Forecast by New Rubber

Chicago, April 21 (AP).—Rubber made so fast that it jumps, promises better automobile tires.

The new synthetic rubber was demonstrated today to the American Chemical Society by Prof. Avery A. Morton of Massachusetts Institute of Technology.

Dr. Morton had a bottle of butadiene, an oil refinery gas. He added a few drops of a chemical to the bottle, stoppered it, then shook. Suddenly a long snake-like piece of rubber formed, so violently that the stopper was blown out.

The new rubber, named Alfin, eventually may replace all natural and Government-synthetic rubbers in automobile tire treads, he said, due to its great strength.

New studies showing how vitamin C can help combat anemia were described by Dr. Simon L. Ruskin, physician, and Dr. Alice T. Merrill, chemist, of the Psysiological Chemicals Co., New York.

The vitamin combines with iron injected into the blood, and changes it into a form that can be used more easily by the body, they said.

A discovery of the cause of blackening or other unappetizing changes in some foods was described by Dr. Louis Sattler of Brooklyn College and Dr. F. W. Zerban, New York Surgar Trade Laboratory.

A substance, acetol, formed by the breakdown of sugars, combines with protein materials and causes the darkening.

Fve scientists of the Central Experiment Station, United States Bureau of Mines, Pittsburgh, reported heavy fuel oil from coal now can match the cost of such fuel from petroleum in some parts of the country. This heavy fuel is not the kind for home heating, but the process holds out hope for eventual production of home fuel oil.

ANPA Votes New Process Study Fund

New York, April 21 (AP).—A $280,000 two-year program of research into new processes for producing newspapers got a green light today from the American Newspaper Publishers Association.

The publishers, in their 62d annual national convention, voted unanimous approval of a proposal for a research assessment amounting to 25 per cent of each member's dues.

Gen. Julius Ochs Adler of the New York Times proposed the assessment. It was seconded by Roy A. Roberts of the Kansas City Star.

Study of new production processes has been stimulated in the past year by typographical union strikes which have forced many dailies to publish without employing regulation typesetting methods. Ten experts from such papers answered questions preceding the vote on the special assessment.

Richard W. Slocum of the Philadelphia Bulletin, chairman of the bureau's board of governors, told the afternoon session that newspaper advertising reached an all-time high of 369 million dollars last year.

Agreements Are Drawn on Free Press

Geneva, April 21 (AP).—The United Nations Conference on Freedom of Information ended its four weeks' work today with adoption of three international agreements.

In all votes the Communist bloc stood in solid opposition.

The United States proposal on free collection and transmission of news was adopted 28 to 6. The 15-article convention calls on governments to encourage the widest possible access to all news sources for all foreign correspondents without discrimination, and to grant them equal access to transmission facilities.

It bars censorship of outgoing news, other than "regulations" relating directly to the maintenance of national military, security.

The British-sponsored proposal on information freedom was adopted, 31 to 6. The United States abstained mainly because the proposal condoned penalties for systematic false reporting endangering peace.

The British proposal called on governments to secure to all persons freedom to impart and receive information and opinions by any means without discrimination, and transmit such information across frontiers without governmental interference.

The French-sponsored proposal on the right of correction was approved, 33 to 7, with United States support.

It provided for reciprocal publication of denials of alleged false reports endangering peace.

In addition, the conference approved more than 40 individual resolutions. The resolutions will be submitted to the U. N. Economic and Social Council for approval. The conference was attended by more than 50 members and non-members of the United Nations.

At the final session Chairman Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines said the conference was a triumph of reason amidst gathering war clouds.

Road May Cut Valley Forge Encampment

Valley Forge, Pa., April 21 (AP).—Not since revolutionary days has Valley Forge been in such a turmoil.

The Commonwealth of Pennsylvania disclosed its plans to push the 70-million-dollar Pennsylvania turnpike right through the rolling green acres of the revolutionary army encampment.

The proposed Harrisburg-Philadelphia extension of the four-lane toll superhighway will skirt Valley Forg eState Park but will cut directly across some historic sites now occupied by private owners.

The largest estate affected is that of the late John R. K. Scott, wealthy Philadelphia attorney.

His son, United States Representative Hardie Scott, said he is appalled at the prospect, but doesn't know just what to do.

Civil Rights Worker Guilty Of Contempt

A District Court jury needed only 20 minutes yesterday to decide that George Marshall, former head of the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, was guilty of contempt of Congress.

The speedy verdict climaxed a trial which had lasted for five days in the courtroom of Justice Richmond B. Keech.

Marshall, who is from New York City, was brought to trial after he refused to produce records of the Federation before the House Committee on Un-American Affairs in April, 1946.

Marshall is now chairman of the board of the Civil Rights Congress, an organization which has admitted it is financing legal costs for various other persons brought to trial on contempt of Congress charges because of refusal to accede to demands of the House Committee on Un-American Activities.

Germantown Man 3-Time Offender As Reckless Driver

A Germantown (Md.) man with three previous convictions for reckless driving, yesterday was sentenced to 90 days in the Rockville jail and ordered to pay a $150 fine on a manslaughter charge.

The charge grew out of a collision last November 29 in which Walter Stewart of Gaithersburg, Md., suffered fatal injuries when a car in which he was a passenger collided with one driven by Leslie E. Mullineaux, 27, on the Laytonsville to Goshen rd.

Assistant State's Attorney Thomas M. Anderson, prosecutor, told Judge Alger Y. Barbee of Rockville Police Court that Mullineaux forfeited collateral on three previous occasions for reckless driving and speeding.

After two verdict, Mullineaux appealed and was released under $1000 bond, police said.

Also, in Rockville Police Court yesterday, Willie L. Whetzel, 38, of Rockville, a building foreman, was fined $150 and given six-month suspended sentence in the Maryland House of Correction for a second drunk-driving offense.

Year in Jail, Fine Imposed For Assault

Roy Edward Gates, 43, who has no fixed address, was given the maximum sentence in Municipal Court yesterday for an admitted indecent assault upon a 5-year-old girl.

Judge Ellen K. Raedy sentenced Gates to a year in jail and ordered him to pay a $500 fine or serve an additional year in jail. Gates also pleaded guilty to charges of being drunk and disorderly and was given his choice of $25 or 30 days on each count.

Police testified they went to the 200 block of Indiana ave. nw. yesterday, a block from police headquarters, when a woman telephoned that a man was kissing and fondling a small child on the sidewalk. Police said the little girl told them Gates had offered her a nickel to accompany him up an alley.

Assistant United States Attorney Stafford Grady told the court Gates had been released from a jail in Maryland on Monday after serving a term fo ra similar offense.

Labor Conspiracy Trial Told Of Strongrooms for Whisky

A building contractor testified in District Court yesterday that two strongrooms he built for the International Hod Carriers and Common Laborers local here were filled with whisky as soon as he was able to complete construction.

Floyd F. Pierce of Florida testified the strongrooms were built into the basement of the El Patio, a downtown restaurant-night club in 1942. The whisky was valued at $14,815, it was stated.

The testimony was given in the case involving an alleged conspiracy on the part of various officials of Local 74 of the laborers' union to loot its treasury of nearly $100,000. On trial are Faust Moreschi, George Morgan, Joseph Speed, George W. Plummer and Evan Hamilton, all union officials, and Isaac Weiner, a builder.

The key figure in the case, Larry Kelly, was granted a severance. He was treasurer of Local 74 during the period the conspiracy is charged to have taken place, between 1941 and 1943. The defense says Kelly died in the Pacific while a cook on a merchant ship.

Most of yesterday's session before Justice Alexander Holtzoff was devoted to introduction into evidence of more than 100 checks and union resolutions concerning its banking practices.

The Government produced records to show that Speed, Morgan and Faust Moreschi were empowered by the union to withdraw union funds from the City Bank here.

Acquitted Monday of labor conspiracy charges in the case were Joseph V. Moreschi, president of the international and father of Faust Moreschi; Achilles Persion, secretary-treasurer, and John W. Garvey, organizer.

Va. Road Traffic 12 Pct. Above '47

Richmond, Va., April 21 (AP).—More cars and trucks are rolling over Virginia's primary highways than ever before. Buses are piling up more than double prewar mileage on Virginia's main roads.

A report from the highway department shows that traffic in March was 12.2 per cent above that of March last year, and 26.4 per cent above March, 1941.

Out-of-State passenger cars counted, however, showed a drop of 5.4 per cent from March, 1941. This count of so-called "foreign" cars is considered a good index to tourist travel volume.

One on the Aisle—

Hollywood Fixes Fearing's Clock

By Richard L. Coe

"THE BIG CLOCK," at the Palace, which might have been a pretty good chase picture, is anything but. It is, in fact, a fatuous business indeed.

It is taken from a story by Kenneth Fearing that had a novel twist—a magazine detective tracking down himself. After squirming through the picture, I read the book and am now prepared to tell you—and Paramount, the lucky people—just where they've gone wrong.

The story concerns a publishing mogul who murdered his mistress and thinks he was seen at a critical hour by someone, he doesn't know who. The publisher assigns the editor of his crime magazine to ferret out this unknown observer. The editor, who has been playing around with the girl, knows only too well who it was—himself. His problem is to conduct a logical search which will direct suspicion away from himself.

This neat idea comes bang up against something a good Hollywood movie couldn't possibly permit—a hero who plays around with women while he's got a perfectly nice wife and family at home. Lord knows, Paramount has had enough trouble weaning Ray Milland away from his bottle; you can't expect them to present an Academy Award winner in so unrespectable a role, now can you?

Absurd Publisher

So a good deal of the picture is spent on detailing the happy marriage of Milland and Maureen O'Sullivan. It seems they haven't had a honeymoon in six years of marriage and he's just trying to break away from his desk and take her down to West Virginia. This is unthinkable because the publisher is an ogre who'll blacklist any employe who doesn't do exactly what he wants and when.

Henee, the publisher which Paramount's writer, Jonathan Latimer, cooked up is a crossbreed of Evan Llewelyn Evans and Citizen Kane. He's a diabolical tyrant and Charles Laughton tears into him like a hungry actor who hasn't had a part in years. It's a thoroughly absurd character and you never once sympathize with a hero who wouldn't walk out on him or with a studio whose contempt for the publishing field presumes that because such a dictator fires him, he'll never be able to get another job. (Publishers of the world, arise!)

One of Publisher Janoth's fetishes is clocks and punctuality. He's forever spouting how he'll see someone at 11.54 and do something at 3:12. This eccentricity, stemming directly from the tobacco tycoon of "The Hucksters," is the movie-makers' attempt to explain Fearing's title, "The Big Clock."

"THE BIG CLOCK." Paramount release produced by Richard Maibaum. Screen play by Jonathan Latimer from the novel by Kenneth Fearing. Directed by John Farrow. John Seitz, director of photography, at the Palace.

As the author conceived it, time was forever running through the hero's mind, but lud love us, this is a movie and you can't have heroes philosophizing about Time. Hence the Janoth thing on clocks.

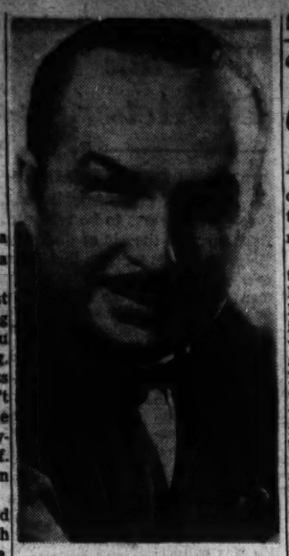
That Flashback Technique

Fearing's story-telling device that makes the book rather novel is his shifting of viewpoint from one character to another. Since the movies are primarily a pictorial matter, such an approach might well have been made. But, there again, too much originality is something to be shunned. Instead, we get the familiar flashback techniques.

The relationships of the various characters have been thoroughly cleaned up, nor is there any hint that his rivals were about to close in on the murderous publisher. Thanks to Elsa Lanchester's sharp portrait of a zany artist, there is one character who's refreshing, though even she has been watered down from the triumphant, logical original.

Except for Miss Lanchester, there is little acting to speak of. Milland runs through his role well enough, but Laughton is downright terrible. When he does his bloody deed you watch his nose quivering like a bunny's.

Although Paramount was kind enough to send me the book, I'm rather sorry no one at the studio took the trouble to read it first.



THE CUGAT: Xavier Cugat, the rumba man, takes over the Capitol stage this morning for a week. The rhythmical Coogie will be having nightly rumba contests, as well as his stage shows. On the screen you'll get a musical of carnival life, "Are You With It?"

Some Unexpected Chuckles

'Boycott' Is a British Cousin Of Westerns, Even to Romance

AS IS the Civil War South to our own movie-makers, the case of Ireland is mighty dear to the hearts of England's cinema moguls.

Latest picture of Ireland under the absentee ownership of the English to come this way is the Dupont's "Captain Boycott." This is a J. Arthur Rank importation with a good cast headed by Stewart Granger, Alastair Sim and Kathleen Ryan. It's handsomely photographed and on the whole is pretty good, though I don't think it's as exciting as it might have been.

Captain Boycott's name gave us the word meaning "to combine in abstaining or preventing dealings with, as a means of intimidation or coercion." This picture is about how the captain's name became a common noun, a word, by the way, which has its French, Dutch, German and Russian forms.

Boycott himself was only a land agent for the Earl of Erne in County Mayo. His army training made him a petty tyrant, a quality which, combined with his unpleasant job, brought him free rein of activity and the bitter hatred of the tenant farmers he evicted.

How the county farmers aligned themselves together, how their leadership was divided between the Irishman's natural desire for a fight and the panacea of Parnell's policy of noncooperation (Gandhi was still in the future), forms the story Frank Launder and his collaborators have taken from Phillip Rooney's book.

Apart from the always interesting and considerable literature Englishmen have made from their countrymen's treatment of Ireland, "Captain Boycott" also is flavored with the neat, trim humor that is sprinkled through the better English films. There are a lot of delightfully casual touches of humor in "Captain Boycott" that will give you some unexpected chuckles.

The viewpoint is revealing, too, of the new philosophy which has grown up in Britain as a result of two wars. It has its cousins in our own Westerns and applies the same treatment some frontier householders meted out to those who tried to gouge them. The inevitable romance is between young people of opposing families.

Competition Seen Shifting To New Forms

By S. Oliver Goodman

Claims that the trend to "big business" stifles competition just aren't based on facts, in the opinion of Dr. A. D. H. Kaplan of the Brookings Institution.

Admitting that basic production of the Nation is concentrated now in fewer than 2500 manufacturing companies, Dr. Kaplan said the emphasis merely has shifted from certain forms of competition to others.

"Ours remains a highly competitive system of doing business," he said, adding that the 2500 "giants" in turn must operate through hundreds of thousands of small suppliers and dealers. He also cited the battle for consumers' preference "that can easily be as severe as price-jockeying."

"On the whole," he concluded, "big business in our generation has operated on the basis of live and let live in its relations with smaller competitors, as well as with suppliers and dealers."

Kaplan, who is the author of "The Guarantee of Annual Wages," spoke before the Chesapeake Chapter of Robert Morris Associates, a group of credit officers from Washington and Baltimore banks. The dinner meeting was in the Statler.

WILL HEAD CHAPTER: Roland T. Carr of Riggs National Bank will be installed next month as president of the Chesapeake Chapter of Robert Morris Associates. This was assured last night when he was elected first vice president of the group to fill a vacancy. Carr has been associated with Riggs since 1926 and at present is an assistant vice president.

Carr

In 1936 and 1937 he was winner of the annual essay contest sponsored by District Bankers Association and in 1938 and 1939 he placed second in the bankers' national oratorical contest.

INSURANCE: Washington sales of ordinary life insurance totaled $10,506,000 in March, a dip of 5 per cent compared with the same 1947 month. First-quarter sales here agregated $31,609,000, off 2 per cent from the like 1947 period. Nationally, insurance sales were off 3 per cent for March and were unchanged for the first three months this year. The figures are reported by the Life Insurance Agency Management Association of Hartford.

HOW'S BUSINESS: Media Records reported a 13.2 per cent increase in March newspaper advertising lineage in 52 cities . . . Building permit values in 215 cities rose in March to the highest level, with one exception, since April of 1929. Evaluations totaled $337,086,030 last month, a gain of 43 per cent over same 1947 month . . . Tire manufacturers shipped 5,106,335 casings in February, off 13.7 per cent from January . . . New orders booked by Westinghouse Electric corp. for first quarter hit a new peacetime high of $242,355,168 . . . From Detroit comes reliable report that "there is little chance this year's total auto output will evceed last year's 4,797,650 cars and trucks."

EARNINGS: Johns-Manville Corp. reported first quarter net income of $2,307,052, equal to 77 cents a common share, compared with $2,251,224, or 77 cents a share, in the 1947 period. Other income reports:

Chicago Grain

Chicago, April 21 (AP).—Grains ended higher today after a session of up and down moves. It took the market some time to make up its mind where it wanted to go, but in the last half hour a strong rally featured dealings. Final prices were about the day's best.

Late buying centered mostly in feed grains, particularly corn. Some buying was attributed to previous short sellers. It was supported by an expansion in movement of grain from here, shipping sales totaling 26,000 bushels of corn and 25,000 bushels of oats.

Wheat closed ½-1½ higher, May 2.53@2.53¼; corn was 2¼-3¾ higher, May 2.36¾@2.37. Oats were ¾-1⅜ higher, May, 1.17¼@1.17, and soybeans were 5 to 8 cents higher, May 4.12.

Most news favored higher prices, the single exception being that the Commodity Credit Corporation was not showing much interest in wheat offerings in the Southwest. However, the CCC bought a total of 1,210,930 bushels yesterday.

New York Cotton

New York, April 21 (AP).—Cotton futures advanced into new seasonal high ground today on a broad covering movement, stimulated by favorable news on cotton exports. Final prices were 90 cents to $2.30 a bale higher.

Old crop deliveries led the advance on the announcement that ERP cotton shipments are expected to be about 745,000 bales within the next 90 days. The Export-Import Bank also announced approval of a 20 million dollar contribution to the 90 million dollars private cotton purchase program for Japan. When the full plan is approved by the private banks and Army officials in Japan, another 300,000 bales will move to that country, traders estimated.

THE BALTIMORE AND OHIO RAILROAD COMPANY

Summary of Annual Report—1947

TO ALL SECURITY HOLDERS:

Industrial production in 1947 was maintained at a high level and the volume of freight transported by the Company was greater than for any preceding peacetime year. Total earnings were $367,600,700, but expenses reached an all-time high of $358,341,319, leaving net earnings of $9,259,381. Comparison with 1946 follows:

	1947		Comparison with 1946
EARNINGS:
From transportation of freight, passengers, mail, express, etc	$360,294,995	I	$35,310,279
From other sources—interest, dividends, rents, etc.	7,305,705	I	913,607
Total	$367,600,700	I	$36,222,886
EXPENSES:
Payrolls, materials, fuel, services and taxes	$327,355,362	I	$32,381,502
Interest, rents and miscellaneous services	31,086,057	D	857,066
Total	$358,341,319	I	$31,524,436
NET EARNINGS	$9,259,381	I	$4,698,452

The return on the Company's net investment of $956,423,361 in property devoted to transportation service was only 3.04%, or about half of the 6% considered a fair return.

Confronted by sharply higher wage and supply costs, and an inadequate return on investment in their properties, the railroads petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission during 1947 for increases in rates and fares. Two interim freight rate increases were granted, effective October 13, 1947 and January 5, 1948. It is estimated these interim increases will yield the Company 16% additional freight revenue annually based on present traffic volume. The Commission still has before it for final decision the petitions for permanent relief. Passenger fares were increased June 1, 1947 from 2.2 cents to 2.5 cents per mile in coaches, and from 3.3 cents to 3.5 cents per mile in Pullman cars. Increases in express rates and an interim increase in pay for handling railway mail were also authorized.

The acquisition of 30 powerful steam locomotives, seven Diesel passenger locomotives, 1,940 steel box cars, 7,365 steel hopper cars, 100 express cars, and miscellaneous passenger and work car units, at a cost of about $42,000,000, coupled with substantial improvements in line, track, terminals and structures at many points on the railroad, brought B&O's transportation efficiency up to the highest point in its history. With the delivery of 5,636 additional steel hopper cars, 40 Diesel road freight locomotives and 100 Diesel switchers, scheduled for 1948, it is believed the Company's freight handling equipment should be adequate to meet traffic requirements.

The Management acknowledges, with appreciation, the loyalty and efforts of officers and employees, and the cooperation of stockholders, patrons and agencies of the Government throughout the year.

Truman Sees Press Today

Daylight Saving Faces Delay Here

Other Cities Will Change Clocks Sunday; D. C. Bill Can't Reach House Before Monday

Washington will be behind the times of most other big cities this weekend.

The change-over from standard to daylight saving time in most United States cities at 2 a. m. on Sunday will be confusing enough to their citizens.

Even more confused will be those Washington citizens who will travel next week or who are concerned with radio networks, communications, stock market tickers and such human activities that are geared to out-of-town clocks.

For Representative Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.), chairman of the House District Committee, said yesterday he could not get the District daylight saving bill to the House floor before Monday. It would limit the change to this year while a Senate bill, already passed there, would permit the District to have DST whenever the Commissioners proclaim it, subject to public hearings.

Even if the House considers the measure on Monday and agrees with the Senate on it, it will probably require several days before the clocks can change officially.

Last year, Congress passed the enabling act on April 28, President Truman signed it on April 30, a hearing was held by the Commissioners on May 7, and it went into effect at 2 a. m. on May 11. That was two weeks after the rest of the Nation changed over.

Baltimore-Annapolis Bus Hearing Postponed

Baltimore, April 21 (AP).—The Public Service Commission has postponed indefinitely a hearing which had been set for next Tuesday on the application of the Baltimore & Annapolis Railroad for permission to start bus service between the two cities.

The PSC, in announcing the postponement yesterday, said it would set a new date soon.

The House Un-American Activities Committee postponed yesterday its final decision on a bill to curb communism.

With some members out of town, action now may be delayed until the first of the week.

Committee members claim support of the GOP leadership and a big majority of House members, and they hope for House passage before the end of the month.

Quarreling Wives Sentenced to Term Of Mutual Silence

Plymouth, England, April 21 (AP). Mrs. Winifred Wilkie and Mrs. M. P. Tope came into court yesterday and for 30 minutes Judge Scobell Armstrong listened to both of them talking at once about the troubles of the landlady with the tenant and vice versa.

Finally, Judge Scobell thundered, "Will you be quiet!" and delivered his verdict:

"For one month you both will pretend to be deaf and dumb. When you see each other not one word must be spoken. Write everything. No conversation at all."

Experts Tackle Basin Pollution

Harrisburg, Pa., April 21 (AP).—A newly organized technical committee today tackled the tough job of clearing pollution from the strategic Potomac River basin.

The committee was set up by the Interstate Commission for the Potomac River basin at the conclusion of a two-day meeting here yesterday.

The commission consists of representatives of Virginia, West Virginia, Maryland, Pennsylvania, District of Columbia and the Federal Government.

The commission announced that the job of the new committee will be to correlate all information available on pollution in the various States taking part in the drive.

Committee members are technical representatives to the commission.

A major problem before the commission was the development of ways and means to clean up polluted areas in the vicinity of the Nation's Capital.

John Nolen, Jr., a member of the District of Columbia's technical committee, said the task could be achieved only by complete coordination between the planning agencies of the Washington metropolitan area and those agencies which are responsible for sewage disposal from the suburban sections.

Group Health Votes Increase in Dues

Referendum Orders 50-Cent Hike for Adults, 25 Cents for Children, Beats Service Charges

Group Health Association members here have voted increase in their dues for participation in the nonprofit medical cooperative.

Results of a mailed referendum on the dues' question were announced yesterday by Assistant Secretary of the Interior William E. Warne, president of the organization.

New rates aprpoved by vote of four to one over an alternate proposel which would have instituted special service charges will go into effect May 1, Warne announced.

Warne said the referendum brought the largest vote response of any membership balloting in the cooperative's 11 years of operation here. About 9000 of GHA'S 14,700 participants were eligible to vote since dependents covered by the plan do not have voting privilege, he explained.

Members voted to raise their monthly dues 50 cents to $3.50 for adults; and 25 cents, to $2.25 for children. The vote also authorized raising a subscriber's minimum liability in maternity cases from the present $50 to $100, and discontinued or lowered special discount rates for prepayment and group payment of dues.

Warne announced that the new rate of subscribers' liability for maternity cases would become effective for births after September 30, this year.

Warne said the ballots first asked the members if they favored increasing the income of GHA, which they had been told was being forced to dip into reserves to meet an estimated monthly loss this year of $8150. The vote for this, he said, was 5 to 1.

Then they were asked to mark their choice of the two proposed plans for increasing income, (1) raising dues, and (2) special charges for services rendered.

Under the second proposition, members would be charged $1 for each clinic visit, $2.50 for each visit by physician, 25 cents plus serum costs for injections, and 25 cents plus material costs for laboratory work. Leaders of GHA said the service charge system would defeat the principles of a prepaid medical plan.

U. S. Help Back Of Iron Curtain Urged by Peter

London, April 21 (AP).—Former King Peter of Yugoslavia said today Marshall Plan aid should be extended not only to western Europe but to "people working behind the iron curtain and exiles from those countries."

He declared Yugoslavia would overthrow the Tito regime if it were possible to hold a free election, adding, "If we ever had a chance at an election like Italy we would make an even better showing against the Communists."

D. C. Infant Mortality Rates Drop, Still Top Average

Infant mortality rates in the District have followed the national downward trend but are still above the Nation's average.

Statistics released yesterday by Federal Security Agency's National Office of Vital Statistics show that for 1946 the national death rate average for infants under 1 year of age was 33.8 deaths for every 1000 live births.

Comparably, the tables compiled by the District Health Department show the District's rate was 38.1 per 1000 live births.

Statistics on the 1945 rates showed the national average was 38.3 and the District's 45.6 for that year.

High School Coaches Demand Higher Pay

Athletic instructors yesterday told the Board of Education they no longer will coach teams for interhigh competition unless they receive more pay.

A petition from the teachers was presented to the board by Superintendent of Schools Hobart M. Corning.

"We cannot continue to perform these voluntary extra assignments out of school time after September, 1948, unless we are properly compensated for the extra work," the teachers said.

The board referred the petition to Dr. Corning, instructing him to prepare a report comparing the time an athletic teacher spends in coaching duties with extra curricular duties performed by music and dramatic teachers and teachers "who have papers to correct."

In other actions yesterday board members:

Asked the Commissioners to appoint Dr. Corning to the committee that will draw up plans for a loyalty check of District employes including teachers.

Asked the Corporation Counsel to bring charges against Mrs. Edith P. Thomas, 4912 Ames st. ne., teacher at the Carver Elementary School, alleging conduct unbecoming a teacher. Mrs. Thomas was suspended in December after her husband gained a divorce in a suit charging adultery.

Heard a report from Daniel Leonard, director of the District Red Sross Safety Service, on the need to bring up to date first-aid training in the schools.

Retired four teachers with long records of service. They are:

Miss Elizabeth S. Dessez, 3815 Jenifer st. nw., librarian at Western High School, after 42 years.

Miss Gertrude G. Brown, 4424 P st. nw., art teacher at McKinley High School, after 40 years.

Mrs. Lenore M. Howe, 1100 F st. ne., shorthand and typing teacher at Eastern High School, 32 years.

Mrs. Alva McGuire, 1703 North Highland st., Arlington, teacher at the Hyde Elementary School, 30 years.

Big Peebles Tract Rezoning Ordered

Prince Georges Commissioners Divide Cheverly Area for Varied Development

Diversified rezoning to provide for industrial, apartment and commercial use of a 103-acre tract near Cheverly, Md., was granted yesterday by Prince Georges County commissioners.

The owner, David Meade Peebles, requested industrial zoning for the entire tract, which is between the Pennsylvania railroad and the Prince Georges Golf and Country Club.

A delegation of 50 citizens from nearby communities, however, opposed the all-industrial zoning, but agreed to the modified plan. The citizens were from North Englewood, Cheverly and Beaver Heights.

Half Industrial

Half of the tract adjacent to the railroad, the commissioners ruled, will be rezoned as industrial in conformance with Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission recommendations, with Peebles agreeing to give an 80-foot-wide strip, bisecting the tract, for extension of Minnesota ave.

On the other side of the avenue extension will be garden type apartments and commercial developments. Peebles agreed also to provide a trip along Beaver Dam branch for park and recreational purposes. Fred W. Tuemmler, county director of planning, said the proposed Annapolis Freeway will divide the proposed industrial zoning from homes in Cheverly.

Other Applications

In other actions, the commissioners approved six applications for commercial zoning, denied one commercial petition, and approved an apartment use zoning, an industrial and for two-family apartment projects.

Commercial zonings approved were: Emma Hagwell, two lots at 6008 Rhode Island ave., Riverdale; Ralph W. Powers, two lots on Odell rd., Roby's Addition to Beltsville; East Washington Railway Co. to commercial and industrial of two strips along the railroad on Eastern ave. and Eade st., near Roosevelt ave., Seat Pleasant; S. F. Richards, two lots on south side of Landover rd. adjacent to Cheverly Theater.

Clarence E. and Lillian B. Price, six lots on Baltimore blvd. near Pontiac st. Berwyn; Lee A. Cohee, portions of two lots fronting on Yale ave., north of Hartwick rd., College Park, the remaining portions to be utilized for off-street parking.

The application denied was that of Robert H. Hooe, asking commercial zoning for a part of a lot on Riverdale rd., at Auburn ave., Wildercroft, which the park and planning commission and four residents of the neighborhood had opposed.

Branchville Decision

The application of Frank M. Stephen, attorney for O. B. Zantzinger, jr., asking industrial zoning for three acres at the southwest corner of Greenbelt rd. and Baltimore & Ohio Railroad, Branchville, was approved.

Elmer Gardens, Inc., was granted appartment classification for two tracts on Hamilton st. between Edmonston rd. and 56th ave., near Rogers Heights.

Two-family dwelling rezonings were granted to Adelena W. Robinson on three lots on 49ths st. north of Bensing rd., Hillside, for which apartment use had ben requested; Archie F. and Hilda M. Poole on the lot at 5307 41st pl. Hyattsville Hills; Lola R. Edlavitch on six and one-half acres along Northwest Branch between Brentwood and Hyattsville; and Harry Poretsky on property on Riggs rd. between Shidan st. and Somerset pl., Chillum Terrace.

Legion Auxiliary Sponsors Tick Shots

Leonardtown, Md., April 21 (Spl.). The American Legion Auxiliary Post Stalling Williams No. 206 of Calvert County has announced it will administer tick fever vaccine. Dr. Hugh Ward of the county health department is sponsoring the prevention campaign.

Those wishing to be inoculated may call Sadie Stallings at West Beach, Md. Phone NB. 193-R for appointment.

Fairfax Supervisors Uphold Clinic Eviction Order

Fairfax County Board of Supervisors yesterday upheld a ruling ordering the Alexandria Mental Health Clinic to vacate Wellington Villa, on grounds its location violates county zoning regulations.

The County Zoning Board of Appeals ordered the clinic to move last month, but the decision was appealed to the supervisors. The ruling gives the clinic 100 days to move.

The clinic moved into Wellington Villa last December, unable to locate office space in Alexandria. The building, which they rent for $1 a year, is on land zoned "rural residence."

Residents objected to the location on grounds it might be an "opening wedge" for commercialization of the residential area.

The clinic is financed by the Alexandria Community Chest and State and Federal Governments.

The supervisors postponed action on the budget. Supervisor G. Wallace Carper was absent. The budget must be adopted by April 30.

Finn Ronne to Speak

Coan Smashes 3-Run Homer, Nats Win Again, 6-3

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

THE SEASON hasn't opened yet for Yogi Berra of the Yankees but it could happen any day now that his wounds are healing. The Yogi, who is built like a fireplug, could hardly be called the brittle type but the Yankees are never surprised when he's a medical case. Berra is their No. 1 catcher and also their No. 1 patient.

POVICH

Right now Yogi is burdened with a split throwing hand, something he picked up in Birmingham a couple of weeks ago. He was behind the bat, as the battery mate of Joe Page, but he didn't catch anything. The first pitch Page threw was fouled off. The second one tore into Berra's bare hand and whacked him out of the season's opener.

He broke the same hand at Newark a couple of years ago. That was the same season he got himself spiked in the head of all places. He was out of the lineup for 15 days this spring after twisting his ankle in a slide against the Dodgers at Clearwater, and the first day he returned to the lineup he was struck on the same ankle by a foul off his own bat and was hors de combat again.

THE YANKEES are a less somber outfit whether Berra is in the ball game or on the bench. They call him Little King Kong and prod him into the little Yogi-isms that they like to retell around the circuit. Like the time Berra was boasting about his new car and saying "I made 200 miles in two hours wid it."

There was some skepticism about that kind of speed, even in a new car and Yogi at the wheel, and Bucky Harris said it wasn't possible. "Why not?" countered Berra, "I was averaging 60 miles an hour all the way."

He's a favorite with his Yankee teammates and he goes big in St. Louis, too, where he's a home-town boy. Like the night in St. Louis last summer when his old pals from Dago Hill presented him with a traveling bag in home plate ceremonies and Yogi, quite overwhelmed, stepped to the microphone and malapropped "I want to thank everybody for making this night necessary."

IN WASHINGTON this week, Yogi bought his girl an engagement ring. They're going to be married at the end of the baseball season, he says. He tells the Yankees all about his girl. One of 'em asked him if she really loved him and Yogi said yeah, he guessed so, "but she's never seen me in the day time."

It's going to be a double wedding, in St. Louis, he says. He and Joe Garagiola, the Cardinals' catcher, are going to the altar with their brides on the same day. That is not surprising either. Berra and Garagiola are no kin but they have more in common than any two players who ever came into the big leagues, it seems.

Berra and Garagiola came off the lots in the same Italian section of St. Louis. Their fathers work in the same brickyard, their brothers work in the same Italian restaurant. They both got tryouts with the Cardinals and they both had a great first year in the majors. They both ended up as catchers.

THE YANKEES had him on their Norfolk, Va., farm in the Piedmont League when one day they suddenly began to take notice of him. During one two-game series he drove in the unheard of total of 23 runs all by himself, and they promoted him to Newark as an outfielder. They brought him up to the Yanks last spring as an outfielder, discovered he could catch, too, and he finished up as their regular catcher.

In the World Series, the Dodgers stole everything except Berra's chest protector and the rumor was that he foiled them in that respect by having it tatooed on himself. He had a bad series, but in his completely uninhibited way he explained everything satisfactorily to all interviewers by saying, "Jeez, weren't you ever scared yourself?"

Branch Rickey invited Berra to the Cardinals' training camp before the war, along with Garagiola. He kept the latter as a prospect, but turned Yogi loose, saying, "He'd never be a big league ballplayer." Yogi relates that story himself, adding, "You know, I never did think that guy was telling the truth."

NATS MAKE DOUBLE PLAY—Mickey Vernon receives the ball from Mark Christman a step ahead of Tommy Henrich and two Yanks are blotted out in the third inning of yesterday's game. Henrich rapped a bounder to the box which Mickey Haefner threw to Christman, who forced George Stirnweiss and rifled to Vernon to complete the twin killing

AND SO DO THE YANKEES—After taking Phil Rizzuto's toss and stepping on second to force Sherry Robertson, Yankee George Stirnweiss completes the double play by throwing to First Baseman Steve Souchock in time to nip Mark Christman. Christman grounded to Rizzuto to set up the play. This action occured in the second inning of the Griffith Stadium game which the Nats won, 6-3

DiMag Hits 440-Foot Home Run For Yankees

By Shirley Povich
Post Reporter

The Yankees made the most hits yesterday but Gil Coan made the best hit—a three-run swat over the right field wall—and the slightly amazing Nats won another ball game, a Gil-edged 6-3 victory.

Coan's home run wasn't the longest blow of the afternoon. Joe DiMaggio claimed that one with a fierce blast against Mickey Haefner that settled into the dead center bleachers 440 feet distant, but Coan's wallop was the most productive.

It occurred in the third inning when the Nats were struggling to dig out of a 2-1 deficit and two were on base. It was a case of extremes by Coan who had struck out ingloriously in the first inning. On this next trip he lined one of Vic Raschi's pitches on a hurried flight far beyond the high fence.

Haefner went all the way to be the winning pitcher despite nine Yankee hits against the Nats' seven. They rapped him for two runs in the first inning but got no more until they stirred up a one run rumpus in the ninth.

Nat Fielding Is Supurb

Haefner didn't exactly baffle the Yankees all the way. The Nats rescued him with fielding feats that transported the 6905 customers, particularly the contribution of Earl Wooten in center field in the sixth inning.

Little Wooten dashed the Yankees' hopes on a tremendous drive by Bill Johnson with Lindell on second base. The ball headed for the fence in deepest center, and so did Wooten. Three times Wooten took backward glances on the dead run and ended with his shoulder blades against the fence and the ball secure in the webbing of his outstretched glove for a one-hand catch that was incredible.

Haefner also owes a nod to Eddie Yost, who, showing no trace of his opening-game jitters, robbed Johnny Lindell and Phil Rizzuto of hits in the eighth and ninth to help Haefner over the hump in those innings.

Yanks Takes 2-0 Lead

DiMaggio's homer with two out after Stirnweiss singled moved the Yankees into a 2-0 lead in the first inning, but Mark Christman averted even a worse fate for Haefner with a one-hand pickup of Henrich's drive. Souchock tripled off the wall in center following DiMaggio's homer, but was stranded.

The Nats for the third straight day also scored in the first inning. Al Kozar's fly ball rode the high wind to the right-field wall for a double and after Vernon walked, Wooten's single to center with two out, got Kozar home. Vernan ran the Nats out of the inning when he insanely tried to take third on Joe DiMaggio's throwing arm.

Yost and Kozar set the stage for Coan's homer in the third by drawing a walk and singling to left, respectively. The Nats, not content with a 4-2 lead, piled two more runs into the inning. Vernon walked and all hands were safe when Vernon beat Souchock's throw to second on Wooten's bunt. Robertson sacrificed, and Christman singled to center for the fourth and fifth runs of the inning.

That's all the Nats ever did get. Karl Drews relieved Raschi from that point and held the Nats to one hit—Kozar's seventh inning single—for the rest of the day.

Ferrick and Thompson were warming up on the sidelines in the eighth and ninth when the Yanks started to become obstreperous. With one out and one on in the eighth, however, Yost made a leaping catch of Lindell's line drive to get Haefner out of trouble.

In the ninth, Johnson singled with one out, and Yost again defanged the Yanks. Rizzuto laid down a neat bunt but Yost, with a one-hand pick-up and throw from off-balance whipped him out at first. A single by Niarhos scored Johnson, and pinch hitter Charley Keller drew a walk. But Haefner got out of trouble completely on Stirnweiss' soft fly to Robertson.

Bums Use 24 Players, But Bow, 9-5

New York, April 21 (AP).—The New York Giants outscrambled Brooklyn today, 9-5, in a three-hour travesty of major league baseball in whic hthe Dodgers set a new record by using 24 men.

Manager Leo Durocher threw everybody but the bat boy into the fray.

Five homers, three by Dodgers, were unloaded to the amusement of 21,388 spectators. Big Jawn Mize obliged with No. 1 of the season and Sid Gordon also hit one into the seats for the Giants. Arky Vaughan hammered two, one inside the park, and Carl Furillo banged the third for Brooklyn.

Sheldon Jones, Manager Ott's hope to bolster his weak pitching corps, wa sawarded the decision although he needed help from reliable Ken Trinkle in the eighth. Ralph Branca, knocked out in the second, was the Brooks' loser.

Durocher's use of 24 players bettered the old mark for a nine-inning game. It, of course, also was held by Brooklyn against the Giants in 1937.

Vander Meer Wild, Cards Trip Reds, 5-2

St. Louis, April 19 (AP).—Johnny (No-Hit) Vander Meer couldn't find the plate today, and the St Louis Cardinals made it two in a row over the Cincinnati Reds with a 5-2 victory. Vandy issued 12 walks before he was relieved by Harry Gumbert in the eighth.

The 4045 fans who braved the chilly weather were rewarded with a fine performance by big Red Munger, who yielded only five hits.

Second Baseman Red Schoendienst became the first Cardinal casualty of the young season, leaving the game with a sprained thumb in the fourth when Hank Sauer's line drive caromed off his glove for a safety. The injury was ont considered serious.

Ben's 'Happy' at Navy

Caps Try to Replace Auerbach; Carnevale Turns Down Offer

Although Owner Mike Uline denied it last night, The Washington Post learned that the job was offered to Ben Carnevale, Naval Academy coach, who rejected the offer.

From Annapolis, Carnevale admitted he had been offered the position but "after thinking about it for a week I decided not to accept it. They made me a very flattering offer, but I'm very happy at the Naval Academy."

Won't Say He's Retaining Red

Although he branded the Carnevale story as "not true," Owner Uline would not say that he planned to retain Auerbach, whose contract comes up for renewal shortly.

"We don't plan a change, at this time," he added, "but Carnevale is a mighty fine coach."

Auerbach, 31-year-old former GW basketball star who led the Caps to the Eastern Division championship in his first season as coach in 1947, said he had heard nothing about it.

Auerbach was in conference with Uline as late as yesterday afternoon and said Uline did not mention the subject in their talk.

Since the close of the season, Auerbach has busied himself attending college tournaments and scouting ballplayers.

Auerbach Surprised

News that Carnevale had been offered his job came as a great surprise to Auerbach. Although he admitted that he hadn't discussed his job with Uline, Auerbach said not once has he been led to believe that the would not be retained.

Auerbach was chiefly responsible for professional basketball coming to Washington and also is credited with providing the Caps with the two fine teams they have had.

It was he who sold Uline on the idea of pro basketball for Washington and he also rounded up Bob Feerick, John Mahnken and Bones McKinney for the nucleus of the Caps.

Red Rounded Up Stars

In his first year as a pro coach, Auerbach guided the Caps to 49 victories in 60 games, although his team was eliminated in the first round of the championship playoffs.

This season his team finished with a 28-20 record in the Western Division, a better showing than Philadelphia, which won the Eastern championship.

Although they tied Baltimore and Chicago for second place in the Western bracket, the Caps were ousted by the Stags in the elimination series for a playoff berth.

Cub Rally Tops Pirates, 6-3

Pittsburgh, April 21 (AP).—Pushing over five runs in the last two innings, the Chicago Cubs defeated the Pittsburgh Pirates 6-3 today before a chilled crowd of 5,555.

Hank Borowy and Ernie Bonham, former teammates on the New York Yankes, were the starting hurlers but both were knocked out. Borowy got credit for the Cubs victory, however. He was relieved in the ninth after the Pirates had scored once and filled the bases with two out.

Bonham also left the hill in the ninth. His successor, Forrest Main, gave up one single for a run and walked in two others. The Cubs scored their first three runs on homers by Bill Nicholson and Andy Pafko.

D. C. Colleges Post Heavy Relays Entry

Probably the largest collegiate track force ever to represent Washington in an out-of-town meet will compete in the Penn relays at Philadelphia Friday and Saturday, a survey of local colleges reveals.

Only George Washington and Wilson Teachers will not enter men in the annual highlight of the national track and field program.

Howard University, with its mile relay team, will be the only defending champion from D. C. The foursome that won last year's College Class Mile will be intact except for the position taken over by Louis Russell this season. Other members are Basil Keane, Harry Bright and Bill Collins.

The Bisons also plan to enter at least three men in individual events—Dubie Doub in the high jump and Roger Goodson and Tankard Marshall in the broad jump.

3 Teams In Mile

Although Maryland will boast the largest entry of any local school—14 men—the event of widest interest locally will be the Mason-Dixon Conference Mile in which three Washington teams will compete.

Catholic University, putting its hopes in Jim Zuppa, Don Griffey, Rod Jackson and Johnny Rudd, was second only to John Hopkins last year. American University banks on a foursome composed of Al Nencioni, Vic Penso, Ralph Edwards an dSteve Dalsheim, while Gallaudet hopefuls will be Bill Lockhart, Mark Wait, Bob Collins and Bill Ruge with Bob McClellan in reserve.

With its heavy entry list and the experience of its performers, Maryland considers itself a dark horse for team honors. So far Terp trackmen during the spring have whipped Navy and Virginia Tech in dual meets and scored a sweep in the carolina Relays.

Georgetown pins its championship hopes on its freshman mile relay team, composed of John Lynch, Joe Deady, Vincent Cino and Bob Spearman. In four starts this year the team has won twice and finished second twice. Its last winning effort in the Seton Hall Relays was in the sparkling time of 3.27.4.

Johnnies Score, 7-5

Dave Waldron drove in three runs with two singles to lead St. John's to a 7-5 six-inning victory over Roosevelt yesterday on the Ellipse. Teammate Don Kokes batted in two more runs with a pair of singles to give the Johnnies their first win in three starts.

Connie Mack, 85, Puts His 'Aging' Son on the Bench

Boston, April 21 (AP).—"After all you must realize the boy is getting up in years," said 85-year-old Connie Mack today when asked why he benched son Earle, age 55.

Earle has been first base coach for the Athletics for the past few years. The elder Mack appointed utility infielder Skeeter Webb to the post yesterday.

"It is not an important job," said Connie, "but we must have a man there and Webb will always be ready to fill in the infield if something bad turns up."

"Earle will be my advisor as he always has been. The only difference is he will sit beside me all through the game instead of every half inning."

Eastern Beats Mt. Vernon, 5-2

The timely hitting of Sal DeGiorgi and the fine relief pitching of Jimmy O'Donnell enabled Eastern High's Ramblers to down Mount Vernon of Alexandria, 5-2, yesterday at Eastern.

De Giorgi swatted a two-run triple in the fifth to put Eastern ahead, 3-2, and then scored on Dave Zatz's squeeze bunt. O'Donnell relieved Lefty Joe Graves in the sixth with the bases loaded and none out.

O'Donnell made the first Mountie batter he faved hit into a double play via home plate to first. The next hitter bounced out to O'Donnell to retire the side scoreless.

The victory was the fourth straight for undefeated Eastern. Mount Vernon, which won its first eight in a row, lost its second in two days.

Hammer's Long Fly Wins Game

Philadelphia, April 21 (AP).—Granville Hamner's long fly with the bases loaded in the thirteenth inning gave the Phillies their seconn straight victory over the Boston Braves, 4-3, today.

The Phils had loaded the bases at the expense of Ernie White on two walks, a sacrifice and a wild throw.

Relief Pitcher Ed Heusser, who pitched only a third of an inning, received credit for the victory. Starter Schoolboy Rowe hurled nine innings and was relieved by Keen Heintjelman.

The Braves took a 1-0 lead in the second on Jeff Heath's double and Billy Salkeld's single. Andy Seminick's two-run homer in the fourth put the Phils ahead but the Braves tied it in the eighth on Jim Russell's walk and Earl Torgeson's double.

Each team scored in the ninth to send the game into extra innings. Pinchhitter Frank McCormick brought the Braves' run home and a wild throw permitted the Phils to knot the count.

Ott Suspends Ailing (?) Kerr

New York, April 21 (AP).—Manager Mel Ott got tough with Buddy Kerr today, suspending the New York Giants' shortstop indefinitely because Ott said he refused to play.

Kerr, sidelined since he was hit in the head by a thrown ball in an exhibition game at Topeka, Kas., April 14, had been in and out of doctors' offices for the past week. There is some confusion about his fitness for play.

The Giants insist that they have assurances from specialists in both New York and Cleveland that his appearance in the lineup would lead to no injurious after-effects.

Ott said Kerr told him yesterday the doctor advised him to take it easy in returning to the lineup. Ott said the same doctor had told him (Ott) that the infielder was ready to play.

"I thought he was going to play yesterday," said Ott, who never before had suspended a player although he once fined Bill Voiselle $500 for a bad pitch.

"An hour before game time," Ott said, "he showed up in street clothes. He was out here this morning and that's when this happened. He refused to play."

Kerr was a holdout in early spring, finally settling for a reported $19,000 as a compromise between the bid and asked prices of $18,000 and $20,000. He was bothered by a sore arm and missed several spring games but was the club's top hitter when injured at Topeka.

Classed with Marty Marion and Pee Wee Reese as the best shortstops in the National League, Kerr hit .287 in 138 games with last year's fence-busting Giants. He is only 25 years old and a key man in the flag hopes of the homer-hitting New York club.

Jake Dohner's three singles in four trips led George Washington High of Alexandria to a 6-3 victory over Episcopal of Alexandria yesterday at Episcopal.

HERE'S WHY THIS GREAT NEW TIRE WILL MODERNIZE YOUR CAR!

Conventional Tire	Super-Cushion
28 to 32 lbs. of air pressure	More Air—But only 24 lbs. of air pressure
Ordinary ride	New softer ride

1. Softer ride! The Super-Cushion—made only by Goodyear—is bigger and softer. It runs on only 24 pounds of air. You get a softer ride, and a wonderful new ease and stability in car handling. Leading car makers, amazed at its performance, adopted it for their new cars.

2. Absorbs shock! Conventional tires absorb vertical shock. But pillowy Super-Cushions do it far better—and are the first tires ever made that absorb lateral shock satisfactorily! They soak up jolts and vibration. Result: less wear on your car—and fewer repair bills!

1898 GOODYEAR 50 ANNIVERSARY 1948

3. More mileage, too! Super-Cushions consistently average more mileage than the best standard tires. (They run cooler, build up less air pressure.) Because they have a larger contact area with the road, you get better traction—less skid, quicker stops!

Daily Dip Rallies to Win Feature

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Harve de Grace, Md., April 21.—Wingy, a fleet 2-year-old, lived up to his name today and flew a half mile to equal the track record.

Carrying the colors of J. R. Funkhouser, whose farm is near Charles Town, and saddled by Charles M. Feltner, whose name is in Berryville, Va., the son of Tinagel won by five lengths in :46 35-5, matching the effort of Warmonger last Saturday.

The tim eis remarkable when it is considered the previous mark had stood on the books sinc e1922. In the meanwhile some of the Nation's best juveniles have had a crack at it.

Wingy operated today with Apprentice George Pappas in the saddle and the two youngsters gave their backers little opportunity for worry. Wingy simply went to the front when his rider asked and it was all over but the $6.20 payoff.

Wind Helped

The track was as fast as it ever will be and Wingy was aided somewhat by having the wind behind him during the stretch run.

Carrying 115 pounds, Wingy was not hurried as he broke. Peppers O and Eternal Danger hopped out to fight for the lead and were in the midst of a pace-making struggle when Wingy began his serious running.

Pappas brought the gelding around the outside of the front pair, shook them off apparently without effort and then coasted the youngster into the wire. Eternal Danger held on to be second a length and a half in advance of Peppers O.

The victory was the second in eight tries this year for Wingy although all his races in Florida last winter were good efforts.

H. G. Bedwell's Daily Dip, off last in a field of eight, was a going-away winner of the Bel Air, a six furlong sprint. The 4-year-old colt closed with a mighty rush to defeat E. Lasker's Floodtown by a nose margin. Two lengths farther back came Mrs. J. J. Kates' Transair to be third.

A crowd of 7000, watching racing at this point after a two-day lay-off, installed Floodtown the favorite. Backers of Daily Dip collected at the rate of $13 for each $2 investment. The winning 4-year-old was clocked in an excellent 1:11 1-5.

Golf Notes

This Little Caddy Obeyed His Orders

By Roger Wolbarst
Post Reporter

ON FREQUENT OCCASIONS golfers lose patience with their caddies when the little boy carrying the big bag loses sight of a nice drive or hands the wrong club to the guy in the rough.

But take it from a Prince Georges golfer, who through his own request shall be anonymous, the caddies today are marvelous. Why? Because during the war they were so terrible in comparison.

It seems that one day four years ago he was playing in the company of a friend and as the men reached the green for some crucial putts, the caddy made no move to hold the pin.

The men dropped their putts, walked to the next tee, socked their drives and started down the fairway. When they were about 100 yards from the tee, one of the men stopped, startled. His companion followed his eyes until he saw the object of his friends astonished look.

It was the caddy who had been tardy in holding the pin on the previous green. The boy was now carrying the pin and its flag.

"You told me back there to hold onto the flag, sir, so here it is," the boy replied.

Cards Avenge Loyola Loss, 3-2

Beaten a week ago, 6-3, by Loyola, the Cards came from one run behind to score two in the six on three Loyola errors and singles by Ned Cousey and Pitcher Paul Dare.

When Loyola came back to tie it a 2 all in the top of the eighth, Catholic U. put across the clincher in the last of the inning. Joe Hallissey followed Hank Zurawel's single with a fielder's choice, stole second, and atllied on Bill Connelly's single.

It was a well-played game, the only errors coming during C. U.'s two-run sixth. The win was the third in four games for the Cardinals.

The Federal Diary

Committee Approves Security Discharges For Nine Agencies

SECURITY: The Senate Armed Forces Committee yesterday approved a bill to give nine agency heads the authority to fire their employes summarily in the interest of national defense. The agencies are:

State, Army, Navy, Air Forces, Atomic Energy, Coast Guard, National Defense, National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, and the National Security Resources Board.

Any employe who is fired under the bill could appeal to the Civil Service Commission and it would have the authority, if it wished, to find him a job in another Federal agency.

STATE: William T. Stone will sign June 1 as director of State's Office of Information and Educational Exchange. He'll take a long rest to relax. Stone was the spark-plug of the old OWI and the State information office.

Assistant State Secretary George V. Allen in charge of public affairs, has ordered a reorganization of the information office. The educational exchange part will be made a separate unit. Other changes also are being planned, as the office will greatly expand its Voice of America programs.

UPWA: The left-wing bloc in its Local 10 has taken its first licking from the Build-the-Union and independent groups. The local is made up of Labor Department, Federal Security, Howard University and Freedmen's Hospital workers.

The first defeat was on a foreign policy resolution. The local's executive board indorsed one which, in effect, took no stand on foreign policy. The opposition countered with a resolution to support CIO foreign policy and the Marshall Plan which was approved. The left-wingers adopted the Wallace-Taylor line and urged that ECA funds be administered through the United Nations. This move, too, was defeated.

The Build-the-Union group won a second victory when the local went on record for election of national officers by referendum. Officers are now elected at a convention.

Three of the eight members elected to attend next month's convention were supported by antiadministration forces. They were Jean Clements of Labor, Harold Lewis of Howard, and Leon Condel of Freedmen's.

Trouble started for the CIO's United Public Workers at its last convention, two years ago, when it adopted a pro-Russian, anti-American foreign policy.

STENOGRAPHERS need to take dictation at only 80 words a minute to qualify for a Civil Service job. The rate had been 96 words a minute. But Civil Service was forced to lower the standard because of the acute shortage of shorthand writers. Civil Service reports it has a large number of openings in Federal agencies here for stenographers. The jobs pay a minimum to start of $2168 and promotions are rapid.

JOBS: Civil Service exams for eight types of skilled-trade jobs in the Naval Gun Factory and other activities here and nearby are now open. They are for painter, pipefitter, plasterer, sailmaker, sandblaster, upholsterer, wharfbuilder and ordnance operative. The jobs pay from $7.52 to $13.04 a day.

NOTES: Senator Chavez (D., N. Mex.) will speak at a meeting tomorrow night in the Commerce Auditorium to be sponsored by the UPWA. Arthur Stein and Tom Richardson, union officials, also will speak . . . Arlington Farms, the big G-Girl dormitories, will accept applicants from new Federal workers through April 30. And it's a good bet the time will be extended after that date . . . State will soon ask Congress to set up three assistant secretaryships on a permanent basis. The law that created them will expire soon.

BEP: The 1800 or so per diem employes in the Bureau of Engraving & Printing will not have their pay raises made retroactive to January 1. In fact, the increases, which average about 11 per cent, aren't likely to be made effective until July 1.

USES: The annual budget for the U. S. Employment Service will be reported to the House early next week by its Appropriations Committee. It's a good bet that (1) the President's budget for USES will be whacked, and (2) that it will carry a rider to force its transfer to the Federal Security Agency as of July 1.

REORGANIZATION: The committee headed by former President Herbert Hoover which is studying reorganization of the Government has made these additional appointments:

Dr. Frederick C. Mills of the National Bureau of Economic Research will make a study of the Government's statistical services; Emmett J. Leahy of the National Records Management Council, will study record management problems. He'll be assisted by Dr. Wayne Grover of National Archives, Robert Rahmer of the Army, Herbert Angell of Navy, and Edward Wilbur of the Budget Bureau, and

H. Struve Hensel, former Assistant Navy Secretary, and Prof. John Millett of Columbia University will assist Mr. Hoover in a study of the office of the President.

Plane Crash Heroine Gets $25,000 for 1945 Injuries

Mrs. V. H. Ulen Spent Seven Hours Seeking Help After Accident On Glade Mountain

A Washington woman who won the Carnegie Medal for heroism in a 1459 Virginia plane crash, has been awarded $25,000 for injuries she suffered.

Judgment for that amount was entered in District Court yesterday for Mrs. Violet Howard Ulen and another $2500 was granted her husband, Capt. Francis G. Ulen, 4000 Cathedral ave. nw.

Mrs. Ulen was a passenger aboard on Glade Mountain, near Rural Retreat, Va., before dawn February 23, 1945. Seventeen persons were killed.

Pinned under wreckage, Mrs. Ulen worked her way free in freezing rain and snow. Despite a fractured collar bone, broken ribs and cuts, she walked seven hours seeking help for the survivors. She suffered badly frostbitten feet in the long mountainside trek.

The case, settled by the jury Tuesday, was a test of the 14-year-old Warsaw Convention agreement, which generally limits damages which may be awarded to an international air passenger to $8291 unless the passenger can prove willful misconduct on part of the airline. She was en route to Mexico City.

It also was a test under the agreement whereby a husband may sue for loss of his wife's services as a result of an accident.

New Iron Lung Aids Rare Case

Havre de Grace, Md., April 21 (AP). The iron lung respirator given Harford Memorial Hospital by the Aberdeen American Legion Post is keeping its first patient alive and he is one of the rarest cases in medical history.

Earl Montgomery of Liberty Grove, Md., was stricken four weeks ago with infectious mononucleosis, a blood disease which has many characteristics common to polio.

The virus infection attacked cells of the spinal column and worked upward until it had paralyzed the nerves which control his breathing muscles. In most cases the disease is mild and never attacks the nerves.

Montgomery has been in the respirator a week now. He can remain outside only 30 minutes in every 24 hours.

Sasscer Demands Academy Airport

Annapolis, Md., April 21 (AP). Representative Lansdale G. Sasscer (D., Md.), speaking at a rally here last night, said that the Naval Academy might be "imperiled" if Congress does not approve an academy airport.

Several Anne Arundel County leaders urged the renomination of Sasscer from the Fifth Congressional District in the May 3 Democratic primary.

Those who spoke in support of Sasscer were State Senator Wilbur R. Dulin, former Senator Louis N. Phipps, Mayor William U. McCready, and Delegate Clarence W. Tyler. Presiding was James C. Morton, State's attorney.

Two Sentenced In Prostitution

Baltimore, April 21 (AP).—Two-year sentences were imposed on two Hagerstown residents today when they pleaded guilty to Federal charges that they transported women there to work in houses of prostitution.

Federal Judge William C. Coleman imposed the sentences on Milton W. Stoneberger and Helen Lee Rollison, both 28. Stoneberger lived at Roxbury, Md., before he moved to Hagerstown. The woman originally was from Bluefield, W. Va.

The two who pleaded guilty today were charged with transporting a woman from Lynchburg, Va., to Hagerstown—across State lines for immoral purposes and debauchery

Girl Gets Scholarship

Fredericksburg, Va., April 21 (Spl.).—Miss Virginia Elise Spickard, Dundalk, Md., a senior at Mary Washington College of the University of Virginia, has been awarded a scholarship in art at Johns Hopkins University where she will study for her master's degree next year.

Road Officers Reelected

Winchester, Va., April 21 (AP). Stockholders of the Winchester & Western Railroad Co. have reelected John G. Fosbrink, president, L. L. Shreck, vice president, and Meriel E. Fosbrink, secretary-treasurer. The line connects with the Baltimore & Ohio.

DAR Hears of War Danger From Royall

Gen. Arnold Also Warns 'Tomorrow May Bring Another Pearl Harbor'

might reach our land," Royall said.

"And as far as possible we should also prevent the use of even more distant sites, from which sporadic missions could be launched against our cities and our industrial centers—and against our atomic and other vital installations.

"Even a better defense—as well as the only thinkable form of offense—is, in the event we are attacked, to carry the war away from our own yard and into that of the enemy. This means if we are attacked, we must hold and defend still more distant bases—bases sufficiently near to any hostile land for repetitive and decisive bombing raids against that land."

Isolationist View Denounced

Denouncing an isolationist view at this time, General Arnold told his listeners that "peace is hindered, not helped, by those who refuse to believe that it is necessary to 'keep your powder dry'."

Col. Louis Johnson, former Assistant Secretary of War and past national commander of the American Legion, another speaker, declared, "I think we have to recognize that if the Russians attempted to seize western Europe, the United States would be in danger so great we should have to become an armed camp. Even then the northeastern United States would be within range of Russian bombing planes. The Atlantic Ocean these days is not very broad.

Representative Frances P. Bolton (R., Ohio) told DAR members that Americans "seem to have lost something vital of the faith which lived in the hearts of the early settlers. This cannot be disregarded for it is dangerous when a nation turns away from its God."

New Building Authorized

On the domestic front, DAR delegates yesterday morning voted by 950 to 210 to authorize its National Board of Management to spend up to $900,000 for a new building on the DAR grounds.

President General Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, whose administration had announced this to be its single building project, told delegates, "You have done a valiant piece of work this morning."

The program was not adopted without vocal dissent, however. Mrs. E. W. Mollahan, 1670 Primrose rd. nw., Washington, told the assembly, "I am very proud to be a daughter. But I must say I can't think that this is the time to build." She added that large companies now spending for building projects have "billions behind them," and that the DAR is not so well financed.

Mrs. Joseph Erdlets, Butte, Mont., declared, "We may be able to obtain the money for this project, but the boys who have been at the front need our first consideration. Building material and labor costs today are 25 to 30 per cent more than they were two years ago. Will it hurt us as an organization to wait a year or two—even if we are a little bit crowded?"

Veterans' Needs Cited

Mrs. Erdlets said she did not think the DAR should consider a building project at a time when veterans were faced with the housing shortage.

Mrs. Ober Dewitt Warthen, a vice president general and one of the national officers who supported the administration's project, retorted:

"As for soldiers needing homes, our building will be of limestone, and I believe very few of them will want to use limestone for their houses."

"For three years," she said, "my husband and I have waited to build a house. We now are building it, and paying two or three times what we could have built it for three years ago. I cannot possibly see where materials or wages will be decreased in the future. They may even increase in cost. We can build as cheaply now as ever."

Another national officer who advocated the building program because of existing space shortages, Mrs. Van Court Carwithen, historian general, said, "You can't blame me if my nose is shiny. It's had to be powdered in a telephone booth."

Increase Spaces Provided

As proposed, the addition to existing DAR structures would permit more than a 100 per cent increase in office space, 30 per cent increase in museum space, 100 per cent in library space, and would allow 2680 square feet for voting.

Another aspect of the space situation bobbed up when delegates were considering bylaws changes. They voted down unanimously a proposal to increase the number of delegates by 40, greater than the capacity of the hall. Delegates who spoke against the amendment said alternates could not find seats in the hall now, although their expenses to attend congresses parallel those of delegates.

Also approved unanimously was a proposal to limit campaigning for national offices to the year preceding election of such officers.

THE "AYES" HAVE IT—Mrs. Frank L. Nason of Boston, chairman of tellers, counts delegates voting for the DAR building program. Those standing vote "aye," those sitting, "nay"

"NO," says Mrs. Joseph Erdlets of Butte, Mont.

ANOTHER "YES" from Mrs. David Jackman of Wichita, Kans.

By Gene Jones—The Washington Post

ANOTHER "NO" from Mrs. E. W. Mollohan of 1607 Primrose st. nw.

THIS IS WHAT THEY VOTED FOR—Architect's drawing of proposed $900,000 Administration Building, which the DAR Congress authorized for construction. Plans call for its erection between Constitution and Continental Halls

Rogers and Higgins Architects

National DAR officers hold three-year terms.

Mrs. David D. Caldwell, chairman of the buildings and grounds committee, prepared delegates for a change in policy of renting Constitution Hall to outside interests when she pointed out:

"Whereas we have been most fortunate in the great number of rentals made this season, the promoters of the various enterprises have suffered large financial losses. These losses have been so great that our reputable concert promoters have decided to curtail their activities greatly for the coming season, and the continuance of our great symphony orchestra in Washington is doubtful at present, due to its inability to raise sufficient funds for another year.

"The problem presented to the management of the hall is how to make up for this loss of rentals, by exploring new fields of potentialities. It is with every confidence of success that this situation is faced by our manager, and I am happy to say to you that it will be met."

After afternoon adjournment, delegates reassembled in Constitution Hall last night to hear reports of State Regents, and nominations for two honorary vice presidents general and six vice presidents general.

Late filers in the race for vice president general were Mrs. Hugh L. Russell, of Louisville, Ky., and Mrs. James F. Byers, of St. Petersburg, Fla. Other candidates, whose nomination had been expected, were:

Mrs. Joseph L. B. Alexander, Phoenix, Ariz.; Mrs. Frank W. Baker, Omaha, Nebr.; Mrs. Roy Clement Bowker, 4415 39th st. nw., Washington; Miss Jeannette Isabella Dentler, Portland, Oreg.; Mrs. Percy Caldwell Fair, Mansfield, La.; Mrs. Howard B. Gorham, Providence, R. I.; Miss Marie Louise Lloyd, Little Rock, Ark.; Mrs. Marshall Pinckney Orr, Anderson, S. C.; Mrs. Claude K. Rowland, St. Louis, Mo., and Mrs. Benjamin Ramage Williams, Butler, Pa.

Candidates for honorary vice president general posts are Mrs. W. Thomas Boyd, Denver, Colo.; Mrs. Howard H. McCall, sr., Atlanta, Ga., and Mrs. Francis Cushman Wilson, Santa Fe., New Mexico.

Voting, reports of committees, presentation of newly elected officers, and an address by Senator Edward Martin (R., Pa.) are on the agenda today. The congress will wind up its deliberations tomorrow.

Dual Voting Plan May Be Dropped From Rule Bill

Extends Day Care

House Group Reports Out 4 D. C. Bills

The House District Committee yesterday approved four major bills:

1. Extending day care centers for a year.

2. Providing treatment for sexual psychopaths and tightening laws on sexual crimes.

3. Regulating the practice of optometry.

4. Exempting certain out-of-town companies from paying the District business franchise tax.

After an hour's debate, the committee referred back to subcommittee for further study a bill authorizing Federal and District financial aid for private, nonprofit Washington hospitals.

End Hinges on Conditions

Representative A. L. Miller (R., Nebr.), chairman of a subcommittee that recommended another year's extension for the day-care program, argued that while the war emergency was over, nonetheless the hig hcost of living made it necessary for many mothers to work. He said the program should be terminated after another year "if conditions are right."

The sex crime legislation was adopted without opposition after Representatives Miller and Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) warned that the "growth of sex crimes" in the District makes the measure "imperative."

The bill strengthens the local laws against indecent exprome, immorality and sodomy, increases penalton for indecent acts with children defines the sexual psychopath, including examination, for commitment to St. Elizabeths Hospital and for rehabiliation.

Raises Optometry Standards

The francise tax exemption bill removes from the levy those out-of-town firms which do not physically have or maintain an office, warehouse or other place of business in the District and which have no officer, agent or representative with an office in the District.

Representative Dirksen, who is chairman of the House District Committee, led the fight to authorize financial assistance to the District's private, nonprofit hospitals.

He pointed out that according to a recent survey, the District required 5000 hospital beds, but was 1200 short of the need. And that of the beds available 2000 were obsolescent, unsafe or unsanitary.

Fear Hospital Precedent

Under sterms of the bill, the grants to the private hospitals may be as high as 50 per cent of the value of the hospital plant, as improved by the grant. The funds are to be used for both maintenance and repair of the hospital, and for new construction.

Strong opposition to the bill, on the grounds that Congress already had done much for hospitalization here, and that further Federal help would set a precedent for the States, was expressed by Representatives Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.), Charles B. Deane (D., N. C.), Oren Harris (D., Ark.).

On a vote of 11 to 9 the bill was referred back to subcommittee for further consideration

The committee approved a bill to permit expansion, increasing the number of the trustees of the Protestant Episcopal Cathedral Foundation from 15 to 30.

Favors O'Boyle Incorporation

Approval was also given to a measure incorporating as a "corporation sole" Catholic Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle. The bill would permit the head of the new Washington archdiocese to act as a corporation in running the church's affairs in Washington and five Marylad counties under his jurisdiction. Until recently, the District area was included in the Maryland archdiocese.

Representative Dirksen said oleomargarine legislation will take priority in the House Monday over District bills.

District Committee Also Asked to Cut Out Public Construction Borrowing Feature

Two major proposals for changing the Washington home rule bill were advanced yesterday as the House District Committee finished its first of several executive sessions on the measure. The proposal:

1. Representative Joseph P. O'Hara (R., Minn.) said he would support a move to eliminate the dual voting feature from the plan for electing Washington's city officials. The bill now would let District residents vote for members of the proposed city council and elected school board without losing voting rights they may have in the States. O'Hara said only persons domiciled here, who cannot vote elsewhere, should be allowed to vote in the city election.

2. Representative George J. Bates (R., Mass.) said he would seek first to eliminate the public borrowing powers for capital construction proposed in the bill. If that move fails, he said he would recommend letting bond issues take effect on approval by the city council and by Congress, unless held up by a petition of perhaps 10 per cent of the voters.

This petition would take the place of a referendum proposed in the bill for approving all bond issues after they are cleared by the council and Congress. Bates said the referendum feature would lead to expensive delays.

Full Committee Discusses Bill

The District Committee as a group went to work on the home rule bill for the first time, and discussed its features in executive session for more than three hours. The bill was drafted by a subcommittee headed by Representative James C. Auchincloss (R., N. J.).

It would give Washington an elected council and a city manager appointed by the council. Most city activities would be streamlined into 13 major departments, 12 under the manager, and schools under the Board of Education. There would be a nonvoting District Delegate in the House.

District Chairman Everett M. Dirksen (R., Ill.) said the committee will resume its review of the bill Monday. He said three or four more metings will be necessary before a decision is made on the 173-page measure.

Dirksen, Auchincloss Pleased

Both Dirksen and Auchincloss said they were encouraged by the first-day discussion.

Dirksen said considerable discussion had been given to the dual voting plan.

The voting feature affects both the proposed home rule elections, and the referendum by which—if Congress passes the bill—Washington citizens would decide by majority vote whether it will take final effect.

Voters in the bill are defined as District residents who have lived here a year or more, who are American citizens, 21 years old or more, with no felony record, and who have not been adjudged mentally incompetent. By meeting those tests, residents could qualify to vote for the city council and school board members and the referendum.

O'Hara Fears Effects

To hold elected office or membership in the board of elections, or to vote for the District delegate, there would be the additional requirement of legal domicile in the District.

The bill includes this general statement: "To be qualified to vote in the District, it is not intended that a person be required to relinquish his rights in another jurisdiction."

O'Hara said he was concerned about the possible effect of the dual voting features on such legal questions as taxes, inheritance and voting rights in other States.

"I'll support an amendment to eliminate the right to vote in two places," he declared.

Representative Thomas G. Abernethy (D., Miss.) said he had not decided whether the dual voting feature has a proper place in the bill.

Court Ponders Right Of Home Gun-Toter

Judge Raedy witheld decision in the case of Raymond E. Fox, 48, of 310 11th st. sw., after Defense Counsel Denny Hughes contended Fox's possession of a gun in the yard of his home entailed no violation of law.

The District Attorney's office maintained the act was committeed in public because the law defines all property in front of a building line as public.

According to police, Fox was arrested in his yard Tuesday after he had threatened to shoot several children playing in his tulip beds.

In another gun case yesterday, Andrew L. Brown, 27, of 1512 5th st. nw., was found guilty of carrying a deadly weapon despite a plea by his attorney that the prosecution failed to prove conclusively that he did not have a permit to carry the weapon. He will be sentenced May 1.

Court Asked To Set Aside Alimony

Annapolis, Md., April 21 (AP).—A certified public accountant today asked the Court of Appeals to reverse a lower-court order directing him to pay $300 a month alimony to his separated wife.

Lawyers for Guy S. Kidwell, 48, of Hagerstown, told the court that Mrs. Lucile Elinora Kidwell, 46, "lost interest in her husband" and started sleeping in a separate bed.

She in turn contended that Kidwell refused to sleep in her bed from 1937 to 1945, "at which time the husband left the home."

On grounds of desertion, she won an order for alimony in Washington County Circuit Court. No divorce was asked.

Appealing, Kidwell asked that her complaint be dismissed and the order for alimony be set aside.

In other actions today the court also heard arguments in the appeal of American University of Washington from a Cecil County court order dismissing American's attempt to require payment of a "pledge" from the estate of Lidie M. Voshell of North East, Md., who died in 1944.

In decisions handed down today the court—

1. Upheld a Baltimore Circuit Court order directing distribution of the $18,609 estate of Samuel Scribner of Baltimore, who died in 1873. Part of the estate was left by a granddaughter to Goucher College.

2. Reversed a decree of the Baltimore County Circuit Court and ordered division of the $56,000 estate of John R. Reese, Owings Mills farmer, who died in 1899, in seven equal parts.

Rains Delay Planting In Maryland

Baltimore, April 21 (AP).—The Weather Bureau reported today that last week's persistent rains delayed spring planting in Maryland but crops already in the ground made good progress because of mild temperatures.

The bureau's review of weather and crop conditions in the week ended last Friday did not include a comprehensive summary of any damage done by the heavy frost which hit sections of the state Sunday morning.

The crop survey for Garrett, Allegany and Washington counties showed wheat and rye mostly good to very good and growing well. Some damage resulted in low fields from flooding but it appears to be slight. Plowing for corn and seeding of oats have been retarded but some progress is being made. Fruit trees budding and blooming. Very little frost damage during week. Hay crops and pastures mostly very good and some pasturing has begun.

In other counties west of Chesapeake Bay, the bureau reported, wheat and barley average good and growing well, some fields spotty because of late planting and dry weather last fall.

Early truck crops being planted and asparagus being cut in southern counties. Fruit trees blooming, with little frost damage indicated thus far. Hay crops mostly very good. Tobacco plants in beds making very good showing.

Fire Destroys Home Near Potomac, Md.

Despite efforts of six Montgomery County volunteer fire companies, a wind-fanned fire yesterday destroyed a seven-room, two-story frame house near Potomac, Md., at an estimated loss of $15,000.

The house was occupied by a 69-year-old tenant farmer, Martin Pratt; his wife, Mary, and their two children, Ruth and Nancy.

Mrs. Pratt was the only person in the house at the time the fire was discovered. She was warned by her husband, who saw the flames as he approached the house from a distance, and made her way to safety.

The house was located east of Falls rd., north of Potomac. It was owned by Alvin B. Barber, 3504 Macomb st. nw. Cause of the blaze was not immediately determined. Only a few of the family's belongings were saved.

Responding to the call were the Rockville, Glen Echo, Cabi nJohn, Chevy Chase, Bethesda and Kensington Fire Departments.

Bill Approved To Give Howard 2 Dormitories

Two Negro residence halls here would go to Howard University for use as dormitories under a bill approved yesterday by a House subcommittee headed by Representative J. Harry McGregor (R., Ohio).

The subcommittee set aside an alternate plan that would have turned the two Government-owned defense housing dormitories over to the Booker T. Washington Birthplace Memorial Foundation for use in setting up an industrial training institution for Negroes.

The buildings are the Lucy Diggs Slowe Hall, 1919 3d st. nw., and the George Washington Carver Hall, 211 Elm st. nw.

McGregor's subcommittee wrote into the bill a clause to protect present United States and District employes who live in the halls against eviction for four years from the time the bill becomes law.

Murrell said he heard nothing. Then he paid a call on Police Commissioner James A. Taylor. No action.

Oyster Issue Compromised By Md. Board

Annapolis, Md., April 21 (AP).—A policy split in the Tidewater Fisheries Commission was partly resolved today by a compromise plan.

Chairman John E. Clark and members Allan A. Sollers and George T. Harrison failed to agree fully on State oyster planting policy.

Two questions were up for discussion:

1. Whether St. Mary's County tongers should be paid a fixed price by the State for young seed oysters, or whether the seed should be sold directly to oyster planters on a free market.

"The commission is agreed that seed will be mad eavailable to the planters as in previous years and that every effort will be made to supply them seed in an amount equal to the yield from 75 per cent of shell put overboard from their plants."

Faced with a shortage of seed this year, the packer-planters have asked for guarantees that they will get 75 per cent of the seed.

"I say give them 75 per cent of the seed and be done with it," said Sollers. "The shells belong to them."

Harrison said he was "not in favor" of this, since it might set a precedent that would "eventually put the watermen out of business." Maryland watermen make their living by tonging for oysters on public rocks. Harrison recommended that the Commission tell the private planters they would get a "reasonable" amount of the available seed at the end of the year, with another "reasonable" amount for planting in public areas.

Neither Harrison nor Sollers agreed with Clark's compromise.

Harrison also objected to a Commission decision made in his recent absence on a business trip.

The Commission had voted to pay tongers 20 cents a bushel to take up young seed oysters from the St. Marys River in southern Maryland and to resell this seed to private planters for 20 cents plus a 20-cent tax.

Busy Weeks at White House

Mrs. Truman to Receive Visitors by Thousands

By Elizabeth Maguire

Mrs. Truman is facing a crowded schedule for the next two weeks. Every day is filled, usually with several engagements in one afternoon. She will attend a number of benefits, and guests by the thousands will be received at the White House.

Today the President and Mrs. Truman will attend a tea given in their honor by the governors of the Woman's National Democratic Club. Miss Margaret Truman will also attend.

On Saturday, April 24, Mrs. Truman and her daughter will attend the marriage ceremony of Miss Nancy Keith Leachman and John Rector Friant at St. Matthew's Cathedral, and the reception afterward at the Shoreham Hotel. Mr. Friant is the son of the late Julien N. Friant, who was Assistant Secretary of Agriculture during Roosevelt administration.

From the wedding reception Mrs. Truman will go to Mrs. Martin Vogel's house at 2601 30th st. to attend the Goodwill Industries benefit tea, and when the First Lady returns to the White House at 5:30 p. m., that afternoon, she will hear the West Point Choir sing in the East Room.

Other highlights for the coming two weeks are the reception the President and Mrs. Truman will give on Tuesday, April 27, for members of the National Academy of Sciences and the ladies who accompany them, and the opening that evening of the new Playhouse, which will be attended by Mrs. Truman and Miss Margaret Truman.

The First Lady will be hostess at a garden party on May 4 for women holding executive positions in the Government. Guests will also include one representative from the office of each Senator and Representative.

Among many other engagements, Mrs. Truman yesterday received members of the Young Married Women's Club of the YWCA. Today she will greet the National Society of the Sons and Daughters of the Pilgrims at 2:30 p. m., and tomorrow at 2:30, she will receive the ladies of the Acoustical Society of America.

At 3:30 tomorrow, ladies of the Cabinet will assist Mrs. Truman in receiving 3570 delegates to the fifty-seventh Continental Congress of the DAR, together with officers of the National Society of the DAR, and on Saturday, at 2 p. m., approximately 400 members of the National Society, Children of the Revolution, will be received.

Sunday, April 25, Mrs. Truman will attend the tea and exhibition of paintings of the late Miss Elisabeth Ellicott Poe, at the American Newspaperwomen's Club from 3 to 6 p. m. Later in the afternoon she will visit the Congressional Club art show.

Mrs. Truman will go to the Mayflower Hotel at noon April 26 for a reception for Miss Lilace Barnes, world president of YWCA, that will precede the luncheon for Miss Barnes. The following day, the First Lady will attend the women's luncheon of the Chamber of Commerce at the Shoreham Hotel, and that afternoon she will receive Miss Gretchen Merrill, queen of the Shenandoah Apple Blossom Festival. Another engagement prevents Mrs. Truman from attending the festival.

To Attend Benefit

The Thrift Shop White Elephant tea at Anderson House on April 28, to be held from 4 to 6 p. m., will be attended by Mrs. Truman, as well as the Pi Phi alumnae buffet supper at the Wardman Park Hotel that evening. Miss Truman, who is a Pi Phi member, will attend the latter.

On April 29, at 2 p. m., Mrs. Truman will greet the members of the Delaware County Federation of Women's Clubs. She will be assisted at intervals by Cabinet ladies. Approximately 800 guests are expected. The same afternoon at 3:30, Mrs. Truman will receive women members and the wives of the members of the American Physical Society. And at 5 o'clock, the First Lady will have a tea for the faculty and students of the Virginia Theological Seminary and some guests from New York and elsewhere who are interested in theological work throughout the country.

On Monday, May 3, Mrs. Truman will receive the Society of Sponsors of the United States Navy; and Wednesday, May 4, she will receive a group composed of representatives of the sponsoring organizations, the Technical Advisory Committee, program chairmen, and the Board of Trustees of the National Conference on Family Life.

Eye-Witness Sartorial Report

Duchess, Looking Prettier And Younger With Years, Attends British Ceremony

By Mary Van Rensselaer Thayer

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF WINDSOR have been staying at the British Embassy these past few days. Since practically every female over 10 seems to follow Her Grace's sartorial quirks with passionate interest, we'll oblige with a few high lights garnered at the embassy's presentation of decorations ceremony. The duchess, as usual, wore a "beanie," a beguiling trifle of champagne colored split-straw (similar to that used in pagoda shaped Chinese coolie hats) centered with a big square knob. Her plain navy blue afternoon dress was so beautifully cut as to be indescribable. But we can describe its sole, magnificent ornament—a pair of pear-shaped, solitaire canary diamond clips, each about 2 inches long, set so there was no sign of metal. The duchess wore sables, eight headless skins, strung two by two into a long supple stole.

DUCHESS OF WINDSOR

In all the reams ground out about the Duchess of Windsor, one of her chief assets has almost been ignored—the color of her gay eyes—the blue of very pale sapphires, yet curiously warm...

In professional capacity we covered the Windsor wedding, lounging outside the gates of the Chauteau de Cande all that sweltering June morning. Finally trudging up a dusty drive to stand, in even hotter sun, on the terrace while the harrassed bride and groom granted an interview to a dozen perspiring correspondents. So we can report with complete sincerity backed by good memory that the duchess looks younger, infinitely prettier than on her wedding day almost 11 years ago.

The Look-Alikes

THE DUCHESS OF WINDSOR, however, has a number of "look alikes." One of them is Mrs. Joseph Berliner, whose husband, the airplane designer and former Eighth Air Force officer, was among those decorated. Shortly after the ceremony, an embassy flunky bore down on Mrs. B. proffering a telegram on a silver salver. Puzzled, she picked it up, saw it was addressed to you-know-who!

Ceremony System

THE BRITISH have a wonderful know-how in staging efficiently effective ceremonies. Some 82 high ranking officers, United States, several Chinese and a lone French general were decorated in 55 minutes! The ceremony took place in the embassy ballroom, each officer being privileged to have two relations or friends in tow. Decoratees sat along the wall, each guest's chair was specially reserved. Lord Inverchapel, the British envoy, faced the gathering flanked by his military, naval, air attaches plus his private secretary, Walter Bell, who called, with pleasingly clear-cut enunciation, each name on the list. Each officer stepped up briskly, right-about-faced to the Ambassador while a capsuled version of his citation was read by the attache of his particular branch of service. Then an aide presented the decoration on a velvet cushion, hooked its bright ribbon in back as Lord Inverchapel placed its ends on the recipient shoulders. A handshake, the officer returned to his seat. Especially touching were two slight, charming looking widows who received their husbands' decorations. After the last officer was duly be-medalled the Ambassador prevented a hiatus by announcing with a twinkle, "Now let's go in the garden and have a drink!"

Thornton Wilder Is Visitor

THORNTON WILDER has just left Washington after spending an extra long weekend with Col. and Mrs. Curt Schiffeler, the Raleigh Hotel's musical impressario. To help the literary-minded keep up with this favorite author this department has gathered a few facts about Mr. W's recent activities.

At the moment he is ensconced in the Princeton Inn, conducting classes in Spanish research at Princeton College, writing what he insists is a movie, during spare time. He spent three winter months in England and France, much of it with existentialist author, Jean Paul Sartre, several of whose plays Mr. Wilder brought back.

Current Wilder works gathering in reassuring amounts of financial moss include "The Ides of March," a new account of Julius Caesar's goings-on, a one act play, "The Happy Journey," which is curtain raiser to Sartre's "The Respectful Prostitute," now a Broadway hit, plus an assortment of foreign versions of his, "The Skin of Our Teeth," including a London and Australian presentation. In the flesh Mr. Wilder looks normally unintellectual, dark, black-rimmed spectacled, medium girthed, good fun to talk to, as interested in trivia as you and especially me.

Young British Artist Paints Capital Leaders

By Marie McNair

THREE years ago Capt. Brian Stonehouse, OBE, was a prisoner at the death house at Dachau. He had been in solitary confinement before that after miraculously escaping the hangman's noose.

Liberated by the American Seventh Army, the British officer was called for a private interview by Gen. Dwight Eisenhower in Frankfurt, Germany, and came away with the general's photograph with the inscription, "To Capt. Brian Stonehouse with congratulations on the successful completion of one of the most amazing experiences of the war."

Captain Stonehouse, portrait painter, now lives in Washington, shares a tiny apartment with Maj. Harry Haller in Georgetown. He's been painting like mad for months, has done a dozen Washington figures. His commissions in New York for several stars of the stage include pictures of Katharine Cornell, Maurice Evans and Uta Hagen, who'll take on the role now being played by Jessica Tandy in "A Streetcar Named Desire."

Mrs. Deborah Glassford is delighted with the pastel which the artist has done of her showing her two Pekes, Charlie Chan and Dolly Baby, one under each arm. Yesterday the portrait of Chief of Finance, Maj. Gen. W. H. Kasten, was presented to him by Captain Stonehouse at a reception at Fort McNair, at which Maj. Gen. and Mrs. John L. Ward 3d, were hosts.

A good looking lad of 29, Captain Stonehouse hits the 6 foot mark, has dark eyes, hair as black as a raven's wing. He was just over 20 years old when he was parachuted into France, posing as a French painter. He sent information back to London's War Office on a wireless set camouflaged among his painting materials. Eventually, the Vichy police got him, turned him over to the Gestapo and he was condemned to die. After a year at Fresnes Prison, just outside Paris, where Pierre Laval was later executed, Captain Stonehouse was shunted from one Himmler extermination camp to another, landing finally at Dachau.

Dr. Williams Is Honored

Achievement Award Goes to Educator

By Genevieve Reynolds

"The misconception that women do not support other members of their sex is too general," remarked Dr. Charl Ormond Williams, director of field service, National Education Association, as she received the Washington Soroptimist Club's achievement award at a luncheon given in her honor yesterday at the Willard Hotel.

Tall, stately Dr. Williams was presented a silver medal by Mrs. Rose Robison Cowen, local Soroptimist president. It was given the recipient as the 1948 District woman contributing he most toward he economic and social advancement of other women.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt sent a congratulatory cable to her old friend, Dr. Williams. For many years the two have worked closely together at various conferences. It was Dr. Williams who chairmaned two White House conferences when Mrs. Roosevelt was First Lady. One of the conclaves took place in the East Room in 1944 to thresh out means on "How women may share in postwar policy making." It was then the roster was compiled for qualified women to serve in policy making jobs. That same year the award winner headed the Rural Education Conference, also held in the historic East Room.

Favors Political Action

One of the first educators to advocate that teachers participate actively in politics, Dr. Williams practices what she preaches. In 1929 she served as chairman of the ratification committee in Tennessee when an historic battle was fought for women's suffrage. Cordell Hull, former Secretary of State, appointed her first associate committee woman for Tennessee in 1919 to serve on the Democratic National Committee. In 1920 she was made the first woman vice chairman of the Democratic Committee.

Tennessee-born, Dr. Williams hit national fame when superintendent of education for Shelby County. One of her major achievements then was the complete consolidation of one and two-room schools and initiating the consolidation of small high schools.

Always she has fought for education. Often she battled the cause grimly and determinedly with local, State and national politicians. Her persuasive tongue, plus accurate knowledge of educational conditions, has swayed many legislative committee hearings.

Hence, it was only natural that educational leaders with whom she has worked turned out at the award luncheon yesterday. Among those present were Dr. Howard A. Dawson, director of Rural Education, National Education Association who pronounced the invocation; Dr. Frank Hubbard, director of research, N. E. A.; Mrs. Lucille Ellison, administrative assistant to the director of field service, N. E. A.; Miss Virginia Neel, assistant to the director of field service, N. E. A.; Miss Lillian Bielly, secretary to the director of field service, N. E. A.; Mrs. Lucille Ellison, administrative assistant in the N. E. A.'s National Commission for the Defense of Democracy Through Education.

Mrs. Hackett Speaks

One of the highlight's of the program was an address by Mrs. Hazel B. Hackett, president of the National Federation of Soroptimist Clubs.

Mrs. Hackett deplored the current trend to debunk the "gentler sex" and the concerted effort of men writers to send the women back to the "homes." "This so-called war between the sexes is sometimes funny and sometimes tragic," she declared. "But peace there is as illusive as world peace," adding "women must earn their future."

Striking a more serious note, the federation head said that peace must be built in the minds of people, in communities, states, nations and the world.

"The world is in need of every ounce of inspiration that can be distilled from individuals," she asserted. "All are becoming increasingly aware of the oneness of man. No longer can there be a division of racial and religious groups.

"There can be no islands of justices in today's world," she continued. "We must share what we have."

Mrs. Hackett called upon the some 500 women listeners to support UNESCO.

Miss Marjorie Webster, chairman of the Soroptimist's public affairs committee, introduced Dr. Williams, Mrs. Hackett and local club heads.

At the head table were two previous achievement award winners—Miss Mary Agnes Brown, principal attorney in charge of legislation affecting women veterans for the Veterans' Administration, and Miss Sibyl Baker, assistant superintendent of recreation for the District of Columbia.

MARYLAND'S club leaders gather around for an informal chat with Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. Occasion was a luncheon meeting of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase, Md., yesterday in the organization's headquarters at Connecticut ave. and Dunlop st. In the group are (left to right) Mrs. Robert J. Dannemiller, president of the Chevy Chase Women's Club; Mrs. Buck, principal speaker; Mrs. Roy D. Federation President Speaks at Chevy Chase On Membership Gains

Within the past few weeks the membership of the General Federation of Women's Clubs has jumped from three million to approximately eight million. So revealed Mrs. J. L. Blair Buck, federation president, in a talk yesterday before members of the Chevy Chase Woman's Club of Maryland.

She told the some 400 women present that a women's federation in South Korea, composed of 4,800,000 recently had applied and was admitted to membership. In addition the Austrian Federation of Women's Clubs, made up of 100,000, also had come into the federation.

Mrs. Buck said that the latest overseas group to ask for admission was composed of women justices in Australia. She pointed out that the United States federation has over three million members.

In a discussion of "Our Next Step in International Relations" the national leader appealed to the Chevy Chase group to support the American Overseas Aid and United Nations Appeal for European Children. She explained that the two have merged and are launching the campaign in behalf of the International Children's Fund of the United Nations.

Ask Anne — Methods of Cleaning Leather

Will you tell me how I can clean (1) a pair of men's fur-lined, light brown leather gloves, and (2) a man's wool-lined, dark brown leather jacket. The lining on the latter is what I am more interested in at the present time. K. S.

I would suggest you turn both the gloves and the wool-lined leather jacket over to a professional dry cleaning establishment. There are no satisfactory home methods which could be recommended to clean safely both the linings and the leather.

I have a pair of new, good quality chenille bedspreads which, after their first washing in my automatic washer, shed lint all over the place. I dipped them in warm water again and wrung them out by hand, hung them carefully, shaking every once in a while. They have improved, but are still a "menace" if you brush against them or shake them! The appearance of the spread has not been harmed. Do you think the automatic wringing is too much for this type of spread and will my spreads ever get back to normal? M. R. B.

The shedding of all chenille spreads when new is caused by the working out of the short threads which dropped into the pile when cut. The heavier the chenille—that is, the closer it is worked—the more shedding it does. Washing in the automatic washer should not harm the spread and this shedding condition should lessen and finally disappear as the spread is washed and shaken. Shaking the spread thoroughly out of doors, or hanging in the wind occasionally, should hasten the removal of all lint and also reduce the amount which comes off in the house.

My son upset furniture oil on my fiber summer rug. It made a grease spot about the size of a saucer. Is there any way I can remove this stain? The rug was stained last fall and stored in the attic, so the stain is old. H. B.

Make a paste of corn starch and carbon tetrachloride, work it well into the stained area and allow it to remain on the stain until dry. Then brush the powder away. It may be necessary to apply this paste to the stained area on both sides of the rug to completely remove it. Also, several applications of the paste may be necessary to remove the spot.

I hung one of my husband's striped, cotton shirts on a brown wooden hanger to dry. The hanger left brown stains where it came in contact with the shirt. I can't tell whether the hanger is stained, varnished, or both. How can I remove these stains? D. G. S.

This sort of stain is very difficult to remove, but it might be softened and then removed by soaking the stains in turpentine and then washing with soap and water. If this doesn't remove the stain, the finish might have been shellac, which can be removed by soaking in alcohol. If neither of the above solvents remove the stain, bleaching is the only remaining solution. Stretch the stained area over a bowl of cold water and drip the household bleach onto the stain. Do not let the bleach remain on the stain more than a minute and then dip the stained area into the water. Rinse the spot several times to remove every trace of the bleach. This treatment may have to be repeated to completely remove the stain.

I am moving into an apartment which is in very bad condition and am turning to you for advice on several problems facing me:

1. The floors are parquet made of beech and originally attractive. Now, the dirt seems to have penetrated right into the wood and I am wondering what, short of scraping and sanding will bring them back to some semblance of life.

You can work wonders with your floors by thoroughly washing with the dry powder type of floor cleaner mixed with water. These cleaners can be purchased at paint and grocery stores. Do not allow the water to remain on the floor any longer than necessary to wash them and be sure to rinse thoroughly and then apply several thin coats of paste wax, allowing each coat to dry thoroughly and buffing well before applying the next coat. If you rent an electric buffer this waxing session will be easier for you and you will be able to achieve a higher gloss and harder finish.

2. The stove is filthy. What is the best method to remove grease and general dirt and be sure of a sanitary piece of cooking equipment?

As you know, grease that has been allowed to bake on is difficult to remove. Sometimes such deposits—in the oven for instance—can be softened by rubbing down the walls and bottom of the oven with a cloth or paper towel saturated with household ammonia. Leave it on over-night with the oven door closed. To remove hardened grease on other surfaces, scour with a mild cleanser. In extreme cases, steel wool may need to be used. If the stove is a gas stove and the burners are clogged, remove them from the stove and open the holes with a wire hair pin. Now, boil them in washing soda and water. After boiling, rinse in clear water, drain and allow to dry thoroughly before using.

(3) What is the best method of cleaning or disinfecting a refrigerator? Should it be disconnected and aired?

Thoroughly wash all the inside surfaces and shelves of the refrigerator and keep wet 5 minutes with a solution of 3 tablespoons household bleach (bleaches are also disinfectants) to 1 quart of warm water. Rinse, dry and air for several hours with the box disconnected and door open. The ice trays should be emptied and washed in mild soap and water and, if they are metal, boiling water poured over them to sterilize.

(4) What is the most advisable way of disinfecting the bathroom and its equipment? H. D. F.

To disinfect bathroom surfaces, use three tablespoons household bleach or lysol in the amount which is recommended on the bottle in the water with which you wash the floors, basins, faucet handles, tub, etc.

Girl, 19, Who Is Living Apart From Family For First Time in Her Life, Is Intimately Involved With Young Man Against Her Will

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 19, the eldest of six children, and our family has never been very close in discussing things, so I dare not confide this problem in them; but I am involved in trouble that I can't get out of alone; and as I read your column and respect your counsel, I am appealing to you for guidance.

Recently I came to this city to work and study part-time, separated from my family by several hundred miles, and about two months ago I met a young man on a blind date here. I saw him twice subsequently and then we had our first date together. He said he loved me and wanted to marry me, and against my wishes and protests we were intimate.

Man Is Eager To Marry Her

I SWORE I would never see him again and although he called me nearly every night for the next three weeks, I managed to be busy or out. Tonight, however, he just came to the house and I couldn't flatly refuse to go out with him, without explaining the reason to my house-mother, so to avoid a scandal I went.

After a stormy scene we were intimate again and now he expects me to go out with him again and, he says, marry him soon! I have never done anything like this before and was brought up to believe that such relations are sacred to marriage, but he laughs at this.

I have tried to break off with him and still want to, before it's too late, but my efforts are unsuccessful and I need help, so please answer soon. Should I marry him and throw my life away, or what else is there I can do? F. R.

Girl's Victimized By Inner Conflict

DEAR F. R.: I have been discussing your story with an analyst, to formulate an estimate of the young man's behavior; and the specialist —who has great skill and a notable record of success in dealing with the emotional problems of youth— astutely remarks that the lad's misconduct is beside the point of your essential difficulty.

Most significant, in his opinion, is the fact that your problem developed almost immediately after you were out of range of parental supervision and family mores; in brief, as soon as you were comparatively free, for the first time, from restrictive influences that kept your behavior in line with "early teaching."

Speaking from a background of many years' study of similar cases, the doctor infers that your predicament is, in the larger sense, self generated; and not, as you think, wholly perpetrated by the young man. He grants the sincerity (if not the validity) of your belief that you've been victimized against your desire; but goes on to explain that it were more accurate to say that you are being exploited against your "intent."

She Is Stymied By Guilt Sense

IN HIS OPINION, the situation refers to a conflict within yourself, a conflict between libidinal drive on the one hand and moral training on the other hand, with instinct getting the better of "willed" attempts at emotional control when you are alone with the ardent and sinfully selfish young man.

Your feeling that you dare not confide your dilemma in parents or house-mother stems from unconscious knowledge that you've been involuntarily responsive to temptation here, though not with your mind's consent; and on that point, it seems pertinent to remind that most theologians concur in defining "sin" as wrongful behavior engaged with consent of the will, a definition which, by easing your conscience, should invigorate your spirit for dealing intelligently with factors that threaten your general welfare.

For advice: It's a fact that you can't solve this problem alone. You do need help in the form of self understanding, ever the archstone of wise self-government. And the emergency calls for good psychological counsel at first hand. In the large city from which you write, there are many resources of the kind, and to find the one best suited to your needs, appeal to the director of the Family Service Society. M. H.

Dept. of Agriculture Booklet Suggests

Thrifty Answers for What to Serve

By Lucia Brown

IF YOU'RE one of the 30-odd million homemakers now finding it difficult to feed your family because of high prices, the Government has a gift for you.

It's a new pamphlet chockful of recipes for money-saving main dishes—150 of them, in fact—as well as menu and buying suggestions. And it's all yours if you print your name and address on a postcard and mail it to "Food Conservation, Washington 25, D. C." You don't even have to ask for "Money-Saving Main Dishes" by name.

The Department of Agriculture has prepared the booklet not only as a boon to harassed housewives but to help save scarce foods and to fight inflation. All its recipes are tested by the Bureau of Human Nutrition and Home Economics.

Scores of mouth-watering answers to that daily puzzle "What shall we have for dinner?" are found in the booklet, which also tells you how to get the best dollar value in basic foods. Some of the recipes are those featured in the "Peace Plate" releases of national food conservation committees.

Since the proof of the pudding is in the eating, let's survey a few of those scattered through the 48 pages of this handy little volume.

TAMALE PIE

1 cup corn meal
3 cups boiling water
1½ teaspoons salt
1 onion, diced
1 green pepper, diced
3 tablespoons fat
¾ pound ground uncooked meat or 1½ cups ground cooked meat
1½ cups drained canned or cooked tomatoes
Chili powder and salt to taste

Stir corn meal slowly into rapidly boiling salted water. Bring to boil over direct heat. Cover, and cook 45 minutes over boiling water, stirring occasionally.

Cook onion and green pepper in fat until tender; remove from fat. Add meat to fat. If uncooked meat is used, cook until done. Add remaining ingredients and heat thoroughly.

Pour a layer of the cooked corn into a greased baking dish, add meat mixture, and cover with rest of the corn meal. Bake in a moderately hot oven (400 degrees F.) 30 minutes.

With Tamale Pie, the booklet suggests serving a crisp green salad with cheese dressing, and cherry tart. Um-m-m, M-m-m!

CHOP SUEY

1 medium-sized onion, sliced thin
1 green pepper, cut in slivers
1½ tablespoons fat
1½ cups celery, cut in slivers
2 hard, tart apples if desired
1 cup thin gravy or broth
1½ cups cooked and diced lean pork
Soy sauce and salt

Brown onion and green pepper in fat. Mix in the celery and the apple cut in small, thin slices. Add gravy or meat broth. Cover and cook 5 minutes. Add meat and season to taste with soy sauce and salt. If desired, thicken with a little cornstarch mixed with water. Heat thoroughly.

Water From Potatoes Cleans Silver

Next time you cook a number of potatoes to be served boiled or mashed, drain off the water into a pan and use it for washing table silver. It will remove stains from the forks and keep the silver bright. Rinse in scalding water after their potato soak.

English Union To Entertain At Luncheon

Invitations are in the mail for a luncheon to be given by the English-Speaking Union for Lord Wakehurst, K. C. M. G., chairman of the Council of the English-Speaking Union in Britain, and Lady Wakehurst on Tuesday, May 4, at 1 o'clock at the United Nations Club. Invitations have been extended to all members of the Washington branch of the English-Speaking Union and to honorary guests, including representatives of the dominions of the British Empire.

Lord and Lady Wakehurst, who have come to the United States from England for the purpose of visiting the various branches of the English-Speaking Union, will arrive in Washington from Baltimore on April 30 to be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. William R. Castle and Mr. and Mrs. George Maurice Morris until their departure for Richmond, Va., on May 6. Many social events have been planned for Lord and Lady Wakehurst during their stay, including a dinner to be given by Ambassador Makin on Wednesday, May 5, at the Australian Embassy.

Lord Wakehurst, who served as a member of Parliament for a number of years, is also well known as an author and lecturer, and as former Governor of New South Wales from 1937 until his return to Britain in July, 1945. Lord and Lady Wakehurst will both be remembered by the many friends whom they made during their last visit to Washington as guests of Ambassador Inverchapel at the British Embassy.

Owing to restricted facilities for entertaining at the club, reservations will be taken for only the first 100 acceptances for the luncheon.

SSGGM to Replace NSDAC; (It's Simple as A-B-C)

"Over the weekend," writes Jack Ashley of 2604 Lee blvd., Arlington, Va., "I saw a lot of women wearing ribbons proclaiming them to be delegates to the NSDAC convention.

"But for the life of me, I can't figure out what NSDAC stands for. What's the answer?"

Very simple. The initials stand for the National Society of the Daughters of American Colonists.

Many similar organizations meet here at the time of the Daughters of the American Revolution Convention.

For example, there's the NSARD, which is the National Society of Americans of Royal Descent. And the NOWL, otherwise known as the National Order of Women Legislators. And the DCW, better known as the Daughters of the Colonial Wars.

In a few days the ladies will be back in their homes, and Washington's convention spotlight will return to the summer-long meeting of the SSGGM, or Society for Second-Guessing Griffith's Managers—pronounced "sick 'em."

'Tain't fair. The kids eat more chicken than adults . . . Mrs. Esther Rothschild of 3430 Dix st. ne. tells me that River Terrace mothers are starting a library for children between the ages of 2 and 9 . . . anybody who would like to contribute some books for the youngsters should call Franklin 6573 . . . The Arlington Lions remind us that the Supreme Court once ruled that "good will is the disposition of a pleased customer to return to the place of business where he has been well treated."

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

The various comic strips are usually in the same place each day. But sometimes their position is changed, and I've been wondering why.

Does a strip's position change as its popularity rating changes? And if so, how can they tell when it's popular?

Harriet Mangrum,
6435 Fairfax rd.,
Bethesda, Md.

Dear Harriet:

The managing editor arranges the strips in the manner he considers most effective.

Popularity of the various comics is carefully checked by researchers, who note readership changes through constant surveys. Even the "funnies" are big business these days. Bill.

Thank goodness we won't have to worry about the Mystery Tune any more. It was "The Vision of Salome," first identified here by District Liner Nate Leiderman of 6206 Georgia ave. nw. . . . Dorothy W. Coulter of 811 21st st. nw. would be able to listen to her radio if she could find a 25-B-8 tube for it, but everybody tells her that model has been discontinued. Maybe she's well off and doesn't realize it . . . NEW YORK.—The bar association in Brooklyn will have two disbarment hearings this week—hearings which may erupt on the front pages . . . The Theater Guild's telecast on May 2 of G. B. Shaw's "The Great Catherine," starring Gertrude Lawrence, will be filmed. The film then will be sent to England, so that Shaw will have a record of the television debut of his works. Miss Lawrence will rehearse 10 days for this one night's work . . . After the private session at the White House with Paul Fitzpatrick, New York State Democratic chairman, President Truman said: "Mr. Fitzpatrick was happy when he left." When Mr. Fitzpatrick was asked about this he said, "I never question the President's announcements"—but added that the New York State delegation will come to the convention unpledged.

Alfred Hitchcock arrived in London last week just in time to take his daughter, Patricia, to the hospital for an emergency appendectomy. Miss Hitchcock is studying drama at the Royal Academy, and recently took top honors in the Shakespeare class.

Taft Tells Pompeii Not to Worry

By Drew Pearson

Ohio's usually solemn Senator Robert A. Taft and his wife were listening to a radio program, "CBS Was There," dramatizing ancient times in modern language. This particular program was based on the fall of ancient Pompeii, and the dramatization was grim and gruesome.

The people of Pompeii starved as their city was torn to pieces. As the program closed Senator Taft picked up the phone and called Columbia Broadcasting.

"You can tell the people of Pompeii," he said "not to worry. The Truman Administration will ask for a $42,000,000 relief program from them next week, I'm sure."

Merry-Go-Round

President Truman has been calling in Democratic leaders from all over the Nation, and giving them pep talks aimed at securing his own renomination. After they leave his office, the visitors are discreetly warned that a vote against Truman at the Philadelphia convention means no job for them in the future . . . CIO President Phil Murray and Chicago political boss Jack Arvey met secretly in Pittsburgh the other day. Both are opposed to Truman's running again . . . Chester Bowles, who is opposing President Truman's renomination, will make a Nation-wide tour stumping for a liberal Democratic nominee . . . John L. Lewis' real strategy in prolonging the mine strike was to cut coal reserves. With stockpiles low, Lewis is in a better bargaining position to get wage increases when the operators have to sign a new contract in June.

PEARSON

Under the Dome

Three years after Roosevelt's death members of the Roosevelt Memorial Foundation have finally condescended to invite Steve Early, one of FDR's closest friends, to join the Roosevelt Foundation . . . R. D. McCain, Dallas oil man, and his three flying sons plan a round-the-world speed flight via Moscow—if the Russians will let them . . . Congratulations to Congressman Lyndon Johnson of Texas for pushing President Truman into freezing surplus war plants. If it hadn't been for Johnson, a lot more plants would have been sold just as war production is needed again . . . SEC commissioners, studying the record of the Henry Kaiser-Cyrus Eaton stock market fight, may recommend to Congress a law penalizing any investment banker who walks out on a contract in the future.

Hawaiian Statehood

Senator Guy Cordon of Oregon is pressing for a vote on Hawaiian statehood inside the Senate Territories and Insualar Affairs Committee. The House has already voted to make Hawaii the forty-ninth State, but the bill hasn't been able to get by Chairman Hugh Butler of the Senate committee.

Butler has been insisting that the committee make a first-hand inspection before it passes on statehood despite the fact that when Butler's committee was invited to Hawaii last summer Cordon was the only one who accepted.

Two Appraisals

GOP Congressman E. H. Hedrick of West Virginia has vigorously protested to the White House against the proposed sale of 225 Government-owned homes at South Charleston, W. Va. . . . "We are selling war plants for 10 cents on the dollar, but the appraisal value of these housing units has been jacked up so high by Government housing officials that vets can't get loans from banks to buy homes," Hedrick told the President. "Men who fought for their country can't understand why we sell war plants cheap to industry and homes high to veterans." . . . When the President received a pair of gold-plated boots and a bootjack from the El Paso Chamber of Commerce, he surprised the Texas presentation committee by putting the two-piece bootjack together in jig time.

Army Denies RCA 'Leaked' Radar Data

By the United Press

The Army yesterday denied published reports that the Radio Corporation of America "leaked" radar secrets.

It issued a lengthy memorandum "to correct the impressions" given by Columnist Drew Pearson in an article last December and reiterated two weeks ago.

Pearson charged that RCA "deliberately flouted the Signal Corps' secrecy order by filing for patents in Germany, Japan and the rest of the world" on radar-connected inventions in 1936.

Two of the patent applications applied to an impulse generator, and the third to a signalling system.

The Army said in its memorandum that RCA acted on the generator before being advised that the Government planned to screen inventions important to national defense.

"In contradiction of Mr. Pearson's claims," it said, "there is absolutely no evidence that the application for patent on the signalling system was disclosed abroad prior to V-J Day."

No love for spring

The whole wide world may have the pep . . . To laugh at life and sing . . . But I am not so keen about . . . The season known as spring . . . Because to me it means that I . . . Must get to work and mow . . . And extricate a thousand weeds . . . With just a little hoe . . . It means that I must help to clean . . . The house where I abide . . . So my dear wife may be content . . . And bolster up her pride . . . I have to move the furniture . . . Adjust and oil the doors . . . Inspect the ceilings and the walls . . . And polish all the floors . . . And that is why I do not feel . . . Inclined to laugh or sing . . . When calendars and almanacs . . . Announce that it is spring.
